U.S. Won't Override CRLA Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) —Acting director Frank Carlucci of the Office of Economic Opportunity Saturday announced he will not at this time override a veto by California Gov. Ronald Reagan of a $1.8 million legal assistance grant.

But through an agreement with Reagan, the controversial California program designed to provide legal help to rural poor will get $600,000 for a six-month period, a spokesman for Carlucci said after the announcement.

Carlucci's announcement said only that an agreement had been reached with Reagan that will enable funding of the California Rural Legal Assistance program through July 31.

The OEO head, whose action on the veto figured in Senate hearings on his appointment, said his action followed prolonged and careful review of a Reagan report critical of the assistance program.

Reagan said in Sacramento he is "very pleased and gratified that the federal Office of Economic Opportunity has upheld my veto of the California Rural Legal Assistance program."

Reagan said he had "agreed with the OEO to permit a short-term extension of the grant for CRLA, which expires in six months."

The governor said the six - month "extension" would "insure that there is no interruption in necessary legal assistance and will enable us to begin the transition from the present program to one which better meets the needs of the poor who require legal services."

Carlucci, who had until today to act on the Republican governor's veto, said he will appoint a high-level commission to help him review the whole matter.

He also said he will send Reagan's critical report — a 283-page document with 8,000 pages of backup material — to the Justice Department and the Civil Service Commission to check on "possible violations or federal prohibitions on political activity."

Reagan accused the CRLA of gross and deliberate violations of federal regulations and said it failed to accomplish its stated goals of meeting the true legal needs of the poor.

Establishing the commission was a major term of Carlucci's agreement with Reagan to continue temporary funds for the CRLA, a spokesman for Carlucci said later.

Carlucci said he will review "fundamental policy questions raised by the governor's report when OEO recommends new legislation dealing with the legal services program."

For now, Carlucci said information from OEO and CRLA inspectors lead him to believe "it's in the best interests of all concerned to let the governor's veto stand and instead issue a new grant."

He said this "will permit the program to continue serving the legal needs of

NOON LAUNCH READY

THE SMOKE RING that precedes the ejection of a missile is characteristic of a Minuteman launch. The ring is created on ignition when heated gas from the solid fuel motors erupts from the silo. Minuteman will go through the ring during its ascent.

America's Cellar 'Umbrella'

EDITOR'S NOTE: Monday marks the 10th anniversary of the first firing of a Minuteman ICBM. Since that time the mainstay of the deterrent force of the United States has rested on the Minuteman, the Strategic Air Command's fleet of B52 and FB111 bombers and the Navy's Polaris submarines. Now there are improved missiles and penetration aids such as MIRV (Multiple Independently Targeted Re-entry Vehicle). Currently there is a flurry of controversy about the future of the U.S. missile defense system — even among the services themselves. The Independent, Press-Telegram in a series of three articles will attempt to explore the pro and con features of Minuteman, the Navy's sea-based missile defense system and allied programs.

They are the first of 500 Minuteman III ICBMs that eventually will be dispersed. The first 50 are under the operational control of the Strategic Air Command's 741st Strategic Missile Squadron.

The ICBMs are divided into five flights of 10 missiles each. Each flight is controlled by an electronic control center which could fire them in event of war at the direction of the President of the United States.

The new missiles were turned over to SAC recently by the Air Force's Space and Missile Systems Organization (SAMSO) located in El Segundo and commanded by Lt. Gen. Sam C. Phillips. Maj. Gen. Kenneth W. Schultz directs the Minuteman program for SAMSO.

The MIRV aboard the Minuteman III can send several warheads to targets miles apart with the launch of just one missile.

THE MINUTEMAN III has a range in excess of 5,000 miles and is being equipped with three warheads, each equal to about 200,000 tons of TNT.

This compares with an estimated equivalent of about one million tons of TNT in the earlier models of Minuteman with a single warhead.

The reduction in tonnage is not considered significant in the light of the MIRV development and the sharply increased accuracy of the missiles.

When the Air Force developed Minuteman they set out to devise the safest, most foolproof

B52s Pound Laos to Halt Red Buildup

SAIGON (AP) — About 400 U.S. bombers pounded southern Laos and the northwest corner of South Vietnam Saturday in around-the-clock raids aimed at an ominous enemy buildup of men and supplies.

The intensified bombings, coupled with statements by Secretary of State William P. Rogers in Washington, fanned speculation there that a large South Vietnamese ground drive into Laos was imminent.

If so, the objective would be to sever the Ho Chi Minh trail in southern Laos — the jungle-hidden network of roads and byways that is North Vietnam's only way to send reinforcements and supplies to its soldiers in South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Intelligence reports indicate a major dry-season buildup by the North Vietnamese along the trail, notably near the outlet leading into the sensitive northern sector of South Vietnam.

APPARENTLY, despite the four-month-old U.S. aerial campaign by B52 Stratofortresses and smaller fighter-bombers, the North Vietnamese are pushing through sizable numbers of supply laden trucks. At least enough trucks have arrived to alarm Allied commanders over the threat the buildup poses to the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam.

Rogers, at a news conference in Washington Friday also voiced concern over the North Vietnamese buildup and its threat to the U.S. pullout.

So far the major U.S. counteraction has been the sustained aerial bombing in Laos and in the north-

Pair Held in Party Stab Death

A 22-year-old transient was booked Saturday on suspicion of murder and a 17-year-old Downey girl was turned over to juvenile authorities in connection with the knife slaying of a Huntington Beach man.

Police said Arthur E. Bashaw, 21, of 321 Seventh St., Huntington Beach, was knifed to death in his home following an argument with a party-crasher from the Downey area.

Officers said Bashaw died shortly after midnight Saturday at Huntington Intercommunity Hospital from multiple stab wounds, believed inflicted with a switchblade knife.

Paul A. Stenerson, described as a transient, and the 17-year-old girl were apprehended at her home in Downey shortly after noon.

DETECTIVES from Huntington Beach and Downey patrolmen cooperated in the hunt for the pair.

Witnesses told police Bashaw became involved in an argument with a group of party-crashers at his home late Friday. They said a youth drew a knife on Bashaw, stabbing him repeatedly as he ran from room to room.

Unable to continue running, witnesses said Bashaw crawled through his kitchen and down a hallway to his living room, where he collapsed against a door.

Other persons at the party called police, but by the time officers arrived, the group of Downey youths had left.

Police said doctors staged a long battle to save Bashaw's life, and units from the Orange County sheriff's department rushed eight pints of blood to the hospital.

APOLLO FACTS

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — Facts and figures of the Apollo 14 mission:

LAUNCH TIME: 12:23 p.m. PST today.

ASTRONAUTS: Navy Capt. Alan B. Shepard Jr., 47; Navy Cmdr. Edgar D. Mitchell, 40; Air Force Maj. Stuart A. Roosa, 37.

PURPOSE: Man's third moon landing. Shepard and Mitchell are to attempt a landing in the rugged highlands of Fra Mauro on the eastern edge of the Ocean of Storms. Here they are to deploy a nuclear-powered science station and hopefully find rocks dating 4.6 billion years.

LENGTH of time on the moon: 33½ hours, including 8-10 hours outside on two excursions.

NAMES of the spaceships: Command ship, Kitty Hawk; lunar module, Antares.

FLIGHT duration: 9 days, 41 minutes.

ROCKET: three-stage Saturn 5, which, with Apollo 14 spacecraft, stands 363 feet tall. The world's most powerful rocket, with a first-stage thrust of 7.9 million pounds.

COST of mission: Saturn $185 million; command ship $55 million; lunar module $40 million; launch operations, including recovery operations $95 million; scientific package $25 million.

Chicanos Rally in L.A. Today

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

Peaceful groups of Mexican-Americans were scheduled to set out early today on the fourth day of an orderly march toward an East Los Angeles park in protest of alleged police brutality.

The march is planned to culminate with a noon rally at Belvedere Park, where five groups of marchers — some of which numbered up to 600 persons Saturday — are to converge.

AN ANNOUNCED "low-profile" surveillance of the sidewalk processions by police was evident Saturday, and no serious disturbances had been reported as marchers bedded down in various parts of the county Saturday night.

As marchers moved through different municipalities, they picketed briefly at various police, sheriff's and highway patrol stations before continuing on their routes.

PARTICIPANTS carried signs calling for an end to police brutality and chanted "brown power" slogans, such as Viva la Raza, as they moved.

Despite the orderliness of the marchers over the first three days of the protest, Los Angeles City Police Saturday set up a command post in Elysian Park to handle possible emergencies.

The sheriff's spokesman also said that their East Los Angeles substation would be prepared to call in more manpower in event of trouble today.

Chicano groups participating in the marches originated in Long Beach, Pomona, Venice, the San Fernando Valley and Orange County. Most were accompanied by federal Justice Department officers.

Easy Countdown to Crucial Mission

By BEN FUNK
Associated Press Writer

The Apollo 14 countdown at Cape Kennedy, Fla., interrupted momentarily by a report of possible trouble, moved smoothly ahead Saturday night toward today's blastoff of one of the most crucial space missions in U.S. annals.

About 7:30 p.m., EST, (4:30 p.m., PST) the space agency signaled potential trouble with an announcement that the rollback of the Saturn 5 service tower would be delayed for several hours for an investigation of a possible problem with an insulation panel protecting supercold fuels in the second stage of the Saturn 5 rocket.

The problem turned out to be a superficial scratch on the panel, the launch team said. The tower was moved back two hours late and the nearly flawless countdown continued.

The Apollo 14 astronauts have much at stake on their voyage.

If they fail, as the Apollo 13 crew did when an oxygen tank explosion forced them to limp home with the lunar module as a lifeboat, the remainder of the Apollo program could be in jeopardy.

On the eve of the flight, Shepard and his fellow crewmen, Edgar D. Mitchell and Stuart A. Roosa, relaxed and scheduled a visit with their families through a glass partition that has helped isolate them against disease germs since Jan. 11.

Forecasters said a line of thunderstorms moving eastward over the Gulf of Mexico might reach the Cape early this afternoon.

If so, the launch can be delayed by almost four hours. Rules adopted after lightning struck the Apollo 12 spaceship forbid firing if a thunderstorm is within five miles of the pad.

A Saturn rocket, unleashing a thrust of 7.9 million pounds, is scheduled to lift off the pad at 12:23 p.m. Long Beach time, hurling the redesigned spacecraft on the road to the jagged highlands of the moon 228,899 miles away.

A crowd estimated by officials at 500,000 was expected to line the beaches, rivers and roadsides of the cape area to watch the fiery Saturn lift off.

PRESIDENT NIXON WILL WATCH on television from St. Johns in the Virgin Islands, where he is vacationing. Nearly 4,000 celebrities — high U.S Government officials, foreign royalty, movie stars, industrial giants and others — will feel the shock waves of liftoff from VIP sites three miles from the pad.

No Apollo crew ever had less experience. Shepard has a total of 15 minutes flown May 5, 1961, when he became the first American in space. The others have no space time.

But no crew ever was better trained for such a mission. The three men were given four extra months of preparation while deficiencies that led to the near disaster of Apollo 13 were being corrected.

If the flight goes as planned, Apollo 14 will go into lunar orbit at 2:01 a.m., Feb. 4. After a day of circling the moon, Shepard and Mitchell will transfer into the lunar module Antares for the tricky-descent to the jagged

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Singer Names Baby 'god' —a Small 'g' for 'Humility'

Grace Slick, rock music star with the Jefferson Airplane, said Saturday her newborn daughter — whose "real name is god" — will be reared in the world of rock concerts and recording sessions.

"I'm gonna lug her around and she'll hear a lot of music," said the 31-year-old singer whose baby was born last Monday in San Francisco.

"I'm going to get other people to do stuff I'm not nuts about — cleaning floors, picking up and things — while I take care of the baby and music."

"It's real name is god with a small 'g'," she said, cuddling the child at San Francisco's French Hospital. "It's a small 'g' because with a name like that you have to show some humility."

The Airplane, one of the few surviving rock groups from the era of Haight Ashbury's flower children, has had three million selling record albums since Grace Slick joined them in 1966.

Now the group conducts business and practices in a three-story, $65,000 Victorian house across from Golden Gate Park. The house has a billiard table, electric chair and a torture rack, sometimes used as a dining table, among its furnishings.

Critics and devotees of blues-rock electric music have called Grace Wing Slick the "Queen of Rock," but the gritty vocalist scorns labels for herself and the Airplane.

"Everybody makes up phony titles and stories," she said. "That's why they call Nixon president, but he's no more president than I'm a queen."

A graduate of the same school as Tricia Nixon's Finch College in New York City — Grace once tried to smuggle Chicago 7 defendant Abbie Hoffman into a White House tea, but failed.

Grace is in the process of divorcing her husband of 10 years, film-maker Jerry Slick. For the past two years, she and Airplane performer Paul Kantner have lived together in the small coastside community of Bolinas, about 20 miles north of San Francisco.

They have no present plans for marriage, a spokesman said.

ANGELA

Herbert Marcuse, the Marxist philosopher, said Saturday in New York black militant Angela Davis was "one of the most nonviolent persons I have ever met."

"I think one has only to look into her face in order to see this," he said.

Miss Davis, an avowed Communist who studied under Marcuse and was a philosophy instructor at UCLA is in jail on murder charges stemming from the San Rafael courthouse shooting last August in which a judge and three other persons were killed. She is accused of buying the guns used in the shootout.

"Violence was all around her, it is engrained in this society," Marcuse said. "Her life was threatened, the life of her black brothers was threatened.

"And yet, I cannot imagine that she conspired or participated in violence. And I would have to have strong evidence in order to believe it."

Marcuse made the remarks on the NBC television program "Comment" taped for airing today.

FIRE SLEEP

Former President Harry S Truman, recovering at Kansas City's Research Hospital from an intestinal ailment, slept undisturbed Saturday through a fire in the hospital's coffee shop.

The fire, starting from an overheated deep fryer, spread up a grease chute in the shop's kitchen causing $1,000 in damage. No paitents were evacuated.

Truman was allowed to sleep through the fire in his third-floor room.

His physician, Dr. Wallace Graham, said there still is no indication when Truman, 86, will return home. His condition was described as good.

CENSURED

Maj. Gen. Samuel W. Koster, cleared Friday of cover-up charges in the alleged My Lai massacre, has been censured and could receive further stiff administrative penalties, the Pentagon said Saturday.

A spokesman said Lt. Gen. Jonathan O. Seaman, 1st Army commander at Ft. Meade, Md., had handed Koster a "letter of censure."

Seaman gave Koster, former West Point superintendent, the letter at the same time as he notified the 51-year-old Koster that charges which could have resulted in court-martial were being dismissed.

LIB 'SILLY'

The women's liberation movement got the cold shoulder Saturday from Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew, who concluded "some of the things they do are silly."

"I'm fine, I don't think I need to be liberated," said the wife of the Vice President, whose sentiment was echoed by other high-ranking administration women in New York attending the 50th annual luncheon of the Women's National Republican Club.

Helen Bentley, chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission, said "this bra-burning is nonsense."

Dorothy Andrews Elston, treasurer of the United States, added: "Throwing away a garment you are wearing only proves that you are careless. Women's lib is not feminine but forceful. They are missing the point."

All three women said they agreed with the drive for equal pay for women, and Miss Elston said she could see a female president in the foreseeable future.

OBJECTOR

The Army has filed charges against a West Point graduate who is seeking conscientious objector status, accusing him of five counts of disobeying orders.

Lt. Louis P. Font's civilian attorney, Luther C. West, said Saturday in Baltimore the charges had been filed and Col. Elam W. Wright, post executive officer at Ft. Meade where Font is stationed, confirmed the information.

The charges were contained in a letter delivered to Font on Friday and written by Col. A.W. Alexander, post commander.

On Monday, Font filed charges with the post judge advocate accusing Alexander of dereliction of duty and maintaining bar racks unfit to live in.

KIDNAPING

Kidnaped Brazilian Consul Aloysio Dias Gomide completes six months as a hostage of Uruguay's Tupamaro guerrillas today, the longest period any victim of a political kidnaping in Latin America has been held.

Despite searches organized on a massive scale by the Uruguayan army and police forces, no trace has been found of Gomide or two other also kidnaped and still held by the Tupamaros — American Agronomist Claude L. Fly and British Ambassador Geoffrey Jackson.

FBI Pushes Search for Clues in L.A. Building Explosion

Authorities searched the bombed-out ruins of a washroom in the Los Angeles Federal Building Saturday in hope of tracking down the persons responsible for an explosion Friday that killed one man and sent hundreds of workers scurrying into the streets.

The victim, Thomas Ortiz, 18, was an employe in the building and was in the second floor washroom when the blast occurred. Both his legs were blown off and he suffered severe head injuries. He died on the way to a hospital.

Investigators were at a loss to explain how the explosive charge was taken into the building. Guards with metal detectors are stationed at door-ways to prevent such an occurrence.

The bomb ripped a hole four feet wide and five feet high in the wall between the men's room and a corridor. Washrooms directly above and below the scene of the bombing also were damaged. Tile wash basins were shattered and metal partitions were blown away like cardboard.

Investigators said there was so little left inside the room that it was virtually impossible to determine the makeup of the explosive.

"A bombing of this type is probably the most difficult type of crime to nivestigate," an FBI spokesman said. Federal authorities are handling the investigation because the blast occurred on and damaged government property.

It occurred as thousands of workers were about to leave for the weekend. Workers on the second floor were evacuated immediately. Immigration, Customs, Secret Service, Social Security and welfare offices are housed in the eight-story structure. The building is a half-block from the headquarters of the Los Angeles Police Department.

Chicanos Protest Seven Jail Deaths

Among incidents being protested today by marching groups of Mexican-Americans are the deaths of seven chicanos which occurred while in jail, according to a Los Angeles "defense" group spokesman.

Most chicanos, said Mrs. Celia L. de Rodriguez, consider official explanations for the deaths as "absurd."

Mrs. de Rodriguez said the deaths, as documented by the Barrio Defense Committee, include four suicides, a "heart attack," a beating and one overdose:

—The suicide of John Huerta, 37, a robbery suspect in custody, on July 4, 1969;

—The suicide of Sam Kaseross, 21, arrested on suspicion of possessing dangerous drugs, on May 13, 1969;

—The suicide of Richard Hernandez, 22, on Jan. 8, 1970, while under arrest for no identification and suspicion of narcotics violations;

—The suicide of 28-year-old Gilbert Hernandez — no relation to Richard — on Sept. 28, 1969, while under arrest on suspicion of narcotics violations;

—The death of Joe Montano, 51, on April 15, 1970, after being arrested while intoxicated;

—The death of Raul Garcia, 46, on May 26, 1970, after reportedly being beaten by a cell-mate; —and the death by overdose of narcotics of 29-year-old Peter Meza, whom the committee claims sat for 12 hours in a jail "drunk-tank" before dying.

Mrs. de Rodriguez said committee members were told all suicides were accomplished by hanging, including one case where the victim hung himself from an upper bunk-bed.

Of Montano, she said, many chicanos believe he died of a beating administered by sheriff's deputies, although official cause of death is listed as heart attack. "He was beaten in front of witnesses," she said.

The parents of Richard Hernandez, she added, reported after their son's death he had numerous body bruises and a broken rib. "That was what caused us to start our investigation."

"The whole thing is too absurd," said Mrs. de Rodriguez. "None of these men were in jail on charges so serious they would have committed suicide."

SATURDAY night, a spokesman for the Sheriff's department — the agency involved in each death according to the committee — said he was not conversant on the cases but felt "they've all been handled."

Mrs. de Rodriguez indicated court cases have been filed on some of the deaths.

Fire Smolders for 5 Hours in Wilmington

Firemen worked five hours Saturday to douse a stubborn, smoldering blaze in a heap of old car seats and tires in a field in Wilmington.

They said the blaze broke out in a large pile of junk at Anaheim Boulevard and Foote Street at 9:12 a.m. They were unsure who owned the property.

Most of the work, firemen said, was in pulling the smoldering stuffing out of the old auto seats.

STAR JUMPS

French actress Francoise Pascal, her clothing partially aflame, jumped from a blazing apartment Saturday night in London and impaled her arm on a railing 40 feet below. A London hospital described her condition as "satisfactory."

Miss Pascal, 22, was watching television in the apartment of Italian movie star Viviane Ventura in the exclusive Belgravia district when the fire erupted. She stood on the window sill shouting "Help me, help me, I can't breathe" before she jumped.

Miss Ventura and her 2-year-old daughter Jasmine escaped from the apartment without injury.

Cause of the fire was not known immediately.

If you want to try to quit smoking, I'll try it with you.

Maybe you've quit before, only to backslide and fall by the wayside after a week, two weeks, or a month of abstinence from the weed.

So have I.

There's a new six-session anti-smoking program, offered by the Long Beach Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, starting Tuesday night.

Maybe they'll have some new angles that could have helped us over the rocks and shoals of temptation that wrecked our good intentions before. It might be worth a try.

Enrollment for the first series is limited to the first 15 persons who apply, which means a lot of people who might have a sincere desire to quit can't be accommodated.

If you want to try it by proxy, I'll take the cure and report to you on the day following each session on the ideas and methods that come out of it. Also on the new temptations, trials and tribulations we can expect between sessions and how to avoid them, plus any helpful pointers that can be picked up from the survivors remaining on the successful list as the days go by.

The second session will be Thursday night, Feb. 4; the third on Tuesday, Feb. 9; the fourth on Thursday, Feb. 11; the fifth on Tuesday, Feb. 16, and the final on Tuesday, Feb. 23.

JUST ONE MORE SMOKE

Your reporter will be on the scene until the bitter end, because all candidates must promise to attend all sessions whether successful in quitting or not.

And if I trip up again, you'll be told, and told how it happened. It might keep the same thing from happening to you.

Maybe we can make it this time and maybe we can't. If you think it's worth a try, I'm game.

All OAS Ministers Call for 'Tuna War' Accord

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a compromise endorsed by both sides, Western Hemisphere foreign ministers Saturday called on the United States and Ecuador to settle their dispute over fishing rights between themselves.

By a vote of 19 to 0, a special conference called to consider the so-called "tuna war" dispute urged the two nations to negotiate a settlement either by themselves or in a forum of their choice, perhaps the world court.

The United States and Ecuador both voted for the compromise resolution. Chile, Peru, Barbados and Bolivia abstained.

Adoption of the resolution amounted to a recovery of sorts for the United States, which suffered something of a diplomatic setback when the Council of the Organization of American States earlier last week voted to take the matter to the foreign ministers.

The United States had sought a settlement directly between the two nations or in the world court.

At issue is Ecuador's claim to exclusive fishing rights up to 200 miles from its coasts, a claim it has enforced with the seizure and fining of 17 American tuna fishing boats this month.

The United States, which recognizes only a 12-mile fishing limit responded by placing a one-year embargo on arms sales to Ecuador, a move Ecuador branded "economic aggression and coercion" that violated the OAS charter.

In the resolution adopted by the foreign ministers, both nations were admonished "to avoid further deterioration of their differences" and to observe the OAS charter.

'Nuts and Bolts' Course Geared to Foil Repairman

By NAN ROBERTSON
N.Y. Times News Service

BALTIMORE — Following is a recent memo to the staff and faculty of Goucher College:

"During the January term, we will be offering a course titled 'nuts and bolts in contemporary society.' The world seems to be stocked with two kinds of people. Type 1 is the kind of person who owns nothing but working appliances, who can spot the bad tube on his TV set while riding by on his bicycle . . . If you are a type I, stop reading right here and throw this sheet away.

"Type II is the kind of person who makes repairmen rich and cynical. When the switch on the lamp fails, there is nothing else to do but call either an electrician or a trashman. When the doorbell won't ring, the only option is to post a note saying 'please knock vigorously.' Type II is the kind of person who owns two of everything, simply because one of them doesn't work right."

THE MEMO went on to say the course would, among other things, "provide experience in what those disgusting Type I types call 'minor household repairs.' In order to do this right, we need items to repair, and our hope is that you may be willing to supply some such items. Like two drunks supporting each other, we may be able to establish a synergistic relationship."

There is only one word to describe the reaction to this appeal: "Overwhelming." From all the Type-II types on the staff and among the students. Sick or dead lamps, shavers, vacuum cleaners, toasters, radios, TV sets, heaters and other items for students to fix tumbled in by the hundreds from the staff.

As for the students' response: with 55 four-week January courses to pick from, including glamorous learning trips to London, Florence and Paris and a chance to study old Humphrey Bogart movies, one-fourth of the all-girl student body of 800 clamored to join "nuts and bolts."

THE 10 SPACES for applicants were then expanded to 20 — all that chemistry professors Barton L. Houseman and James L. A. Webb, who wrote the memo and are running the course — could handle.

Both men are very definitely Type I types with deep sympathies for Type II types. As all Type II types know in their heart of hearts, one overriding syndrome of people who can fix things is that they look down upon those who cannot.

They are jubilant about the course and so is the class. The students' boy friends responses range from what one girl described as "male chauvinistic-type" remarks to jealousy that men cannot join the course.

The girls are also learning, in one-hour lectures each day, about the basic principles of physics and chemistry. Not one student in the class is a physics or chemistry major. There are four majoring in biology; the rest are humanities majors.

DR. HOUSEMAN and Dr. Webb ("he's the nut and I'm the bolt", Webb said of his friend) are to give instruction in small appliance repair and how to paint, wallpaper, plaster, preserve wood, fix stuck doors, do some carpentry and simple plumbing repairs, tune up automobiles and build, from a kit, a stereo FM receiver or AM table radio.

The idea for the course came from a bull session between Webb and Houseman last November. Together, they felt, they had a "tremendous wealth" of practical knowledge to aid helpless Type II types who curse at huge home repair bills, grind their teeth when TV sets go dead and faucets leak, and wait endlessly for a professional to come fix them.

"We also feel that women are almost educationally disadvantaged in this area," Houseman said. "Men automatically baby them and don't expect them to understand."

HE ADDED that in traditional science courses, "students go from the known to the unknown. Our approach is that we start with the mystery of the lamp that doesn't work and then solve the problem, learning the principle and moving to the application."

Before writing their memo, the two professors put down a list of all the problems women — and men — confront in their own homes. They boiled down to two general categories: electrical appliances and maintenance of the house itself, or how to cope with such common irritants as termites, broken plaster and sticking doors.

They chose as the textbooks for the source "the New York Times complete manual of home repairs" by Bernard Gladstone and the "Better Homes and Gardens" repairs manual.

"These two books stand 100 feet above anything else in the field," said Houseman.

THERE HAS been some carping from other faculty members about "nuts and bolts" as being "anti-intellectual," particularly in a liberal arts college that prides itself on offering nothing like a basket-weaving course and does not give credit for gym work.

"But you mustn't confuse a change of approach with being anti-intellectual. Because it's simply practical doesn't mean it's academically unimportant," Houseman said.

The course is also easily the most popular in the four-week January term adopted by Goucher this year that emphasizes experimentation and falls between two 14-week semesters. Eight hundred Goucher girls enrolled in the month-long term out of a total student body of 1,060.

One final note on the "nuts and bolts" breakthrough course, which began Jan. 4 and ended Jan. 30. Numerous faculty, staff and Goucher alumni have asked that a similar course be given in the evening — including many male professors.

JACK DREYFUS
Gave to Both Parties

Political Donors Listed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new unprecedented list of major individual contributions to 1968 political campaigns traces big donors from Aague to Zyss and from the $500 level to the $139,000 of one mutual fund executive.

The volume was compiled by Citzens' Research Foundation of Princeton, N.J., along with three companion publications that shed new light on the details of where political money comes from. All are being published Sunday.

JACK DREYFUS, head of the Dreyfus Fund, stands out for his 47 separate contributions to a vast array of political committees and funds of both parties.

He donated $76,000 to Republican-sponsored groups most of them arms of the Richard M. Nixon campaign, and $63,000 to Democratic-backed organizations, most of them attached to the Hubert H. Humphrey campaign.

The largest family total in the contributions is apparently $173,462 donated by the Mellons of Pittsburgh to Republican groups.

About 20,000 separate contributions are listed in the 1968 volume. They were compiled from reports filed by candidates and political committees with Congress and with some states. Because of various loopholes in campaign reporting laws, not all major contributions are listed. In addition identification of some donors is scanty. But the new publications are the first ever to pull together all known contributions in an alphabetical listing.

DONATIONS from the Rockefeller family total $107,500, nearly all of it to Republican groups. New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller included $6,000 for New York Friends of Rocky.

Banker David Rockefeller donated $14,500 to Republican groups, but his wife, Margaret McGrath Rockefeller, put $5,000 into a Humphrey committee.

The Pew family of Philadelphia put $41,000 into the Republican campaign. J. Howard Pew is chairman of Sun Oil Co.

The largest individual total for the Humphrey campaign was the $100,000 listed for the atel Mrs. Rella Factor of Los Angeles who put $5,000 into each of 20 committees using such titles as Pharmacists for Humphrey and Rural Electric Americans for Humphrey.

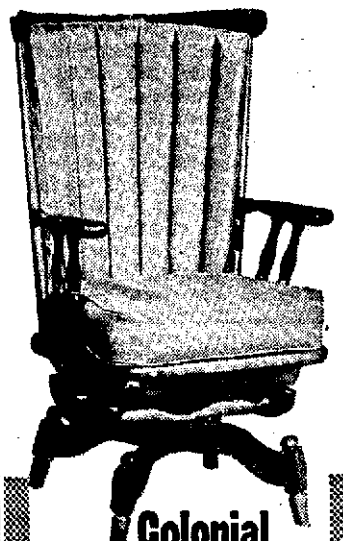

She was the wife of John (Jake the Barber) Factor, who was pardoned by President Kennedy in 1962 for a 1943 mail fraud conviction.

OTHER identifiable $100,000-plus contributors to the Republican side were W. Clement Stone, a Chicago insurance executive, and Max Fisher, a Detroit industrialist. With both of these, as with many contributors, portions of the funds were given in the names of their wives.

Pair Hijack India Plane to Pakistan

NEW DELHI (AP) — Two men staged India's first air hijacking Saturday, forcing an Indian Airlines passenger plane with 32 persons aboard to fly to Pakistan. The hijackers refused to get off when they got there.

An Indian news agency dispatch quoted informants as saying one of the hijackers was a member of the Indian border security force who boarded the Fokker Friendship turboprop in uniform.

The plane was seized while in flight over Kashmir from the summer capital at Srinagar to the winter capital, Jammu. It was flown to Lahore in West Pakistan.

The Indian Civil Aviation Ministry said the plane was given immediate clearance to take off after landing at Lahore but the hijackers refused to disembark until given assurances they would not be prosecuted by Pakistani officials.

The passengers and four crew members were allowed to disembark in Lahore, a ministry spokesman said.

RADIO Pakistan, in a broadcast monitored in New Delhi, said every effort was being made to persuade the two hijackers to disembark.

The Fokker Friendship became the first commercial Indiana plane to land at Lahore since India and Pakistan cut off civil aviation between their countries following their September 1965 war over Kashmire State.

Airline sources said the plane was commandeered three minutes before the plane was due to land at Jammu. The two hijackers brandished pistols and forced the aircraft to make a sharp turn to the southwest.

Jammu airport officials watched it fly toward Lahore, 100 miles away, across the tense India-Pakistan border.

United News of India said one of the hijackers was Mohammed Qureshi, a member of the Indian border security force who had been on security duty at Jammu airport for the past year.

IRONICALLY, Qureshi had submitted a report last year to his superiors warning of the possibility of an airplane hijacking in the area, the agency added.

The other hijacker was identified as Mohammed Ashraf, who, authoritative sources said, carried a bag believed to have contained pistols and explosives.

Reports reaching the northern Indian city of Amritsar, just across the border from Lahore, said the two men threatened to blow up the plane with grenades unless they were guaranteed protection and immunity from prosecution.

Radio Pakistan said the two men claimed to be Kashmire "freedom fighters" dedicated to achieving independence for Kashmir State, which is claimed by both India and Pakistan.

India controls the three-fifths of the 85,000-square-mile state, and Pakistan the rest.

Fourth French Quint Dies, 5th in Good Shape

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — The fourth of the quintuplets born to Michele Riondet died Saturday, hospital officials reported.

The death leaves a boy, Bruno, the sole survivor and doctors said his condition was not worrisome.

Of the three boys and two girls born Thursday, two boys died the first night and a girl died the afternoon following the birth. Cecile, the second girl died Saturday.

Mrs. Riondet, 29, and her husband, Jean-Francois, 30, an industrial engineer, have a 3-year-old son.

9 Women Burn to Death

BIBAI, Japan (UPI) — Nine women burned to death early Saturday when trapped in a blazing apartment building by metal bars attached to windows to keep out burglars.

Police in this city on the island of Hokkaido, 600 miles north of Tokyo, said the women ranged in age from 17 to 48. They said the fire broke out in a ground floor clothing store and spread to upstairs apartments.

Facts You Should Know About Diamonds

TONY CHAPARRO
of LAWSON'S JEWELERS
Downtown Long Beach Only A MILLS STORE

This week we shall discuss the care of your diamond. The proper care of a diamond is very important as it will protect it against damage and loss. It will also keep your stone as lovely and brilliant as it was the day you bought it.

To begin with we must point out one great misconception that many have about diamonds. Because the diamond is the hardest substance known to man, many people believe that it is indestructible. This is both wrong and dangerous. Diamonds are NOT indestructible. They can be broken. Hardness refers to resistance to scratching. Nothing will scratch a diamond except another diamond.

However, a diamond has a very distinct grain. This is referred to as cleavage. A diamond can be split along this grain. We all know that diamond cutters split or cleave stones. They do this by finding the grain line, then they place a cutting knife in line with it and strike a sharp blow with a mallet. Just a light blow will often suffice to split a stone in half. It is much more difficult to split a polished diamond and in normal wear this is not likely to happen. However, a sharp blow at just the right angle can do it.

With this in mind one should never wear a diamond while doing anything which would place it in danger of receiving a sharp blow, such as doing dishes or working on a car, etc.

As we mentioned before, only another diamond can scratch a diamond. Therefore, one should not place a diamond where it will be in contact with other diamonds because one could scratch the other.

One should have the prongs holding the diamond checked frequently to make sure they are tight. Doing this can prevent the loss of the stone.

Keeping a diamond clean is very important. If dirt collects on the back of a diamond this will reduce its brilliance considerably. When you clean your diamond be sure not to miss the back.

I have often been asked what is the best thing for cleaning a diamond. I have found that simple household ammonia can't be beat. It also does a good job on the mounting. Simply soak your pieces in ammonia for a few minutes, then scrub it thoroughly with a toothbrush. Rinse it in lukewarm water or alcohol and your diamond will sparkle like it did the day you bought it.

'Cellar Umbrella' Part of U.S. Vital Combination for Defense

method of controlling this deterrent force it was possible to develop. And it works this way.

No one man can fire the missiles.

There are two launch keys in the control center. They are locked in a box with two padlocks, and each man knows only the combination for his own lock.

Once the keys are taken out, both the commander and his deputy insert them in keyholes, farther apart than the reach of one man. The keys must be turned within two seconds of each other, and must be held in the turned position for a full two seconds or the missile will not fire.

Communication is done by human voice. The two men must both copy down the messages, then agree to what they mean. There are a series of authenticator codes and both must agree on every step before making a move.

Even then, the Launch Control Facility (LCF) cannot fire the missiles alone. The control centers are linked and the team in another LCC must go through the entire launch proccdure and turn their keys, too, before the firing sequence starts.

The theory is that one person might go astray, but not four at the same time.

Strict and complicated security prevents any outsider from getting into the triggering area.

The LCF is a "no lone zone" — an area in which the Air Force has decreed no man shall ever be alone. There are always at least two officers in the "no lone zone."

The men on the launch teams know only the general direction in which their missiles travel. The actual places where the warheads would come down is not known. The team can program its missiles for various targets, but the target information is merely a code that tells them nothing.

The Air Force has 1,000 various model Minutemen missiles plus 54 of the old Titan II.

THE SOLID fuel Minutemen are dispersed in very hard silos. To destroy this force, each individual site must be destroyed.

The actual silos are unmanned, and there are no missiles at the LCF. The silos are protected by electronic security. Three barely visible antennas would detect even a snake crossing the area. The alarm would ring in the headquarters building and bring swarms of Air Police to the area.

Soviet Maj. Gen. G. Pokrovsky wrote in October 1956, that the most effective ICBM defense would be to destroy them on the ground.

It was with this in mind that SAMSO designed the hardened silos.

The history of the U.S. missile development program is a story of urgent research, sometimes bitter interservice battling for billions in missile money, clashing of philosophies of nuclear strategy and often injections of political pressure.

While each of the services is charting its future course so that it will have an important role to play in the 1970s, the Air Force is firmly committed to what is known as the triad concept.

The strategic Triad consists of three elements, bombers, (SAC's B52s and FB111s), sea-based missiles, (Polaris and Poseidon) and land-based missiles, (Minuteman and Titan).

Gen. Bruce K. Holloway, Commander in Chief of the Strategic Air Command, has this to say about the Minuteman:

"The Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missile program is the most important single element of deterrence we have. It represents the largest part of the triad of United States strategic offensive weapons and is virtually 100 per cent on the alert all of the time. Land-launched Minuteman missiles are the nation's fastest reacting and most cost effective strategic system."

Lt. Gen. Sam Phillips before taking leave from the Air Force to put man on the moon during the Apollo program played a major role in the B52 intercontinental bomber and the Falcon, Bomarc and Minuteman missile programs.

Now that he has returned to his first love, the Air Force, as commander of SAMSO he has this to say about the nation's defenses:

"The manned bomber permits a readily controlled response. It can be recalled, and can penetrate enemy defenses using deception and the evasion techniques and tactics such as low-level approach. It can launch airborne missiles at substantial distances from a target.

"THE LAND-BASED ICBM provides a stable launch platform which gives maximum accuracy to hit a pinpoint target. A principal advantage is its hardness, which requires almost a direct hit to knock it out.

"The undersea or submarine launched missile in the present state of the art is very difficult to locate and has mobility which is a satisfactory trade-off for its lack of stability or hardness that is found in the silo or land-based fleet.

"No one weapon by itself would serve our national defense needs."

The Air Force stresses that before any one element of our national strategic forces is eliminated, or dismantled, it is imperative that their inter-relationships of weapons systems be thoroughly understood.

The Triad combination, they say, provides the flexibility and reliability necessary to guarantee deterrence of a nuclear war and assure survival of our nation should war occur by:

1. Increasing the odds that at least one system will be able to survive and retaliate.

2. Forcing the Soviet to allocate to defense programs resources that would otherwise be available to increase their offensive forces.

3. Guarding against technological surprise or breakthrough that could negate any single element of the Triad.

4. Complement one another: the strong points of one system offset the weak points of another.

They stress that discontinuance of any member of the Triad on the basis that it is too vulnerable or obsolete would allow such a concentration of opposing resources on the next weakest element as to make it a candidate for discontinuance. They feel that discontinuing any one member of the Triad would result in a serious weakening of our ability to deter war.

All systems complement each other, they say, airplanes and land and sea-based missiles. And all are essential to national safety.

NEXT: The Navy's view.

9 DIE IN FERRY BLAST

SAIGON (AP) — Nine Vietnamese civilians were killed and 35 were wounded Saturday in an explosion set off by Communist terrorists at a ferry crossing, Vietnamese military headquarters reported.

A spokesman said the blast occurred near a waiting room for the ferry crossing the Mekong River 44 miles south of Saigon.

Earlier in the week a bomb exploded in a market place in a coastal village killing nine civilians and wounding 22. In another coastal town, three grenades exploded in a theater killing 10 civilians and wounding 19. South Vietnamese authorities attributed both incidents to Communist terrorists.

Marine Pilot Dies as Plane Plummets Into Empty House

CANTON, Ga. (AP) — The pilot of a single-seat military jet was killed Saturday when his aircraft crashed into an empty house near the Holly Springs community just south of Canton, Ga., military officials said.

Authorities were withholding the name of the crash victim pending notification of relatives.

Military spokesmen said the F8 Marine jet crashed into a private house about two miles east of Holly Springs. The jet was attached to the Marine squadron at the naval air station in Atlanta and had taken off from Dobbins Air Force Base in Marietta, a spokesman said.

Ken Read, who told authorities he owned the house, said the aircraft knocked the structure off its foundation. He said he was working in a nearby shop and nobody was in the house at the time.

Read said the crash touched off several small fires in the area.

Military authorities said the jet was one of two aircraft on a local training mission. The other aircraft returned to Dobbins.

Tornado in Georgia Injures 7

TOCCOA, Ga. (UPI) — A small tornado moved along the edge of this northeast Georgia community near the South Carolina border Saturday afternoon, uprooting trees, overturning mobile homes and sending at least seven persons to the hospital.

Rain preceded the tornado, which hit about 5:40 and focused its destruction in an area about 5½ miles south of Toccoa.

The tornado ripped the roofs from two houses, overturned four house trailers and slightly injured seven persons who

COP TICKETS COP, GETS SCOOTERED

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) —What happens when one policemen tickets another policeman?

They both are reassigned to scooter duty.

Patrolman Ed Ray gave fellow Charleston policeman Lovell Taylor a ticket for driving a police cruiser with an expired safety inspection sticker.

Police Chief Dallas Dias said this was the wrong way to handle the situation.

Beginning Sunday, both men begin patrolling their beats on scooters.

Nixon Relaxes, Keeps Eye on Viet War

CANEEL BAY, St. John, V.I. (UPI) — President Nixon relaxed on the white sand here Saturday but kept abreast of the heavy new U.S. aerial attacks across Indochina. His aides refused to comment on indications the war was widening.

The President and Mrs. Nixon, who flew to the Virgin Islands Friday for a long weekend in the sun, spent most of the day near their secluded villa overlooking the plush Caneel Bay plantation resort developed by the Rockefeller family.

In the late afternoon, Nixon went boating around the Green Isle of St. John with its 31 jewel-like, white sandy beaches. He was accompanied by Roger Johnson, a special assistant and long-time friend, and Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, his frequent companion.

A spokesman for the President said he was being informed of all the latest developments in Southeast Asia by contact in Washington with H. R. Haldemann, his chief of staff.

But Nixon's press aides declined to comment on reports that South Vietnamese troops, backed by American air power, have moved into southern Laos to try to destroy large Communist supply centers and to sever the Ho Chi Minh Trail, Hanoi's chief pipeline for men and materiel moving to battle areas in the south.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers hinted Friday at the possibility of such an operation, which would represent a significant expansion of U.S. involvement in the Indochina war.

Hours later, as many as 400 U.S. bombers and jet fighters began a broad attack on Communist troops and bases in Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam.

Despite these developments and expressions of alarm from some members of Congress, the President's main official action Saturday was on the domestic front.

Nixon named former Pennsylvania Gov. Raymond E. Shafer to head a nine-member commission established last October to study the problem of drug abuse and the effects of marijuana.

The tropical island had only one telephone and no television sets before the President decided to go there. By the time he arrived, elaborate communications equipment had been set up and a television set was brought down from the White House.

The President planned to spend much of Sunday afternoon in front of it, watching the launch of Apollo 14 as he has previous moon missions. But Saturday the temperature reached the 85-degree mark and Nixon got a good chance to soak up some sun.

He also looked over some of the legislation he will propose to Congress within the next few weeks and preused three books — two about the mid-19th century British prime ministers, Lord Melbourne and Benjamin Disraeli, the third a novel called "The Crime of Sylvester Bonnard," by Anatole France.

Lindsay Asks $1.5 Billion N.Y. Budget

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay requested Saturday a record $1.56-billion capital budget in fiscal 1971 and urged the Legislature to increase the city's debt-incurring capacity by $600 million.

Terming it a "conservative budget," Lindsay proposed spending $680 million for environmental programs, or 43 per cent of the total, along with $210 million for school construction and $151 million more for mass transit.

The expense budget was based on projected receipt of $350 million in state aid and on $106 million in federal funds, Lindsay said. He said in contained no new major spending programs.

The capital budget is separate from the expense budget that covers the cost of running the city. The current expense budget is $7.7 billion and the capital budget $1.42 billion.

The city's total debt-incurring limit is $5 billion, of which $3.78 billion has been committed. Lindsay's budget would reduce the reserve to $450 million.

Martian Mystery Probed

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD

HILO, Hawaii (UPI) — Scientists at the world's highest observatory are undertaking a special year-long project to probe the mysteries of Mars.

On Aug. 10, Mars makes its closest approach to the earth in 15 years, and the Mauna Kea Observatory atop a 13,795-foot mountain will offer the best viewing platform in the Northern Hemisphere.

Dr. William M. Sinton, director of the observatory, is in charge of the Mars program and, with a team of astronomers, is keeping a close watch on the water vapor and carbon dioxide in the red planet's thin atmosphere throughout the year of study.

SINTON HOPES the monitoring of water vapor will provide clues to the planet's weather patterns and that the carbon dioxide studies will throw some new light on the topography of Mars, the fourth planet from the sun and the next outside earth.

The scientists are particularly interested in Mars' polar ice caps and their seasonal melting patterns. And, although the planet has been mapped over the years, doubts have arisen as to whether areas assumed to be mountains really are.

Water vapor and carbon dioxide are measured by spectroscopy, a method in which the image of light from a telescope is placed onto a device which then breaks the light into a rainbow-like spectrum. The spectrum is then photographed and analyzed.

"By June, Mars will be close enough for us to undertake the different kinds of observations necessary to look for rare gases in the planet's atmosphere," Sinton said. "We just don't know what we'll find."

SINTON SAID the observatory on the island of Hawaii which houses an 88-inch telescope, is ideal for viewing the unusual apposition of Earth and Mars because Mars will be low in the southern horizon for the more northerly latitudes, and thus more distorted.

Sinton said "Mauna Kea's height places the observatory above 80 per cent or more of the water vapor in the earth's atmosphere, another distorting factor, and the clearer atmosphere provided by the location results in high quality viewing."

The $6 million observatory, a joint University of Hawaii and National Aeronautics and Space Administration effort, was completed last June. Astronomers fro mall over the country are already seeking viewing time at Mauna Kea as close as possible to Aug. 10, when Mars and Earth will be 34.9 million miles apart.

"There won't be an apposition as close as this one for another 15 years," Sinton said.

2 Watchmen Injured in Circus Fire

MIAMI (AP) — Three animals perished and two watchmen suffered burns Saturday in a fire which destroyed a trailer at the Clyde Beatty Circus's winter training camp, authorities said.

A leopard and two baboons died of smoke inhalation during the 3 a.m. blaze.

Officials said watchman George Scott, 62, was trapped in the rear of the trailer when the fire began. He was reported in satisfactory condition at Jackson Memorial Hospital with burns over most of his upper body.

His colleague, J. J. Johnson, 30, suffered a burned right arm and was in good condition late Saturday at Palm Springs Hospital.

More than a dozen lions and leopards caged under a canvas tent about 30 feet away escaped injury.

Resident trainer Dave Hoover said the circus cats had been camping on the industrial parking lot for heavy equipment since mid-December. They will rejoin the circus when it returns to the road in two weeks from its DeLand headquarters in Central Florida.

Apollo Interest Up

ILLE REICHEN, Germany (AP) — Some 57 per cent of 1,024 respondents in a survey reported they are as interested in the Apollo 14 moon flight as they were in previous lunar probes while another 28 per cent said they were even more interested.

Countdown for Crucial Apollo Mission Easy

Frau Mauro region on the eastern shore of the moon's dry Ocean of Storms.

While Roosa orbits alone in the command ship Kitty Hawk, the others will spend nearly 34 hours on the lunar surface and make two outside explorations lasting four to five hours each.

Both walks will be televised to earth — the first extensive live color television from the moon.

Since the Apollo 13 explosion, which investigators blamed on a "serious oversight" in design and testing of the oxygen tank, the Apollo 14 craft has been redesigned. It has a third oxygen tank isolated from the others and more battery power to get the spaceship home from any point on the route. Electrical wiring and all combustible material was removed from inside the tanks and a better trouble warning system installed.

Shepard and Mitchell will be the fifth and sixth men to step on the moon, following the Apollo 11 and 12 crews of 1969. Grounded for years by an inner ear ailment, Shepard never stopped believing that some day he would fly to the moon. It was an ambition nourished since the days of the original seven astronauts.

An operation corrected the ailment and his opportunity came.

Mitchell, the 40-year-old lunar module pilot, is a Navy commander with a Ph.D. in science from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He punched cows on his family's New Mexico ranch before becoming an astronaut.

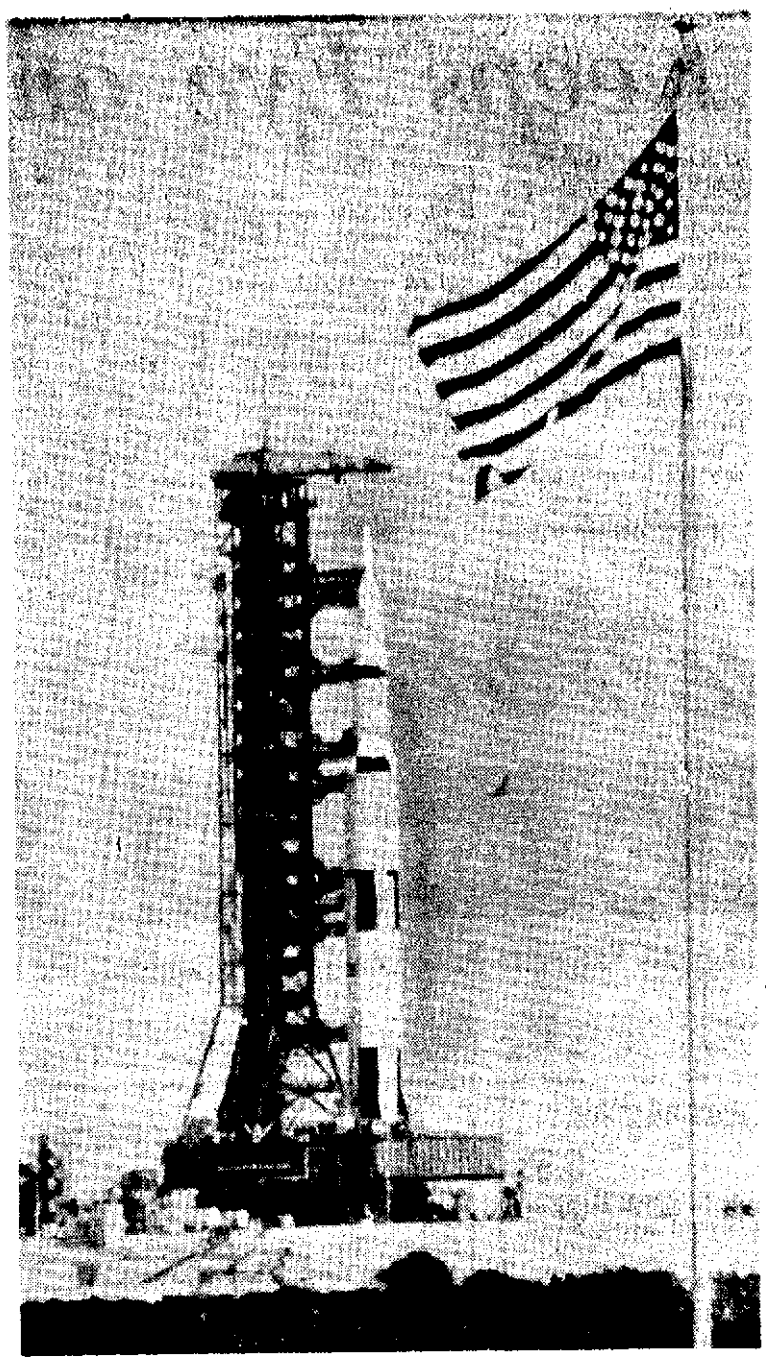

Roosa, 37, the command module pilot, is an Air Force major from Muskogee, Okla., known for his enthusiasm for his work.

Their destination is the same as that assigned to Apollo 13 — one of the most tortured terrains of the moon. The other Apollo setdowns were on flat areas, but Shepard and Mitchell must guide Antares to a narrow valley among craters and jagged hills and ridges as tall as 8,000 feet.

Eons ago, this region was fashioned in a hurricane of debris from the impact of a gigantic comet or meteor crashing into Mare Imbrium, the Sea of Rains 500 miles to the north.

THE ASTRONAUTS HOPE to find rocks dating nearly five billion years. The Imbrium matter, gouged out from depths of 100 or more miles, is believed to have been present when the moon was created and may have been involved in the formation of the solar system.

The astronauts will erect a nuclear-powered science station which is expected to send back reports for at least a year on moonquakes, meteor collisions, radiation, solar winds and other developments on the moon.

APOLLO 14 POISED FOR LAUNCH

Moon-mission rocket Apollo 14 is pictured before blastoff at its launch pad at Cape Kennedy, Fla. The mission, which will take astronauts Alan B. Shepard, Stuart A. Roosa and Edgar D. Mitchell to the moon, has received go-ahead for launching this afternoon.

B52s Pound Laos to Cut Red Supply Line

west corner of South Vietnam in the Khe Sanh area close to the Laotian frontier.

U.S. B52 bombers struck Saturday near Khe Sanh for the third successive day and for the seventh time in the last two weeks.

Khe Sanh is a former U.S. Marine base where in 1968 the Marines withstood a 77-day artillery and mortar siege and abandoned it shortly after the siege was lifted.

IN LINE with the intensification of the U.S. bombing campaign, the 7th Fleet beefed up its striking power by stationing two aircraft carriers instead of one in the Gulf of Tonkin.

A third U.S. carrier was being held in reserve. The three can provide more than 200 bombers for strikes in southern Laos.

In addition to the strikes from the carriers, other U.S. bombers hit at Laos from bases in South Vietnam and Thailand.

In all, the U.S. can muster 500 or more bombers in the war zone for daily raids, many of them capable of several missions in one day because of the relatively short jet-flight distances.

On the battlefields, no major ground action was reported in South Vietnam, but fighting flared next door in Cambodia.

In Phnom Penh, the Cambodian command reported an ambush by Communist-led troops on Highway 4, the sole overland supply link between the capital and the sea.

The command said a government convoy of four trucks was ambushed when it was attempting to bring supplies on highway from the deep water port of Kompong Som.

CAMBODIAN spokesmen have claimed that the highway has been open to traffic for nearly a week since the recapture of Pich Nil Pass, but no civilian trucks have ventured the journey from Kompong Som to Phnom Penh.

Renewed fighting erupted also near the town of Saang, 14 miles south of Phnom Penh. A reinforced Cambodian battalion attacked North Vietnamese who had cut the road between Phnom Penh and Saang.

South Vietnamese military headquarters reported two engagements Saturday in the Mekong Delta south of Saigon in which government forces killed 43 Viet Cong and sustained "extremely light" casualties.

In one action, headquarters said, South Vietnamese infantrymen and helicopter gunships killed 24 Viet Cong in the U Minh Forest, Forest of Darkness, 140 miles southwest of Saigon. In the other encounter, government rangers claimed 19 enemy killed in skirmishing 89 miles southwest of Saigon.

CRLA Veto Stands, But Agency Granted Extension

the poor in rural areas of California while at the same time providing additional assurance to the governor and all the people of California that the program will be carried out in a responsible manner."

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., delayed Senate hearings on Carlucci's appointment to the OEO post over the veto issue.

CRLA was founded in 1966 after the efforts of Cesar Chavez and his farm workers union focused attention on the problems of the rural poor. It now operates 11 offices around the state with three or four lawyers in each office.

In its four stormy years, the agency has won 80 per cent of its cases, a record that prompted the OEO to increase its grant by $205,539 this year.

Reagan has been at odds with the program for years. In one of CRLA's most famous cases, the agency brought a suit that forced the governor to rescind huge cutbacks in Medi-Cal. It has also won numerous cases against one of the governor's most prominent groups of supporters, the large farmers.

Many lawyers believe that if CRLA is going to be successful, it has to disrupt the status quo and offend established interests. Otherwise, they feel, there would be little need for the program.

CSLB Prof at Standard Oil Meet

Richard Outwater, assistant professor of geography at California State College, Long Beach, participated recently with 20 other college instructors in discussions with Standard Oil Co. executives.

The annual program of seminars, held in San Francisco, was based on exchange of ideas between the two groups on current issues involving the oil industry, company officials said.

'VICTORY FOR POOR' SAYS GOV.

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Reagan, in a specially-called Saturday night press conference, called the sustaining of his veto "a clear cut victory for the rural poor in California."

Reagan said he "never objected to the idea of legal assistance to the rural poor; our objection was to the fact that they were not getting assistance to the degree they should have."

CRLA, he said, "In the sense of assistance to the poor, will not disappear." But the commission to be set up to study CRLA will weight recommendations submitted by the Reagan administration as well as others.

The governor said it is not of great importance whether the legal assistance program funded privately or by OEO although he prefers private financing.

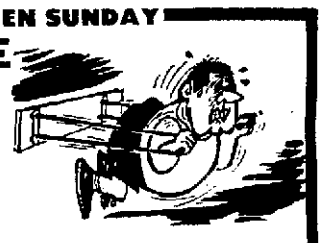

Asking his reaction to threats that some champions of CRLA might quit because of Carlucci's Saturday announcement, Reagan cracked, "I'll try to contain my grief."

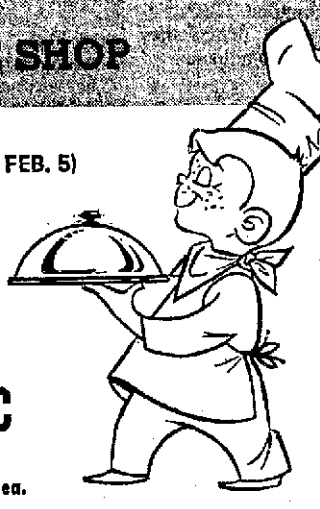

Reagan told newsmen he is glad that Carlucci did not yield to the blackmail of Sen. Alan Cranston in blocking Carlucci's Senate confirmation unless he overrode Reagan's veto.

Uganda Claims Sudanese Have Started Invasion

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — The new military government charged Saturday that Sudanese troops had crossed the border and were "now reported to be advancing into Uganda."

The invasion claim was made in a midnight announcement over Radio Uganda but an official said there was no fighting at the moment.

The broadcast said "unless the violation of territorial integrity stops at once we will meet force by force and this need not necessarily be a localized affair."

IT REPORTED the statement was issued by Maj. Gen. Idi Amin, leader of the coup that overthrew the regime of President Milton Obote on Monday.

A newsman who called Amin's house was told the general was asleep. One of the general's aides said he knew of no fighting and could not say what action Ugandan troops were taking.

Some observers believed the reported incursion could be a Sudanese action against guerrillas along the ill-defined frontier and not directed at Uganda. There were reports a month ago that more than 4,000 Sudanese soldiers were engaged in operations near the border against Anya-Nya guerrillas who oppose the Khartoum government.

Radio Uganda listed a number of alleged border violations and said Amin's government "considers that the time has now come for it to answer these unwarranted acts of agression."

It reported Sudanes troops raided the village of Namur Tuesday and Thursday and said a plane dropped five bombs on the village. It did not say whether there were casualties.

Obote, who was deposed while returning from the Commonwealth conference in Singapore, took up exile in Tanzania. He flew to Kenya Saturday night, however, to seek support from President Jomo Kenyatta.

Amin and Obote both have tried to gain the backing of other African nations.

TANZANIA and Somalia still recognize Obote as president. The Congo, Kinshasa, has indicated it might recognize Amin's government.

The Sudan, Kenya and Zambia have made no official statements on their positions.

Amin announced Wednesday that Tanzanian troops were preparing to attack Uganda from the south but the attack did not materialize.

Sudan, which has a leftist military regime, is Uganda's northern neighbor.

Radio Uganda earlier broadcast an appeal to "misguided tribesmen" who fled into the jungle to return to their posts.

The appeal followed reports of fighting in northern Uganda and said some "unfortunate soldiers" had been misled by officials in Obote's Lango tribe.

ACTION LINE

a copy of their bi-monthly publication by writing to the National Missing Youth Locator, P.O. Box 7000, Berkeley, Calif. 94707. NMYL president George Stamper told ACTION LINE that for a $28.50 fee, the missing youngster's photo and a brief description will appear in his magazine, circulated among over 8,000 law enforcement agencies and youth authorities in this country and Canada. Some people offer rewards for information. On the theory that many runaways may read or associate with persons who read underground newspapers, parents often run pleas for help in finding missing juveniles in these papers if they have some guess as to the area the teen-ager may have headed for. In this section, The Los Angeles Free Press, 7813 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, and the Long Beach Free Press, 1225 E. 10th St., Long Beach, carry such ads in their personals sections. You also can fill out a missing person report with the local Salvation Army office and it will be distributed to SA transient centers in areas where a missing person may have gone.

Back Court?

Q. I have a bet with a friend which I hope ACTION LINE can settle. I say Billie Jean King has a tennis court in her back yard. My friend says she doesn't. L.H., Long Beach.

A. You're half right. Mr. and Mrs. Larry King have a paddle tennis court in the back yard of their Honolulu home. There is no court in the backyard of the Long Beach home owned by Billie Jean's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Moffitt where the King's often stay. Larry King told ACTION LINE that he and Billie Jean are only in their modern three bedroom Hawaiian home about one month out of the year. He said the home is located in Waelae-Kahale in the hills above Honolulu, with a view of Diamond Head and the Pacific Ocean.

Afghan

Q. I ordered an afghan kit for a baby from Heir-Loom Crafts, P.O. Box 135, Sommerville, Mass., on Oct. 26. I sent a check for $16.95 and have written to them twice, but haven't received the kit. I'd like to make the afghan for my grandson before he grows up. Can ACTION LINE help? Mrs. H.G.O., Cypress.

A. Your order has been found and you should be getting your kit soon, according to a spokesman for Heir-Loom. A spokesman for Woman's Day Magazine, 3801 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, which runs Heir-Loom's ads, told ACTION LINE she has had many complaints from readers who have not received afghan orders. She added that Woman's Day forwards all complaints to Heir-Loom "and to my knowledge they have taken care of all the complaints we sent."

List 2,000 Items Yet in Orbit

By VERN HAUGLAND

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 13th anniversary of the launching of the first American satellite, Explorer I, on Jan. 31, 1958, finds more than 2,000 man-made objects in orbit around the earth.

An even greater assortment of artificial satellites and space junk that formerly circled the earth — more than 2,700 items — has fallen out of orbit and, for the most part, has disintegrated upon plunging back into the atmosphere.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reports that in addition to some 2,048 earth-orbiting objects, 64 space probes or associated pieces of debris are out of reach of the earth, moving in wide-ranging orbits around the sun.

OF THESE far-away travelers, 18 probes and 27 pieces of debris are of U.S. origin, and 14 probes and five related fragments are products of the Soviet Union.

The oldest of them, the Soviet Lunik 1 and US. Pioneer 4, have been out there since January and March, 1959, respectively.

Although most of the earth satellites that have dropped out of orit burned up on re-entering the atmosphere, a few survived re-entry and plunged into oceans or land areas.

Included in the latter are six fragments identified as the charred remains of a Soviet satellite, Cosmos 316, launched Dec. 23, 1969.

One 240-pound piece of the spacecraft fell near Beaver, Okla., last Aug. 28, and another weighing 150 pounds was found near Pratt, Kan.

THE STATE Department notified the Soviet Embassy that the location and time of the impacts fit the orbital path of Cosmos 316, and that the recovered material could be reclaimed.

As of late January, the Russians have not yet acknowledged the notice. Presumably they are not eager to acknoledge that any of their spacecraft could have been a hazard to persons or property in the United States. If the back-from-space material goes unclaimed, it may eventually be distributed to interested scientists or organizations.

The oldest man-made spacecraft still in orbit is the Navy Vanguard 1 satellite and two associated spent rockets or fragments, launched March 17, 1958.

Next in duration of orbital flight are Vanguard 2 and its rocket, Vanguard 3, and Explorer 7 and piece of debris, all luanched in 1959 — in February, September and October, respectively.

Long since decayed — disappeared from oribt — are the world's first artificial satellites.

THEY WERE the Soviet Sputnik 1, launched Oct. 4, 1957, and gone from orbit by the following Dec. 1; Sputnik 2, launched Nov. 3, 1957, and decayed April 14, 1958; and the first U.S. satellite, Explorer 1, launched by the Army Jan. 31, 1958, before the Navy could send Vanguard into orbit. Explorer 1 disappeared from orbit only last March 31.

The NASA satellite situation report as compiled by the Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Md., for mid-January listed 302 U.S. satellite payloads and 1,238 associated spent rockets and fragments in earth orbit, along with 104 Soviet satellites and 352 pieces of Soviet space junk.

6 STATES SEARCHED FOR FIII; CAPTURE QUERIES REJECTED

How Can a 40-Ton, $8.5 Million Plane Vanish?

By PRESTON McGRAW

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — At 11:24 a.m. on Friday, Jan. 8, Lt. Col. Bruce D. Stocks, flying a sleek FB111A painted two battle camouflage colors of wavy green, checked in by radio.

He sounded like what he was — an experienced Air Force pilot on a routine flight. He was flying in clouds at 6,000 feet east of Grand Isle, La., headed for Mobile, Ala.

The pilot asked the air traffic route traffic control center in Houston to let him climb to 18,000 to escape the clouds. Permission was granted.

"I'm in the clear now would like to cancel IFR," Stocks said, referring to instrument flying rules. It was a clear winter day and he wanted to fly where his eyes would take him.

It was his last transmission. And where Stocks and his navigator, Maj. Billy C. Gentry, flew their fighter-bomber is a mystery.

The F111, an $8.5 million plane bigger than the four-engine world War II Flying Fortress, is lost. The Air Force, Civil Air Patrol and other aircraft flew 3,300 hours searching half a million square miles of Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Alabama, Oklahoma and Mississippi.

THERE IS EVEN more mystery because the plane was a member of the controversial F111 family which has been involved in politics and congressional infighting since before the first one was built. The F111 has been grounded twice and was taken out of service once in Vietnam.

There were more than 700 reports from people living in four states who thought they saw or heard a plane Jan. 8 that could have been the missing plane.

None has checked out.

Last Tuesday, the search for the plane was suspended. Nobody in the Air Force believes there is any chance the plane still is whole or that Stocks, 38, and Gentry, 36, are alive.

"We haven't given up hope — not yet," said Mrs. Stocks, the mother of four children. "But it gets more difficult with each passing day. It's worse now than the first day or two."

Mrs. Stocks did not even know her husband was going to fly the day he disappeared.

Because it is rare, if not unprecedented for such a large plane to vanish without a trace, the inevitable rumors have arisen. The missing F111 weighed 80,000 pounds, had a wingspan of 70 feet and its fuselage measured 73 feet, 6 inches.

THE AIR FORCE angrily rejects questions of the possibility the plane was flown to Cuba or some other foreign country. Officers admit it had enough fuel for such a flight.

Former Defense Secretary Robert McNamara ordered the contract for what was to have been an all service plane awarded to General Dynamics of Fort Worth over the advice of military commanders. That set off a congressional investigation.

As a result of the second grounding, General Dynamics was forced to put 274 F111 models, including the FB111A, through tests that no other military plane has ever been subjected to.

As the planes pass the tests — and particularly the variable wing structure — they are released to the Air Force, which gives them acceptance tests and puts them back into active service.

Mrs. Stocks said her husband had no qualms about flying the plane. He was a staunch defender of the craft, had complete confidence in them and enjoyed flying them, she said.

Not counting the missing plane, FB111S in their first 70,000 hours of flying, have had 20 accidents, with 13 destroyed and 11 persons killed, The Air Force said this is the best record of any fighter of modern times.

THE FB111A HAD some of the most sophisticated navigational and guidance equipment available.

"Really, this is where it begins to get a little hairy," an Air Force spokesman said. "If he had trouble with navigational equipment of any sort, this is where the mystery begins and the story ends."

Stocks and Gentry were flying in a cockpit that was an air-conditioned pod. If they got into trouble, all they had to do was pull a lever. An explosive would have blasted the pod from the fuselage of the plane.

A big parachute would have lowered them to the earth or to the water and the pod was fitted with radio so they could have asked for help as they descended if they wanted. If they came down in water, the pod would have floated indefinitely.

But not a sound has been heard from the radio transmitter in the pod, leading to the suspicion that the plane either crashed going straight down like a rocket or blew up in the air.

If Stocks and Gentry followed the normal test flight route from Carswell Air Force Base, which is across a runway from the General Dynamics plant, it would head from Fort Worth toward Waco, Tex.

The route then was to Matagorda, Sabine Pass and Grand Isle. If Stocks and Gentry made it to Mobile and turned back toward Fort Worth, they would have flown over Lafayette, La., and Lufkin, Tex.

AFTER STOCKS checked in with Houston, the Houston radar operator "was aware of the plane on his radar until it was five miles southwest of Mobile," the Air Force spokesman said.

There has been some suspicion that the plane went down in the Gulf of Mexico. But the spokesman said that it was not over the sea when the radar operator last saw it.

A heavy proportion of the searching was in east Texas around Lufkin.

Stocks, 38, was a native of Burley, Idaho. His wife and children live in Fort Worth. He was a Southeast Asia veteran and had fought in Vietnam. He had 210 hours in F111S.

Gentry was a native of Grapeland, Tex. He has a wife and three children who live in Fort Worth but the Air Force said he had been so recently assigned to F111S that his biography had not arrived.

The Air Force said that though the search has been suspended, "it is by no means terminated." Eventually, the Air Force expects to find out what became of it.

In an interview earlier in the week, a reporter asked Gen. John D. Ryan, Air Force chief of staff, "is there a possibility the plane is in Communist hands?"

"I hardly think that is a possibility," Ryan said coldly.

"Do you know what a Communist nation would pay for an inertial guidance system and weapons control system from an F111?" the reporter asked.

"I have no idea," Ryan said.

'BUT SPIRO ISN'T FAT . . .'

Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew, center, is flanked by U.S. Treasurer Dorothy Elston Kabis, left, and Helen Delich Bentley, federal maritime commission chairman, Saturday as she talks to newsmen. She said that while she has grown used to verbal attacks on her husband caricatures depicting the vice president as "big and fat" irritate her. "He is tall and slim," she told newsmen at a press conference before the Women's National Republican Club luncheon in New York.

Bike Steve Needs So Much Is Stolen

By BARBARA FRYER
Staff Writer

Thirteen-year-old Steven Donnelly Blair of Long Beach usually doesn't say much. But he did a lot of talking about his new 10-speed bike.

The 19-inch, drop-bar Schwinn Varsity was a Christmas present from the Los Angeles Legal Secretaries Association, the organization his mother belonged to until she was burned to death in a house fire 10 years ago. The same fire burnt Steve's legs so severely that he had to learn to walk all over again.

"Steve rode that bike everywhere during the holidays," said Mrs. Hope Blair, the great aunt whom Steve lives with now at 121 E. 53rd St. "He even rode it when he played basketball. He was so happy with it."

THAT HAPPINESS ended abruptly two weeks ago (Jan. 13) when Steve couldn't find the metallic blue bike among the racks of others at Lindbergh Junior High the first day he had taken it to school.

"I had locked it up and everything," the tall, shy youth said. "It was even licensed . . . No. 18184."

The bike, said Mrs. Blair, "was the delight of his life."

"He needed it to go to school and do errands. His legs ache when he does too much walking. He gets tired easy," she said.

The bike cost $90 and Mrs. Blair just can not afford to buy another one.

And if all that wasn't bad enough, Steve's old green bicycle was stolen the day after his new one was taken.

A WEEK LATER, though, several of Steve's friends found the bike, but it had been stripped.

"It's about to give up," Mrs. Blair said. "It needs new wheels, new tires."

"The new bike," said Steve, his eyes bright, "rode smooth, real smooth."

He grabbed the brochure that came with the new bike.

"Here's what it looked like," he said pointing to a picture in the brochure. Then he stared at it long after the visitor had turned her eyes away.

Wide Variety of Courses and Programs to Be Offered in Spring at LBCC

A large variety of courses and programs are being offered this spring for regular students and adults of the community at the Liberal Arts Campus, Business and Technology Campus and extension campuses of Long Beach City College. Most sources will be offered days and evenings for the convenience of students whose work schedules might otherwise conflict with educational opportunities. Among the offerings are several new courses of interest.

Seamanship 101, a complete basic course in seamanship and navigation (including nautical terminology, safety afloat, equipment requirements, rules of the road, boat handling, charts, compass and basic navigation), will be offered for the first time this Spring. A certificate is issued upon successful completion of the course.

SEVERAL SPECIAL programs will be available at the Business and Technology Campus:

— The Learning Center: individual programs for learning are set up for each student to improve skills in reading, writing, and mathematics; starting with the very basics. Interested persons can enroll at any time during the semester in room 203.

— English as a Second Language: for students new to this country and its language. Enroll at any time in the classroom at BTC.

— Americanization: citizenship classes for the foreign born desiring U.S. citizenship.

— Occupational Courses and Programs: for the development of new skills, retraining, and upgrading of a present vocation.

Saturday classes, originated last fall, will again be offered at BTC. Classes in art, reading, history, government and psychology are all available on Saturday mornings.

Library Science courses will be offered at the LAC library to assist students to use the resources in a systematic and efficient manner. The Library staff will instruct the classes, which are designed to provide the students with the skills needed to guide them to all the relevant information necessary to meet their research needs with a minimum expenditure of time. A foundation is prepared for future independent research.

The Home Economics Department will be offering many varied classes in different areas — to name a few: In the clothing area — Textile Fibers and Fabrics, Art in Apparel (an A..A. degree is given in this area and classes will be held at Hughes Jr. High School, Los Altos and Bay Shore Libraries) and Fashions in Knit Fabrics (at LEC and MEC). All clothing classes offered include knit construction.

IN THE AREA of Food and Nutrition — Basic Nutrition and Meal Preparation will be held at BTC and Gourmet Tips for Meal Planning will be at BTC and MEC.

Home Furnishing classes include — Household Equipment at LAC, which is concerned with how to buy appliances; Interior Decoration at BTC, JEC, MEC and the Los Altos and Bay Shore Libraries.

Retail Security is a new class offered in Police Science, which is open to the public with the permission of the instructor. The purposes, functions and practices of retail security; principles of security administration, investigations, photographic and electronic surveillance devices, including techniques for prevention of shoplifting and pilferage will be covered.

An analysis and interpretation of current world events and international relatitns with special reference to American foreign policy will be offered in World Affairs 101, which will be held at BTC, Bixby Park and MEC.

For an appointment to register or more information, contact the Student Personnel Office at LAC or the Counseling Office at BTC. Spring Schedules of Classes are available at all college locations and public libraries throughout the city.

Planning Unit Sets Debate

The citizen-participation aspect of the city's Community Analysis Program will be discussed by the City Planning Task Force at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Jewish Community Center library, 2601 Grand Ave.

Fred Squires, director of the Community Analysis Program, and Jivan Tabibian, social planning consultant, will be guest speakers.

Any interested resident of Long Beach is invited to attend, according to Mrs. Renee B. Simon, chairman of the City Planning Task Force, which is part of the Mayor's Conference on Community Affairs.

THE CITY'S Community Analysis Program recently contracted with a social planning consultant firm to develop the citizen-participation phase of its study, Mrs. Simon explained. Tabibian will explain the procedure to be used, and will present a sampling of the type of questions to be asked.

Mrs. Simon said the task force has determined that it should evaluate ways to improve communications between the citizens and ning agencies, and review task force seeks to enthe process of planning in Long Beach.

Convention hours are from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Sunday, the last day of the show.

Math, Speed Reading Classes Set

Modern math and speed reading classes open this week at the Armed Services YMCA. For participating servicemen there is no tuition — just a small book charge.

Classes are under the auspices of Long Beach City College's Extension Division and are worth three credit units.

Students must attend 80 per cent of the classes to get credit.

Math will begin Thursday and run twice weekly on Tuesday and Thursday from 7-10 p.m. Speed reading opens Monday, Feb. 8 and will go Monday and Wednesday from 7-10.

Both are nine week courses.

Ends Long Navy Duty

Navy Chief Quartermaster Owen F. Fairley of Long Beach has retired from the Navy after 37 years of active and reserve duty.

Fairley started his naval career in 1930 on the China gunboat USS Wilmington. His assignments took him all over the world, with one four-year break. His reserve affiliation was through Surface Division 11-5 at Los Alamitos.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: An era seems of expansion, diversification in your approach to career and daily living. Your activities and personality now tend to attract creative, younger people who involve you in further ventures. Today's natives strive to find an answer for everything, and usually have solutions worked out very quickly. Many of them have high musical talents.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Younger people claim more of your attention. Focus forward on the creative, expansive facets of your work.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Enjoy being friendly but not indiscreet in discussing your financial arrangements. Amenities relating to advancement of your career are favored.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Finding new agents, a variety of contacts becomes much easier — make a diligent search. Forgive skeletons in closets.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Much of what you do now will bring good returns in a few months. Colleagues may present you with a transaction before you hear about it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): This is an excellent time to work out details on important, long-term agreements, contracts, or to settle long-standing controversies, lump-sum and quit-claim. Travel, particularly if it connects with your work, is favored.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Laughter and good humor put a different perspective on things. You find later you have changed some of your attitudes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be alert and organize a lively week of career effort. Romance turns up in your path no matter where you're headed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Put your self out to make things pleasant for everybody around you. If you need help or a favor, now is a rather good time to ask for it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Make the most of your energy-peak; go all out to persuade people to see things your way. You can make a fair deal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your efforts to organize things pay off. There are yet some surprises in store, most of them pleasant. Your loved ones are full of secrets at the moment; don't pry.

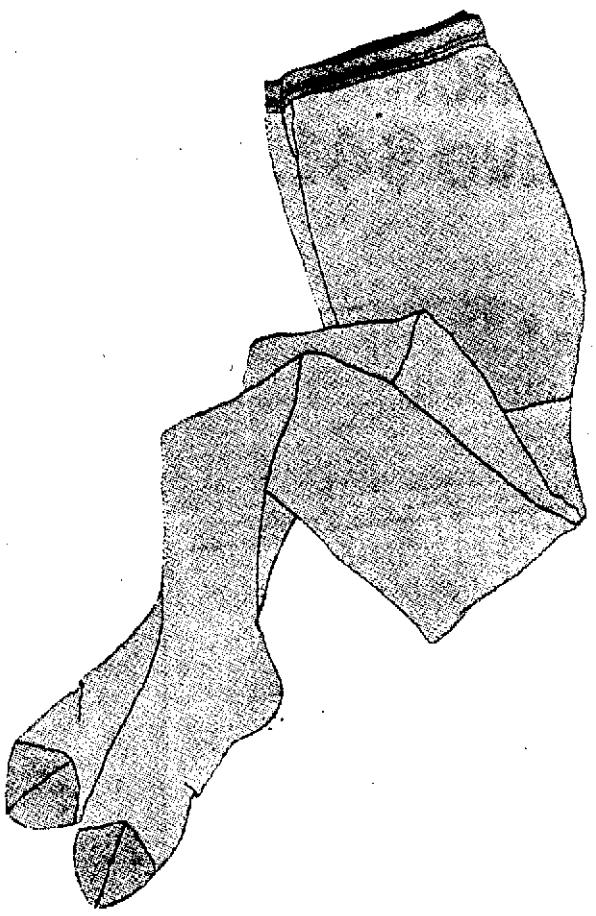

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Useful contacts are more available nearby. Review your resources. Coincidence brings you a break — cash in wherever you can.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Pay attention to morning day-dreams — the most fantastic ideas can be worked into fresh and productive enterprises.

KENNETH DAUT WITH WIFE AFTER RELEASE FROM DUTY ON JURY
Engineer Made Model Before Wife's Accident Freed Him From Confinement
—AP Wirephoto

Ex-Tate Juror Tells Ordeal: 'Could Only Sit and Sit and'

"There was nothing to do but sit and sit and sit. At times we didn't leave the sixth floor of the Ambassador Hotel for a week at a time, except to stand on the fire escape and get a little sun. That just about drives you out of your mind."

That was how highway engineer Kenneth Daut described his seven months of jury duty in the Tate-LaBianca murder trial, now in its penalty phase.

Daut was an alternate juror who was relieved of duty Friday because his wife was injured in a traffic accident.

JURORS ARE under orders not to talk specifically about the trial until it's over, but he said he thought the trial was a "disgrace."

"I thought it was like a circus," he said. "It took a lot more time than necessary."

Daut, 42, had been confined to the carefully guarded Ambassador Hotel in downtown Los Angeles with four other alternate jurors and 12 regular jury members and sat through the trial and deliberations at the Hall of Justice.

Saturday was his first day free of constant chaperoning by sheriff's deputies, newspapers that had been clipped before he was allowed to read them and seemingly endless time on his hands.

The day was "kind of funny," said his wife, Betty. "He had trouble remembering how to drive the car and he forgot his wallet."

"I'm very glad it's over," said Daut, who was relaxing at his Westchester home.

"IT WAS a great strain because there was absolutely nothing but time hanging on your hands from the time you got up in the morning until you went to bed at night."

"I'm going to have to get out of the habit of asking a deputy in a restaurant if it's all right if I go to the bathroom."

He said it was a relief to read a newspaper without some articles already snipped out and to watch TV news without deputies switching off the sound at certain points.

Jurors are kept from reading or hearing about the trial as well as other related crime stories.

Daut said he helped other jurors play practical jokes on the bailiffs who guarded them.

Also, he said, he learned to play cribbage, built a model airplane, played table tennis, exercised, swam and read 18 novels "about evehything in the world except law and murder crimes."

THE JURY convicted cult leader Charles Manson and three young women followers of the slaying of actress Sharon Tate and six others. It is now hearing arguments in the trial's penalty phase before imposing sentences of death or life imprisonment.

Snow, Cold Winds Plague Northeast

By United Press International

There was so much snow at Watkins Glen, N.Y., Saturday that the Grand Prix of snowmobile racing had to be postponed.

Sponsors of the Watkins Glen Race suffered much the same fate as the rest of upper New York and New England, a blizzard with locally heavy snow, high winds and frigid temperatures. They said the race had to be delayed because deep snow drifts prevented drivers from reaching the Glen.

Three to five inches of new snow fell across Vermont, New Hampshire, Eastern New York and Western Maine. Northern Pennsylvania had between one and two inches of new snow.

Hign winds added to the miseries of those who had to be outside in the storm. Gusts of 69 miles-per-hour were clocked at Youngstown, Ohio, and 65 mph winds were recorded at Cleveland. A 100-foot Ohio Highway Patrol radio tower at Cambridge was toppled and trees there were uprooted.

New York City escaped the miseries and temperatures climed into the high 40s, quickly melting scattered predawn snowfalls. But New Yorkers braced for a cold wave forecast to arrive Saturday night.

Grand Rapids got 4½ inches of snow but a city austerity budget that went into effect this week kept road crews from working overtime and residents prepared for a weekend of clogged streets.

Three men spent the night in their wrecked corporate plane after it crashed in a wooded area north of Reed City, Mich. One went for help at daybreak and a Coast Guard helicopter evacuated the other two, both of whom were seriously injured.

Traffic was moving again in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa where snow had fallen Friday.

Near zero cold hovered over the Great Lakes, where cold wave and gale warnings were posted. The winter shipping season through the Soo Locks at Sault St. Marie, Mich., was at a standstill after Coast Guard ice breakers helped the ore carrier Clark through McArthur Lock Friday. But it was the latest closing date ever.

Snow whipped by high winds which lowered visibility to near zero Saturday caused a 38-car chain reaction collision which injured 22 persons, three critically near Hopington, N.H.

Tons of Mail Stacked at N. Viet Embassy

PARIS (UPI) — Nine Americans led by an admiral's son stacked six tons of mail — containing 8 million letters and petitions — in front of the North Vietnamese delegation in Paris Saturday in protest against treament of U.S. prisoners of war in Indochina.

Onlooking police did not interfere and waited four hours before telling the demonstrators from Memphis, Tenn., and San Diego, Calif., to remove the mound of mail.

Joe McCain, 28, sporting a thick beard and a mock prisoner's uniform, said the demonstration was held "because they refuse to see us and to show 26 million Americans care."

THE MAIL in bags, carton and official U.S. government sacks, contained 8 million letters and petitions containing 18 million addresses.

"We have another 6 tons in a warehouse, but we didn't have the trucks to bring them," said McCain, son of the commander of the Pacific Fleet and brother of a prisoner in North Vietnam.

The group arrived at 10 a.m. in front of the gray stone legation building near the Luxembourg Gardens in four pickup vans. Denise Evans, 20, of San Diego, walked to the legation's door and knocked as the others quickly stacked the mail behind her on the sidewalk.

A North Vietnamese answered the door but refused to talk to Miss Evans, saying he did not understand English and slamming the window on the door.

When the demonstrators finished, a mound five feet high and 30 feet long covered the four-foot-wide sidewalk.

POLICE stepped in when the demonstrators began banging on the door. The group left a half-hour after they arrived, leaving the mound of mail on the sidewalk.

They returned shortly after 2 p.m. to load the mail back on the trucks.

During the demonstration that attracted crowds of Frenchmen and newsmen, the North Vietnamese inside the legation lowered a steel gate behind the door and kept all the windows shuttered.

The group said they would continue attempting to deliver the letters and would remain in Paris at least another week. They have been in the French capital for three weeks while attempting to see the North Vietnamese.

"We tried 8 or 10 times," McCain said. "We've sent letters, called them on the telephone. They refuse to see us. Sometimes they say they can't speak English and other times they say they can't speak French."

He said both groups decided dumping the mail was "the best way to demonstrate the concern of the American people."

THE OTHER Memphis women, Mrs. Bonny Volden and Mrs. Charlotte Lannom who came to ask about their husbands, did not take part in the demonstration.

A spokesman for the women said they disagreed with the demonstration and feared it would hinder chances of a promised meeting they have scheduled for Monday.

Miss Volden's husband has been a prisoner of the North Vietnamese for seven years. Mrs. Lannom's husband has been missing in action for three years.

The demonstrators Saturday were David Jerkins, 21, Ronald Watkins and Charles Browlee, 28, and Mrs. Mary Jane Lane, 24, all of Memphis. The others were Lee Dinapoli, 50, Peter Nasmyth 27, Denise Evans, 20, Bill Stewart, 40 and McCain.

10 Sought in Carson Kick Death

Sheriff's homicide detectives are seeking 10 men in connection with the slaying of a Carson man who was beaten and kicked to death early Saturday.

Detectives said Roger Sanchez Silva, 37, of 23715 S. Idabel Ave., became involved in an argument with the 10 outside the Villa Room bar, 22959 S. Avalon Blvd., about 2:15 a.m.

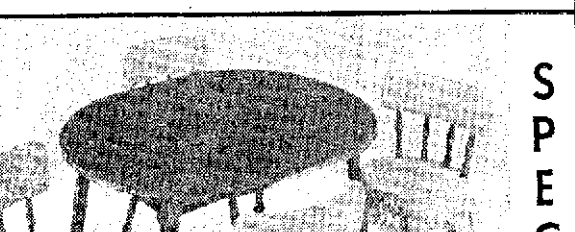

They said the victim was knocked to the ground, beaten and kicked. He died in Harbor General Hospital shortly after 9 a.m.

FUNNIES

THERAPY

LONDON (UPI) — Executive, forget your worry beads. Hugh Spencer has devised a far better treatment for your hangups: custom-built sand boxes.

They come in walnut, rosewood or teak. They stand at coffee-table level, just right for doodling or building castles from the comfort of a plush desk chair.

Spencer, a Canadian-born designer, says the sand box will sell for $360 and the sand, an estimated $96.

For the ultra-fastidious director-types reluctant to dab manicured fingers in the sand, an extra: a multipronged, specially-designed gadget for drawing pretty patterns in the sand. Price: $84.

LOCKLESS

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — John L. Mertz hauled his landlords into court because they removed the lock he had bought as protection in what he said was a high-crime area.

But the landlords won, because they are the authorities at New Jersey State Prison at Rahway and Mertz, serving a sentence for armed robbery, isn't allowed to have a private lock on his cell door.

Superior Court Judge John E. Bachman ruled last weekend that Mertz isn't entitled to recover the $1.25 he paid for the lock.

MARSHAL

DODGE CITY, Kan. (AP) — There must have been a stirring in the long shadows of history — among the dim shapes of Bat Masterson, the Earp Brothers, the rustlers and the gamblers.

Dodge City's marshal finally was put down.

By vote of the City Commission Monday, the law enforcement duties were turned over to a man with the prosaic title of police chief.

They kept the old title though. An honorary marshal will maintain "the historic character and heritage of the city," the resolution says.

NO HELP

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Contractors say the efforts of an antinoise group to get pneumatic jackhammers muffled are useless because that's not the problem.

The noise, they said Monday, doesn't come from the jackhammer itself, but the tip of the machine coming into sharp and repeated contact with the sidewalk.

FINK FUR

East Lansing, Mich. (UPI) — Fink coats may be in high fashion in a few years if Michigan State University scientists can work it out.

A fink, the result of mating a ferret with a mink, would ideally have the lush fur of the mink and the calm disposition of the ferret, they say.

"I don't know if the mink will tear the ferret apart in the mating process, but we're going to try it this spring," said Dr. Richard Aulerich, head of the university's mink research. "We'll probably tranquilize the mink in the natural mating or use artificial breeding."

ANTS?

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — "Ants aren't all they are reported to be," say Drs. George and Jeanette Wheeler.

The husband-wife researchers have devoted years to studying the creatures, heroes of fables on industriousness.

"Whenever we view an anthill we get the impression of a tremendous amount of activity, but that is merely because there are so many ants and they all look alike," the Wheelers concluded.

"The individual ants spend a great deal of time just loafing. And, worse than that, the worker ants, who are all females, spend a lot of time primping."

PORNO LOSS

READING, England (AP) — The Reading police have abandoned an inquiry into pornography. Somebody stole all the books and pictures the police had gathered.

GAUNT

SEATTLE (AP) — There are a couple of good reasons why county Assessor Allen Morgan appears thin and sad.

He has lost a lot of weight. And the loss led to another — and the downcast expression.

Morgan says his $550 ring slipped off a thinner finger when he withdrew his hand from a pocket in a restaurant. He said he heard something hit the tile floor but didn't realize what it was until he got back to his office.

JAMMED

FRAMINGHAM, Mass. (AP) — Two would-be robbers spoiled their own act Friday night.

The pair, described as "skinny kids," went into a Cumberland Farms grocery store and demanded the clerk give them the money in the cash register.

Before the clerk could comply, one of gun. The slug went the youths fired his into the cash register and jammed the works. It couldn't be opened and the pair fled with no loot.

HOWLER

CASSINO, Italy (UPI) — What do you do when you meet a hungry wolf in the countryside?

Maria Cellucci did the first thing that crossed her mind — she poured a bucketful of milk on it.

It worked. The wolf lapped up the milk and let her go.

WIZARD

AVELLINO, Italy (UPI) — Antonio Battista, mayor of the village of Montefredane and a self-styled wizard, said he knows he will die Sept. 28, 1973.

He is so sure of it that he unveiled a bronze bust of himself Wednesday with the death date engraved on the pedestal.

REAL BLAST

ELVINS, Mo. (UPI) — Delano Walker said Tuesday he was willing to "take all the responsibilities" for what might happen if logs stolen from his home are burned. In order to find out "who's been stealing my stuff" after several thefts, Walker had hollowed out four pieces of firewood and filled them with quarter sticks of dynamite. Two of the logs were stolen over the weekend.

Reagan, Brock Hailed By State GOP Panel

By BOB HOUSER
Political Writer

SACRAMENTO — Republican State Central Committee delegates Saturday night cheered the philosophic victories of two of their champions — Gov. Ronald Reagan and U.S. Sen. William Brock of Tennessee.

Reagan, who introduced Sen. Brock for a convention dinner speech, was cheered when dinner guest heard the announcement — only a few hours old — that the Federal Office of Economic Opportunity had upheld the Governor's veto of the California Rural Legal Assistance program.

Brock, whose November Senatorial victory over veteran Albert Gore was hailed by the Nixon Administration as one symbol of the Senate's gain in ideological strength for administration philosophies, based his speech on the theme of stemming the flow of power and resources to Washington "and returning it to the people."

THE GOVERNOR, obviously triumphant in the face of predictions that OEO would override his veto of CRLA, said he has agreed to permit a short term extension of the federal CRLA grant, which expires in six months.

"This will insure," he said, "that there is no interruption in necessary legal assistance and will enable us to begin the transition from the present program to one which better meets the needs of the poor who require legal services."

Reagan said he has directed the state OEO to move immediately to develop a program of legal assistance to the rural poor "through a more responsible program" of professional legal aid through local bar associations.

He said he will provide a smooth transition when CRLA is phased out next July.

The governor left no doubt as to his own view of the proportions of his victory over CRLA proponents when he rubbed it in a little: "I would hope that the CRLA officials will cooperate with us in this transition period and that they would begin to remember that they have an overriding responsiblity to provide proper legal services for those who truly require them."

SEN. BROCK, billed as keynoter for this biennial reorganization meeting of the GOP State Committee, urged this state's Republicans to "join a crusade to stop the erosion of individual initiative, incentive and responsibility that is threatening to destroy our free society.

"The strength of this nation lies not in Washington but in the individual and his depth of concern and his willingness to seize the initiative."

Brock endorsed President Nixon's program to share federal income tax revenue with the states, calling it an effort to return the power for local decision making to the people.

At a news conference Brock said he is tired of one party blaming the other for the accrual of governmental sins, noting that "all of us participated in the mistakes of several decades."

A veteran of eight years in the House before his Senate victory, Brock stressed his opposition to the congressional seniority system. House Republicans abolished seniority in its ranks, he said, and "the prospects are excellent" for merit selection among Senate GOP ranks as well.

MAJOR interest Saturday continued to center on today's biennial election of state officers, particularly the vice chairmanship. The winner would take over official party reins for the two years through 1974 when Gov. Reagan may be running for U.S. Senate against incumbent Democrat Alan Cranston.

Reagan has pulled out all stops in behalf of his former business and transportation agency director Gordon Luce, San Diego savings and loan executive. All GOP constitutional officers were in Luce's camp Saturday as well as the Republican County Chairmen's Association.

SEN. WILLIAM BROCK
'All Participated in Errors'

Underdog Cliff Anderson Jr., San Marino attorney, kept wading against the Reagan tide however, trying to persuade the some 1,200 delegates that a vote for him would not be a slap at the governor.

His victory, he said, would say only that "the people who are the voting delegates of this organization want one of their people — that they will go along with the governor — but they want one of their people who's worked up through the ranks rather than somebody who has been imposed at the top."

Anderson charged in a Saturday news conference that GOP volunteers had been shunted aside in elections by professional campaign organizations "to our detriment."

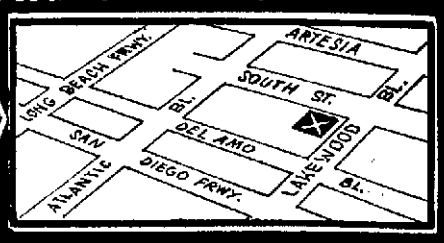

Luce agreed, in a separate news conference, that "volunteers never get enough credit" and called for a balance between them and the professionals.

Much of Anderson's hope Saturday lay in whether the convention uses a secret ballot today. He thinks he could pick up votes if delegates were not forced to cast an apparent anti-Reagan ballot.

Gordon Young to Retire After 33 Years With Bank of America

Gordon C. Young, Long Beach and Los Angeles banker, will retire on February 1 after a career of over 33 years with the Bank of America.

Commencing in 1937 at the Long Beach Main Office where he was a bookkeeper and teller and an assistant cashier and lending officer at First and Pine Branch, he was transferred in the 1950's to the Los Angeles Main Office and promoted to assistant vice president. During his five and one half years there in charge of all real estate lending Young financed some of the West's largest building operations. Included were both Wherry and Capehart housing projects for the military at both the Nellis and Vandenberg Air Force bases.

He became a recognized authority on financing of large housing projects and shopping centers. One of these centers in Arizona, financed jointly with a bank there received nationwide attention as the first to be built with a closed - over - air - conditioned mall.

SOME OF THE other firsts in his financing in the 1950's were radiant heated homes, tilt-up factory buildings, and his negotiation and closing of the first loans in the nation for FHA housing for the elderly.

GORDON C. YOUNG
Banker Retires

Last May, when he returned to lending duties with the bank in Downey and Los Angeles, Young had completed 10 years in public relations and business development at the Long Beach main office, thus rounding out 22 of his 33 years as a Long Beach banker.

Young has been active in or headed fund campaigns for Community Chest, United Way and Red Cross. He was chairman in 1964 of the last separate Red Cross campaign, and the same year headed this city's first United Crusade while serving also as the area vice chairman of the combined Red Cross and United Way fund drive. A past chairman of Red Cross and Salvation Army, and past commander of the Military Order of the World Wars, he has served on the boards of these organizations as well, and on the United Way and Long Beach AID boards.

IN RED CROSS Young has served on the Los Angeles-Orange Counties regional Blood Council, the County Fund Raising Council, and for two terms was a Red Cross member of the Los Angeles County United Crusade Committee. He now is in his second term on the Western Area Advisory Council, San Francisco, which advises the national board of governors in Washington on Red Cross matters in 11 western states.

He has twice served as vestryman on the board of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Long Beach, and for 10 years was parish treasurer, installing several years ago a complete computer accounting system, still a rarity in churches. A retired colonel of the Army's Adjutant General's Corps, Young is active in numerous military and patriotic organizations, and is a past vice commander-in-chief of the national Military Order of World Wars while presently serving on the Order's general staff.

Young lives at 3855 Gardenia Ave., Long Beach with his wife, Margaret. Their son, Stephen is a student at Long Beach City College. Barbara, their daughter, who is a graduate of Mills College, Oakland, received her Master's degree in anthropology at Columbia University, where she is working on her doctorate.

GOP Organizer Potter Will Talk

Political Editor

J. Lee Potter, Republican National Committeeman for Virginia and a veteran GOP organizer in the Southern states, will be principal speaker at the Lincoln Day Dinner of the 32nd Congressional District Republican Central Committee Feb. 10 in Rochelle's Banquet Room, 3333 Lakewood Blvd.

Potter, now president of Capitol Hill Associates, Inc., owners and developers of the new Dwight D. Eisenhower National Republican Center in Washington, D.C., which houses the national GOP headquarters, started his Washington political service as special assistant to Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell in 1954.

He worked the South for the 1956 Eisenhower-Nixon ticket and thereafter was made director of Operation Dixie to develop Republican organizations in Southern states. He was Southern coordinator for Nixon's 1960 presidential campaign.

Rep. Bob Wilson, R-San Diego, appointed Potter executive director of the National Republican Congressional Committee, where he served for three years, 1967-69.

He was Virginia state Republican chairman for six years and has been that state's national committeeman since 1964.

The Lincoln Day Dinner here will start with a social hour at 6:30 p.m., dinner at 7:30.

I. LEE POTTER

PFP CLINIC

The Peace and Freedom Party announced it will open a free income tax clinic Monday in its headquarters at 1263 Pine Ave.

C. T. Weber, the party's South state chairman, said the clinic will be open from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday on a weekly basis until mid-April.

MRS. BARON ELECTED

Mrs. Jackie Baron, field assistant to Congressman Richard T. Hanna, D-Huntington Beach (34th District), has been elected co-chairman of the district's Democratic State Central Committee. Fred Harbor, former city manager of Buena Park and Cypress, was named chairman. Mrs. Baron is a Lakewood resident.

GEN. WALT ADDRESS

Gen. Lewis W. Walt, assistant commandant of the Marine Corps, will address the Americanism Educational League's 44th anniversary dinner in the Airport Marina Hotel, Los Angeles, Feb. 8, one week after his retirement from 34 years as a Marine Corps officer.

Alexander J. Miller, league president and dinner chairman, said Gen. Walt "will make a major statement on America's present cold and hot war situation." Harry von Zell, radio and TV personality, will be master of ceremonies.

Walter Knott, founder of Knott's Berry Farm, will receive the league's Free Enterprise Award. Mrs. Frank R. Seaver will receive its American Patriot Award. The league is headquartered at Knott's Berry Farm.

Lakewood Councilman Mark Hannaford will discuss the Feb. 5 special school tax election in a talk for the Lakewood Democratic Club at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Simon Bolivar Park, 3300 E. Del Amo Blvd., Lakewood.

BELLFLOWER DEMOS

William Kerr, manager of the unemployment insurance division, Norwalk office of the State Department of Human Resources, will speak for the Bellflower Democratic Club at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Bellflower Schools administration building.

New club officers are: Jack Abeelen, president; Bob York, vice president; Ellen Garland, recording secretary; O. B. Williamson, corresponding secretary, and Mary Lewis, treasurer.

Officers of the club's women's division are: Faye Wills, president; Nillie Cornell, vice president; Mayris White, secretary, and Helen Cullen, treasurer.

SAND AND SURF BIG ATTRACTIONS

It Might as Well be Spring

Southern California's "unusual" weather continued Saturday, luring thousands of persons to beaches from Laguna Beach to Malibu. Independent, Press-Telegram photographer Tom Shaw caught these scenes while riding with Lifeguard Lt. Larry Hoffman patroling the Long Beach strand. A young mother offers a helping hand to her toddler, a discarded Christmas tree is a sentinel at water's edge and two lads engage in a soggy sand fight. Saturday's temperature in Long Beach rose to 79; predicted high today is 70.

Even Comely Lass a Bug Hunter's Suspect

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

The arriving lady passenger from South America wore a snug-fitting sweater that so complemented her endowments it aroused the attention of one of the inspectors with the Department of Agriculture.

Secreted beneath the sweater were two guavas.

The fruit was found to contain potentially harmful fruit fly larvae.

The incident was just one of more than 47,000 fruit and plant pest interceptions made during 1970 by "bug hunters" of the department's Plant Quarantine Division assigned to the Long Beach-Los Angeles port complex and Los Angeles International Airport.

IN ANOTHER case inspectors noted a woman arriving from Sweden had placed her coat on a bench while going through customs. After clearing customs the woman was asked for her coat.

Inside the sewn-up sleeve was a four-pound package of prohibited meat.

The meat could have carried the highly infectious foot-and-mouth disease.

Eugene H. Davidson, inspector-in-charge of the Agricultural Research Service in San Pedro, claimed that if the disease were to get a foothold in the U.S. it would cost the livestock industry $200 million a year.

The department's inspectors are trained not only to look for potentially diseased plants and fruits that people attempt to smuggle into the country but they are taught to look for disease carriers in unsuspected places.

A LOAD OF USED tractors was being unloaded from a ship in Los Angeles Harbor. They had been cleaned and freshly painted. However, a close inspection revealed pockets of soil under the fenders.

The soil was contaminated by the dreaded golden nematode, a tiny eel-like worm capable of reducing the U. S. tomato crop yield by 85 per cent.

The tractors were steam cleaned and then released.

The Port of Los Angeles is the U. S. "home port" for several passenger cruise ships plying between here and Mexico.

An inspection upon the return to Los Angeles of one of the ships recently revealed that lime leaves in the ship's stores were infected with citrus blackfly.

"This plant pest poses a direct threat to citrus crops valued at $400 million a year," according to Davidson.

"The citrus blackfly can reduce a citrus tree to unproductivity more quickly

BEACH COMBING

MALCOLM EPLEY

EVEN the crime front has its brighteners. Today a couple of incidents wherein naively cooperative gals of the area virtually forced the loot upon the crooks.

First, there is this teller at a savings and loan office here who has always had this thing about Hugh O'Brien, the actor often identified with his most famed role, that of Lawman Wyatt Earp.

Well, she had closed her window to do some other work when she saw, in the line by an adjoining open window, a tall, dark and handsome guy who was a near dead-ringer for Earp — er O'Brien.

Eyes a-flutter, she opened her window and gave him the "can I help you?" call. He came immediately.

"Have you seven one hundred dollar bills?" he asked.

"Why yes," she said, counting in the drawer. "I think I even have nine."

"I'll take them," said Wyatt O'Brien, pointing a gun through the window.

NOW, let's go to a street in the totsy residence district above San Pedro where a truck with TV SERVICE painted on the side is parked at curbside.

Presently, a housewife leaves her home to drive to a P-TA meeting. When she's out of sight the truck moves up and into the driveway. Presently, two men from the truck come out the front door, lugging a large tv set.

This is observed by the lady next door, who call to ask if the men are taking the set out for repair. They say that's it.

"My set needs service," she says. "Will you take it too?"

Well, yes, they will and do.

That's the last either owner has seen of the tv sets. And it's easy to imagine a couple of thieves in a bar, lifting a glass in appreciation of the cooperation of a certain Palos Verdes housewife.

WHILE we're on the subject of pilferage, of which there is a lot, just where do you hide your valuables around the home?

Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Larson were robbed of a coin collection in December. They thought it was cleverly hidden way back in a closet.

The policeman who investigated told them that 95 per cent of the people hide valuables in such places and that's right where the robber goes first. Then he checks cedar chests, dresser drawers and under the bed.

That gives you an idea of where not to hide the stuff. Of course I can't suggest any specifics about where to cache it. Too many robbers read this column.

IN fact, one citizen has noted that when Beach Combing runs an inch or so short, almost invariably the "filler" in the space below is one of those one-paragraph stories we carry about house and store robberies. He asked slyly if that was significant.

No, I think it's just the way the breaks go in making up the paper. I've noticed it myself, and I suppose local robbers always look there to see if they've made Beach Combing.

All readers are welcome. If you're out there, fella shame on you. Change your ways before it's too late.

SIGHT to shake confidence: The operator of a downtown health food store, getting a take-out order at a restaurant across the street. It consisted of a big cheeseburger, a gob of French fries with spicy sauce, and a soft drink of the belly-wash variety.

VITAL MARSHES ARE VANISHING

SACRAMENTO — More than two thirds of Southern California's marshes and tidelands — key in the regeneration of marine life — have disappeared since 1900 and 40 per cent of the remainder is threatened.

John W. Speth of the California Department of Fish and Game pleaded for protection of Southern California marshes and tidelands Saturday before the annual convention here of the Fisheries and Wildlife Societies, citing both past and threatened future destruction.

Two of the key areas now under the developer's gun are Upper Newport Bay and tidelands and marshes at the Seal Beach Naval Weapons Station, he said.

"At the turn of the century, California possessed some 381,000 acres of marshes and mudflats scattered along its coastline from Del Norte to San Diego, County. Today we have about 126,000 remaining — a 67-per-cent reduction. Only 8,500 acres of this amount remain in

Honors Mark Achievement of Schools Now Threatened

By NOEL SWANN
Staff Writer

The plaque might go unnoticed among others on the wall. And, at first reading, the inscription makes no major impact.

But the award holds a special place in the halls of the Long Beach Board of Education building at 701 Locust Ave.

It is the Pacemaker Award of 1967 presented by the National Education Association of the United States and Parade Magazine.

In a nutshell, the plaque honors the Long Beach Unified School District for "leading the way to better education for youth." But it really means much more than it says.

It means the district was singled out among all others in California and scores of others across the nation for the excellence of its educational system.

That's the type of acclaim a school district administration naturally cherishes. A reputation to be jealously guarded.

And when such an achievement is threatened with disruption or possibly even destruction, the people who helped to fashion, hone and polish the educational program become understandably upset.

And it is with this sense of frustration that school Supt. W. Odie Wright views the upcoming tax override election Tuesday, Feb. 9.

"The future of our public local schools for many years to come rests on the decision of the voters," says Wright.

"If the majority votes 'Yes', we'll be able to maintain the high standard of education we've built up over the years. But, if the majority votes 'No', we'll have to begin dismantling one of the outstanding school systems in America."

THAT, AS Wright sees it, is the issue at stake when the voters decide whether or not to increase the maximum school tax rate from its present ceiling of $2.95 to $4.12 per $100 of assessed valuation.

The last maximum rate was set 15 years ago, and in the face of dwindling state and federal support and mounting inflation, the district simply cannot maintain the quality of education that has put Long Beach several notches above its rivals.

Just how good is the Long Beach educational system that the voters are being asked to support?

"Well, the Pacemaker Award speaks for itself," Wright says. But the myriad facets of the system that led to the winning of the award and have kept Long Beach in the forefront deserve closer inspection.

ONE SIGNIFICANT indicator is the dropout rate in Long Beach which is less that half the national aver-

NEW MISSION FOR FIRE ENGINE

John Wangsess Jr. and his bride, the former Jayne Patterson, prepare to climb into 1913 Model T fire truck as its owner, Long Beach fireman Herb Bramley, prepares to drive them away following their wedding Saturday at Our Savior Lutheran Church. It was pretty much an all-fire department affair: the bride's father is Battalion Chief W. J. What did Al Parvin tell SEC about Bill Douglas?

CLARK MOLLENHOFF

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Albert B. Parvin has insisted that secrecy cloak 97 pages of the testimony he gave before the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) on his dealings with Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

The 97 pages of testimony deal with the operations of the Parvin Foundation which he established in 1961, and that paid Douglas $12,000 a year as president until his resignation a year ago. SEC lawyers have permitted the testimony to remain secret rather than become involved in delays they say would only stall the fraud action brought in connection with the manipulation of Parvin Dohrmann stock.

But the secrecy Parvin has imposed only deepens the mystery around the whole Parvin-Douglas relationship, for there is already enough information on the public record of the SEC to demonstrate that Al Parvin was not "just another businessman."

THE DEFENDERS OF Justice Douglas have contended that Parvin was "just a businessman" or "an interior decorator," and have discounted the general allegations in Congress that Al Parvin was indeed a front for a group of Mafia figures in Las Vegas gambling casinos.

Over a period of the last nine years, Justice Douglas has been paid more than $100,000 from the Parvin Foundation. The foundation was started in 1960 after Parvin sold the Flamingo Hotel and Casino to Morris Lansburg for $10,000,000.

A "finders fee" of $200,000 was paid to Meyer Lansky, a Florida gambling figure who has been identified in many hearings as the Mafia's money man. The agreement for Lansky to receive the $200,000 "finder's fee" in the sale was signed by Albert Parvin and Lansky on May 12, 1969.

The agreement called for Lansky to collect $25,000 a year from the Flamingo over a period of eight years, and the $2 million received by Parvin above his original investment went into the Parvin Foundation.

THE SALE OF THE Flamingo didn't mean Parvin was getting out of Las Vegas gambling activities. His Parvin Dohrmann firm bought the Fremont Hotel and Casino in 1965, and has broadened its base in Las Vegas gambling since then with the purchase of the Stardust and the Aladdin. He has done some negotiating on the possibility of buying the Riviera.

In testimony, Parvin has admitted he wasn't a corporate officer who kept at arm's length from the gambling operations. He related that two of his employes, Edward Levinson and Edward Torres, gave him nightly reports on operations at the casinos and hotel.

Levinson was a business partner with Robert G. (Bobby) Baker in the Serv-U Vending Company and in other enterprises involving Fred B. Black Jr., a Washington representative for North American Aviation.

Parvin has stated under oath he personally told Levinson he could no longer work at the Fremont after being indicted on federal income tax charges involving "skimming" of money from the top of the gambling winnings.

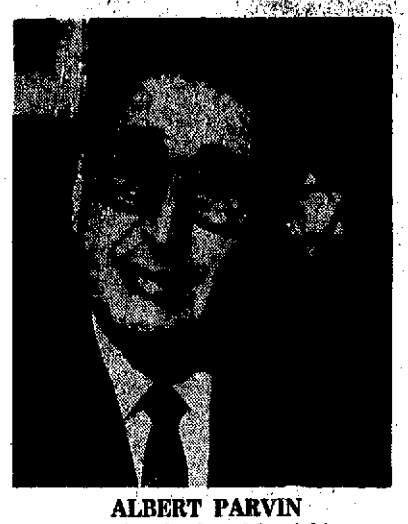

WILLIAM O. DOUGLAS
One of his books . . .

A story in Life magazine had identified Levinson as one who delivered cash to Meyer Lansky in Florida for transmission to Swiss bank accounts. This action reportedly made Levinson vulnerable in the eyes of the Nevada Gaming Commission, which regulates gambling in that state.

PARVIN ADMITTED under oath that Torres was also under indictment on the same internal revenue charge involving the "skimming" at the night club. However, Parvin said he did not take action to separate Torres from the Fremont operations.

Parvin said Torres was such an efficient manager at the Fremont that Parvin reluctantly agreed to modify an employment contract to let Torres buy a piece of the Riviera. Parvin said he made the deal with Torres because negotiations for the purchase of the Aladdin were then on and Parvin was eager to have Torres available to manage that business also.

. . . inspired a friendship

Torres, who was also a partner with Bobby Baker in Serv-U Vending, testified that he never had met Bobby Baker. Torres bought his interest in the vending company through Ed Levinson and knew nothing of the details or the other principals.

Levinson took the Fifth Amendment before the Senate Rules Committee on his dealings with Bobby Baker on Serv-U and other contracts.

Torres and Levinson have contended that their casino interests have been purchased with straight bank loans, but there has never been any depth inquiry into just how these loans were arranged. Nor has there been any more than superficial inquiry into the source of the funds that Parvin used to purchase the Flamingo in the period after it was opened by Bugsey Siegel. Siegel died in a hail of bullets in his Hollywood home, and his successor also was shot to death a short time after bowing out of the Flamingo in the mid-1950s.

Certainly, the record shows at this stage that Albert Parvin was in an interesting business and had known many interesting Las Vegas types in the 25 years since he went west from Chicago to sell his interior decorating services in Las Vegas.

His link with Justice Douglas started in 1960 after he read Douglas' book, "America Challenged." Parvin said the book inspired him to start the Albert Parvin Foundation as a vehicle to promote the thinking and writing of Justice Douglas. Within a few months, the arrangement had the two on an "Al" and "Bill" relationship.

More of the life and relationship of "Bill" Douglas and "Al" Parvin is certain to be pulled into the open in the months ahead as the House of Representatives heats up the second round of its attempt to impeach Douglas.

The main thrust this year by the Douglas critics will be to get access to the secret SEC testimony by Parvin or get Parvin himself to testify in an open hearing.

They complain that, in clearing Douglas of any wrongdoing during the last session, the committee headed by Sen. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., didn't call either Douglas or Parvin to testify. The critics want to change that this time.

Building houses and pride

THE MAYOR'S CONFERENCE on Community Affairs set up a task force to study Long Beach housing problems something over a year ago.

With the Rev. C. LeRoy Doty as chairman, the task force did a thorough job, recommended a massive program and then discovered that its work has just begun.

"Now go out and see that something happens," the 31 task force members were told in effect by the mayor's conference.

If the task force does that job as well as it did the job of finding out what ought to happen, Long Beach will lead the nation's cities in turning blight into beauty, and in helping the poor turn from desperation to dignity.

For make no mistake about it, housing is at the core of urban problems. When people live among ugliness, squalor and crime, their hopes are crushed. The defeat of their own dreams can turn into defeat for an entire city.

LONG BEACH DOES NOT have the problems of New York, Chicago, Oakland or Los Angeles. But it will have them if it does nothing more than congratulate itself for not having them.

The task force proposes action to add 3,000 to 4,000 housing units each year for a decade. To achieve this central part of its program, private developers, nonprofit organizations and the city's Redevelopment Agency will have to learn what federal aid is available, what profit possibilities exist, what areas have the worst needs.

The task force proposes that this mammoth job start with a pilot project in the area around Polytechnic High School. We hope the City Council orders an immediate study of the possibilities of such a project.

THAT WOULD BE the best way of saying "thank you" to a group of citizens who worked hard and thoughtfully to figure out what can be done about Long Beach housing problems.

It would be the best way, too, to encourage them to tackle with the same spirit the much harder job of making their hopes and the hopes of the ill-housed come true.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Each must judge

EDITOR:

One writer asserts that Long Beach will become a second-rate city if we have second-rate schools. We also become a second-rate city when our citizens vote down airport expansion, condemn the Queen Mary, start and follow through with recalls and in general condone antiprogress programs. Are they wrong? Who is to judge any person's feelings when he reads that student and faculty groups (Professors McGee, Marcuse, etc.) are now preparing to honor Angela Davis, that Millikan High's ROTC building has been burned down, that students boycott their own discipline hearings, that demonstrators think they are entitled to "one-way" constitutional rights in heckling down speakers and government officials?

In the end, each of us, must use our own judgment as to what is right and what is wrong. Some of us are gosh-darned concerned

Long Beach OLIVER KURTZ

All should help

EDITOR:

Let us hope the general support will be overwhelmingly favorable in the upcoming local school district tax election.

The "Save Our Schools" campaign currently under way reflects a fine dedication of a responsible element in the community closing ranks to accomplish a goal eminently worthwhile.

Success for the school issue cannot fail to promote the civic welfare in ways readily apparent. The intangible dividends are incalculable.

It is an investment consonant with faith in the future.

FROM OUR STATE BUREAU

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Reagan took a newsman to task at his press conference last week, accusing him in essence of conducting a biased investigation into Medi-Cal's financial mess.

He was, he said, "a little put out" that the cited reporter particularly and reporters generally have not pointed out that cuts were "mandated" by legislation enacted in 1968.

"I would find it much more pleasing to me if someone would mention along the line that these horrifying cuts that I have made in Medi-Cal so far were mandated on me by the Legislature and not something I dreamed up in my own mind, but there seems to be a news boycott on that."

In other words, Reagan feels, one reporter in particular and reporters in general have been digging out only that material in the Medi-Cal situation which makes the governor look like a bad guy and, he further feels, that ain't fair.

Whether or not newspapers have, in fact, failed to point out that the Medi-Cal cuts were the responsibility of legislative action rather than the governor's, or whether they were, in fact, mandated at all by the legislature, are topics for another day.

BUT THE GOVERNOR'S allegation that a newsman conducted a biased investigation is interesting when viewed in the light of the "investigation" Reagan ordered into the activties of the California Rural Legal Assistance attorneys.

Lewis K. Uhler, state director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, said when he released the results of the investigation that the survey had as its only goal an objective analysis of CRLA's performance with respect to the legal needs of the poor.

James Kilpatrick, whose column runs on these pages, wrote after reading the 203-page report that it was "about as objective as a nonpartisan evaluation of the Chicago police prepared by Eldridge Cleaver."

As a further indication that the report was prepared with the intent of accumulating only material damaging to CRLA, Reagan had Uhler, at the same time, prepare an alternate plan for providing legal services to the poor.

So that, obviously, the governor's intent to put CRLA out of business could not be thwarted by the contention that the poor would then be without access to legal aid.

Asked if there was an inconsistency in directing Uhler to prepare, at the same time, an objective report and a replacement program, the governor said, "No, because from the very first when they started checking up on the hundreds of complaints that we were getting in the program they know my policy, which was that if . . . it developed that this led to a veto that I wanted, as I wanted for four years, a concrete proposal of a program that would meet the problem of the needy, the rural poor."

PREVIOUS EFFORTS to get Washington to enact program changes failed, he said.

CRLA's performance obviously has not convinced its critics that it does more good than bad. Kilpatrick, for example, concludes despite Uhler's "thoroughly sloppy" report that the agency is "not so much concerned with protecting some poor devil in trouble as it is with torpedoing the whole structure of rural community life."

But that it has done some good — considerable good — is also obvious. It had to threaten court action to get the state to enforce its own laws concerning sanitary facilities for farm hands, for example. Gov. Reagan has now taken up the issue and frequently prevailed upon farmers during last year's campaign to observe the law, but only after CRLA brought it forcibly to his attention.

There is no indication that the governor's decision to veto resulted from a weighing of assets and liabilities and a determination that the latter outweighed the former.

There is an indication that the same governor who charged a reporter with conducting a one-sided investigation himself ordered a one-sided investigation of CRLA.

SONG OF THE SIRENS. By Ernest K. Gann. Ballantine, 95 cents, paperback.

The well-known novelist matches his exciting best seller of his adventures in the air. "Fate Is the Hunter," with an account of his lifelong affair with the sea and sailing.—N.

LIVING POOR. By Moritz Thomsen. Ballantine. $1.25, paperback.

Moritz Thomsen was a 48-year-old pig farmer when he joined the Peace Corps and was sent to Rio Verde, Ecuador, and became "just another person in a poor village, making friends and enemies like one more citizen of the town." For three years he lived poor and sought to set up a cooperative. His is a sometimes horrifying, sometimes funny account of a battle against ignorance and suspicion.—H.

FANTASTIC FABLES. By Ambrose Bierce. Dover, $1.50, paperback.

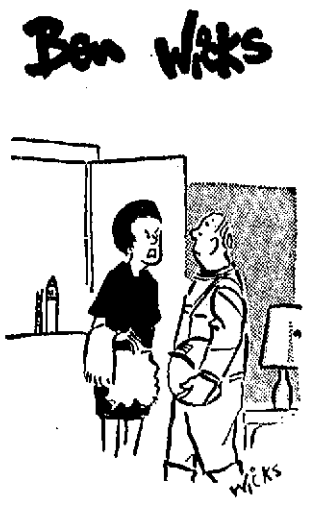

On the strength of these fables, aimed at crooked politicos, greedy doctors, unholy holy men, judges, diplomats, among other targets, Bierce was called "the American Swift." His own life had a fantastic denouement: in 1913, aged 71, he went to Mexico with a purpose "not at present disclosable," and was never heard from again.—N.

A CRUISING VOYAGE ROUND THE WORLD. By Capt. Woodes Rogers. Dover, $3, paperback.

By authorization of Queen Anne, Woodes Rogers, in command of two privateersmen, the Duke and the Dutchess, preyed, from 1708 to 1711, on Spanish ships and possessions in South America, Mexico, California and the South Seas, and brought back one of the richest treasures a Briton had ever captured. He also brought back Alexander Selkirk, who had been a castaway for four years on the island of Juan Fernandez off Chile; Selkirk's story inspired Defoe to write "Robinson Crusoe." Rogers' journal is filled with accounts of near mutinies, plunderings of the Spaniards, descriptions of natives in the places Rogers visited.—H.

TALES FROM THE MOHAVES. By Herman Grey. Univ. of Oklahoma Press, $4.95.

Herman Grey, born on the Fort Mohave reservation in Arizona and Shul-ya of the Beaver Clan, brings together stories handed down to him by his uncle, centering around the adventures of the Mohave mythical hero Swift Lance. Some are more than legendary — the tale of the war on the Pimas, and the story of Swift Lance's trip to the land of the Apaches.—N.

Too dumb to play Post Office right

STERLING BEMIS

MY CAREER as an athlete was limited by the fact that when I was a boy I was thin and awkward at age 11 and matured late. At 21 I was awkward and thin.

I played one-o-cat in the vacant lot on the corner. Otherwise I would have lost my standing as an American Boy. However, I am still puzzled by my fate when we chose up sides for softball during recess at McKinley School. I never could figure out the arithmetic of it. We might have six men on each team, or 16. But our captain would look at me and say, "Jeff, since you're the odd man, why don't you go out behind center field and shag the flies we miss?"

As a hitter I got as far as second base twice, but one of them doesn't count. Dave Shade, the second baseman, threw down his mitt and ran just as the ball was thrown to him. Mr. Eagleton, the truant officer, had stalked onto the playground. Dave was clear down to 17th Street before he remembered he wasn't playing hooky.

I liked soccer, which on our playground had either 32 or 47 on each side and it was easy to get lost in the crowd.

Once in a high school gym class I outran Eddie Linton, the track team's star half-miler. This was after I accidentally bumped him in the pack at the start of the race and he yelled at me. He said when he caught up he would give me a black eye. However, I outfoxed him. Twenty yards from the finish line I ran off the track and took shelter in the shade of Coach Elliott.

"Good work, boy!" the coach said. "How about coming out for track?" I answered his question with a question:

"When does Eddie Linton graduate?"

Except for diving, the Australian crawl, the breaststroke and free-style sprints or long-distance, I was good in the water. I liked to leap feet-first into the deep end and paddle underwater to either the other end or any group of girls' legs, whichever came first. To me the squeals of the attached girls were a symphony.

BLOISE PACKER once gave me a driver and I perfected a swing in the alley that worked beautifully on tin cans and stones. However, I never did much on the links, principally because I lost more golf balls than I found. As for miniature golf, it wasn't up to my regular game.

The main thing I learned in football was to never, under any circumstances, get the ball. Once, however, I was on a winning team in a game played on the lawn of the Gooch mansion against Gooch's Gold Medals. Gooch's Gold Medals didn't have a chance. They had uniforms.

When Sports Illustrated asks for my memoirs I'll have to confess modestly that basketball was my game. In fact I was captain and center of the First Congregational Church aggregation in the Sunday School League at the Y. A glance at our season record would reveal why the other members of the team were happy to point at me and say: "He's our captain." Before we stopped keeping track we had lost 11 and won one.

The reason I was the center was because I was taller than any other boy on our team by half a crewcut. I doubt that our coach had ever seen a basketball game. He just looked up from a rulebook one day during practice and appointed me center. It never occurred to him that height isn't everything.

IN THOSE DAYS the rival centers jumped for the ball after every goal. Quite often the other center jumped and I didn't. It was at this period I discovered you can't trust a Baptist center. In our game with First Baptist every time the referee tossed the ball up for the tip-off, the opposing center stepped on my toes. I learned that Lutherans jab you in the ribs on the way up for the ball. Members of any evangelical faith, just as you are about to leap, are inclined to say unnerving things like, "Hey, kid, does your mamma know you're out?"

I don't remember which team we beat. It must have been First Church of Christ, Scientist. Only they could have had more wishful thinking than we did.

The only merciful act that graced me during my career in the Sunday School league came near the end of the season when the coach relieved me in favor of Morrie Fisher. Morrie Fisher was a blond Viking of 6 feet 2. He should have been a team by himself. In fact, he should have had his own league. A few years later Morrie would score 40 points in a single game of the National Inter-Scholastic Tournament at Chicago. Me? Well, I managed to pump in a few points before I quit. Either five or six. And in only three games.

My legs are still sore from playing shinny. Shinny was like hockey, only rougher. With gnarly sticks we attacked a battered tin can. The way the game got its name was that when the team faced off, each captain shouted, "Shinny on your own side!" and organized mayhem set in. If you had a choice between hitting a tin or a shin, hitting the shin showed good form.

Another strenuous sport was leapfrog. Leapfrog a sissy's game? Not the way we played it. With a little practice on the timing you could soar gracefully over a stooping boy and simultaneously plant an artful kick on his posterior. I once had the pleasure of seeing Emerson Smith skid six feet in wet grass.

IT IS time to reveal that I never won a letter in unorganized indoor sports, either. For example, the year I was 12 I was introduced to the mysteries of Post Office. The post mistress was Esther Lemmon, whom I recall as a willowy dream with a walk like melting Crisco. Esther retreated behind a door and trilled, "I have a letter for Jeff." I hunted hopefully. But when I found her she said, "And here's the stamp!" and stung my big toe with her heel.

When it was the turn of the Big Kid who was playing the game with us he was behind the door with Esther for a long time. He never seemed to learn what a dumb game Post Office is.

How do boys become men?

S. I. HAYAKAWA
President, San Francisco State College

NEVER HAS IT been so difficult for boys to grow up into men.

Becoming a man is not a matter of chronology. It is a matter of proof. Throughout the history of mankind, boys have had to prove themselves men.

Davy Crockett "killed him a b'ar when he was only three." Others, in order to establish themselves as men, have had to win races, prove their skill in hunting, show they could handle a team and plow, endure survival tests in the wilderness, bring home an enemy scalp, or drink half a pint of whisky without passing out.

To become a man it has always been necessary for boys to associate with men, as helpers on Father's farm, as apprentices to craftsmen, as squires to knights, as water-boys to baseball teams. Through such association they learn the secrets of the adult culture: what rituals to observe, how to care for equipment, how to drink and curse and fight, how to earn and maintain the respect of other men in a society of men.

BUT TODAY MOST boys are separated from the lives of men. Men leave for factory or office early in the morning, commuting many miles to work. They do not return until evening. Boys are brought up by mothers and schoolteachers.

Hence boys often have no idea what their fathers do at work. They have no idea what a man does that makes him a man.

Unless a boy is a good enough athlete to make the varsity squad, unless he joins a street gang or the armed forces or goes to engineering school, he is likely to spend his entire life with women around. Mobs of Cliffies have invaded Harvard classrooms. Yale has gone coeducational. Girls move into fraternity houses. The experience of being a man in a society of men becomes rarer and rarer. It's fine to prove to women that you are a man. But the final proof is when you prove it to other men.

WHAT YOUNG MEN profoundly need as they grow up, says David Riesman, is to be extended to the limit of their powers. They have to experience situations in which they have to do more than their best in order to escape death, capture, defeat or failure.

But what is there in a boy's life in our affluent society to extend him to the limit of his powers? If he gets on the high school football team, he will really have to extend himself. But what of all the other students?

High school is no challenge. In most communities if you don't learn enough to go into the next grade, they pass you anyway. For many the curriculum is so slow and repetitive that it is a bore. For others it is simply meaningless.

Furthermore, the challenges of work in the outside world are denied to the boy by exclusionary union rules, by child labor laws and, where these do not apply, by minimum wage laws, as well as by the legal and social pressures that keep him in school whether he wants to be there or not.

So the vast majority of boys are excluded from the world of men and denied the chance to exercise their powers, physical or intellectual. Is it any wonder that there is a youth problem?

Boys need challenges. Their whole being cries out for them.

That's the problem for fathers. It takes men to make men. Mothers cannot do it by themselves. Nor can high schools. Nor colleges.

Teddy's loss may become Hubert's gain

By STEVE GERSTEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The big winner from fallout generated by the bitter feud between Sens. Edward M. Kennedy and Robert C. Byrd may well turn out to be former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

In a major upset that stunned Senate liberals, Byrd deposed Kennedy as the assistant Democratic floor leader.

In that confrontation, Humphrey, newly elected as a senator from Minnesota, played a minimal role. Along with his colleagues, he cast one vote —a vote for Kennedy.

But Byrd's victory may have major implications for Humphrey's own career—not in the field of national politics so much but in the Senate arena where the former vice president and 1968 presidential nominee previously had served 16 years.

NO ONE EVER expected that Humphrey, on his return to the Senate, would suddenly materialize as a wallflower or a quiet back-bencher. His experience does not demand such a role and his constitution does not permit it.

But with Kennedy in the Senate leadership, the liberals had the best-known possible advocate in the councils of power. With total exposure available almost at beckoning, Kennedy could have presented the position of Senate liberals as the 1972 elections approached.

With Byrd in the leadership, the liberals have nothing. Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield votes liberal and pushes liberal legislation—such as the 18-year-old vote—but he has never been considered a leader in the liberal bloc.

Similarly another westerner, Sen. Frank Moss of Utah, elected to the No. 3 party post, votes liberal but is little known and sometimes strays.

BYRD HIMSELF, of course, is a southern-oriented conservative and not likely to change. That leaves a vacuum—an opening into which Humphrey is likely to edge.

Asked if Byrd's victory would compel him to move into a leader's role outside the leadership, Humphrey said, "I have no great designs" and indicated he would await developments.

One of these developments could well be a move by Humphrey to challenge Byrd for the whip job in 1972, unless unexpected presidential aspirations materialize. Many feel that Humphrey, with a reservoir of good feeling built up over the years, could take Byrd.

But then, most had thought Byrd could not defeat Kennedy.

If Mansfield ever decided to step down, Humphrey certainly would seek the leader's job. So would Byrd.

L. A. C. SAYS

Higher gasoline cost part of oil dispute

By LARRY A. COLLINS, Sr.

THE UNITED STATES is fortunate in that it produces almost as much crude oil as it consumes. But it still has to import about one-fourth of its needs. We produce 11.3 million barrels a day and import 3.5 million. Most of these imports come from Canada, South America and the Middle East. The rest of the world is almost entirely dependent on oil from the Middle East including Saudi Arabia — Kuwait — Libya — Iraq. Other imports come from Venezuela and Indonesia.

These producers have an estimated 70 per cent of the world's known oil reserves. As consumption of oil increases it is apparent the world will be even more dependent on imports from these countries. Western Europe is now dependent on imports for 80 per cent of their needs. Japan has to import 90 per cent of its needs.

These oil-rich countries are a part of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. They are demanding a larger share in the proceeds of their products. They demand a 30-cent-a-barrel increase in prices of oil — to increase their share of profits — and a 55 per cent share of profits of the oil companies — up from the present 50 per cent.

THE INTERNATIONAL oil firms that produce or buy oil from these countries in the United States are Standard of New Jersey — Standard of California — Gulf — Mobile — Texaco — Continental — Marathon — Occidental — Amerada Hess — Atlantic Richfield and Grace Petroleum. Such a sharp rise in their costs will call for higher prices for gasoline and other products from crude oil.

It is a major factor in the world economy — and to the U.S. market. The negotiations are supposed to end this week. But it is probable they will be extended. It is thought doubtful the Near East countries will shut down production immediately because they are in need of the great revenues they are now receiving. But it is apparent there will be some major increases in the cost to the U.S. and other importing countries.

THE U.S. HAS two new sources that need to be quickly developed. First is the 800-mile pipeline across Alaska to bring oil from the north to the south seaports of Alaska. It is a billion dollar enterprise to transport heated oil across the frozen wastelands. It has been held up to make sure it is not a danger to the environment and wildlife. There are good reasons to believe these safeguards can be assured and the 10 billion barrel oil reserve can start sending oil to the other U.S. states within three years.

The other large reserve in the United States is the enormous reserves of shale oil in Colorado and Utah. This shale when mined and oil extracted can be our largest reserve. Technological problems and high cost of production must be overcome. But it will probably mean we will be using these reserves in the not too distant future.

The negotiations between the oil companies and the oil-producing nations is important to all the people of the world. We are dependent on petroleum at an ever increasing amount. It will mean higher prices for everything made from petroleum. It is also important that we realize the necessity of developing our own resources wherever they are discovered.

WHAT EVERY WOMAN SHOULD KNOW

If you have ever faced a death in the family or stood by a close friend in time of bereavement, you know the many decisions that must be made under great emotional strain.

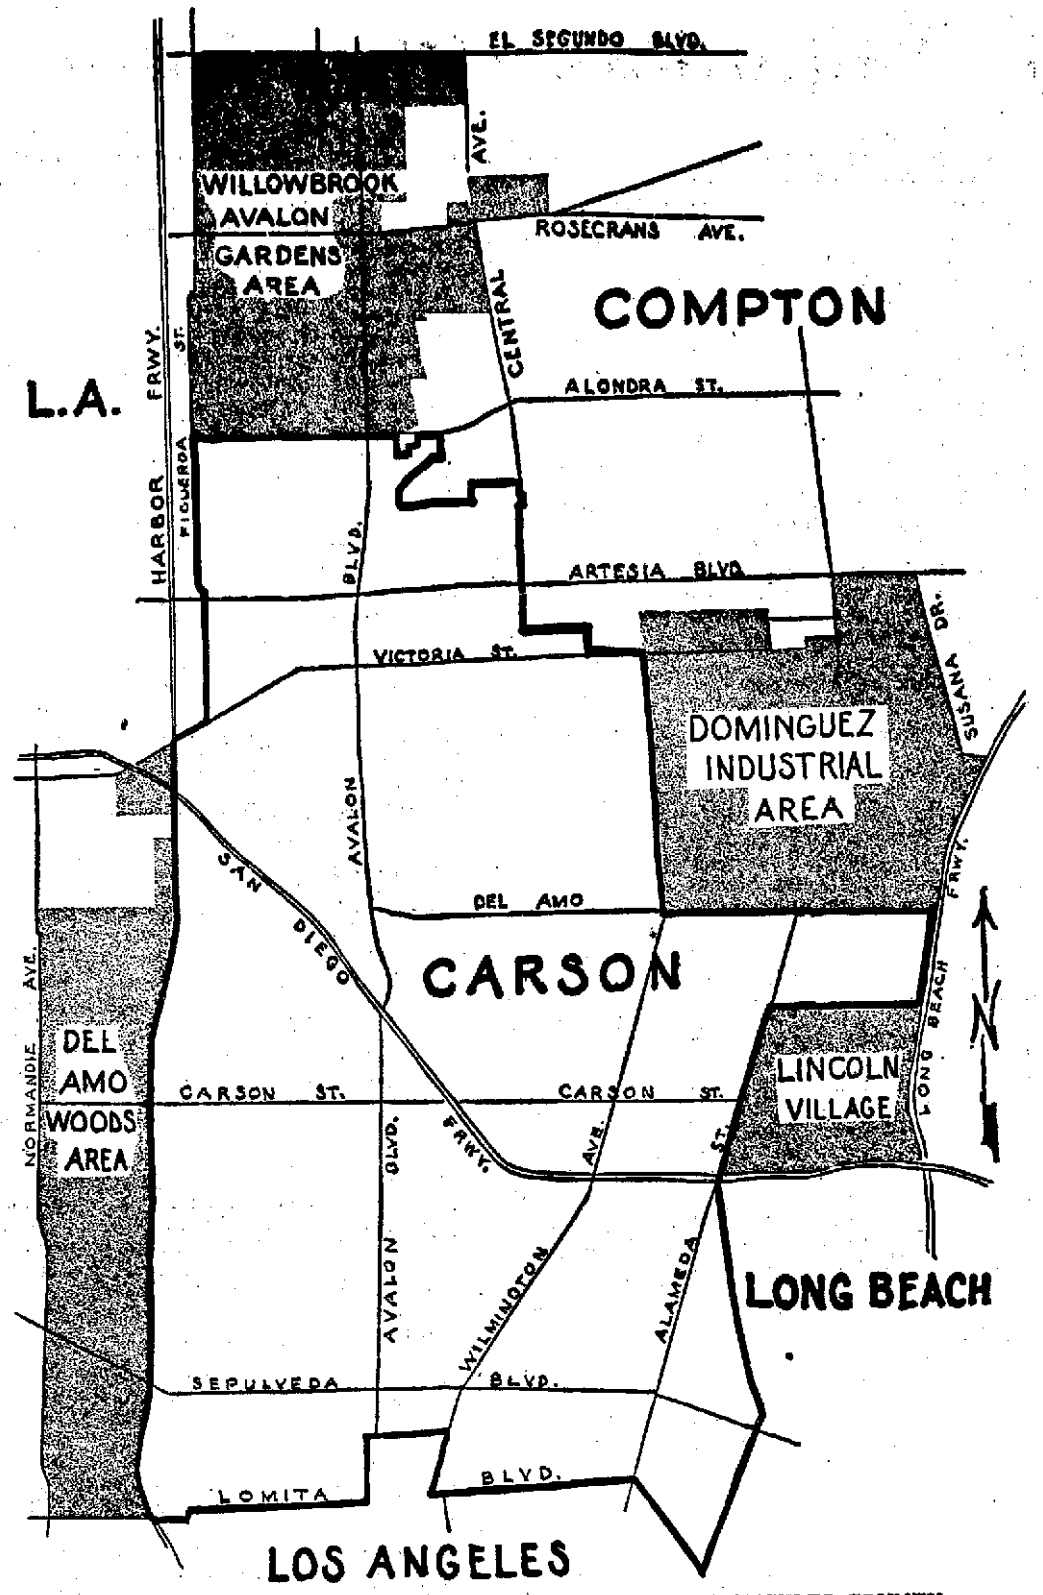

A sense of helplessness and loss confuses action. In the daze of grief we may act in haste or turn to inexperienced but well-meaning friends to make the necessary funeral arrangements.

When someone turns to you in time of need, or you are suddenly faced with a death in the family, you can be prepared.

I would like to personally present you with an informative 16-page booklet—"What Every Woman Should Know"—to assist you. Just call or write me and I will be happy to send you a copy.

THE MUNICIPAL BORDER WARS IN SOUTHERN LOS ANGELES COUNTY

11 Years Hasn't Settled Carson's Border War

By BOB ANDREW
Staff Writer

Israel and Carson have a lot in common — both have been involved in border warfare since the day they were born.

Carson's counterpart to the Arabs are Long Beach to the east, Compton to the north and Los Angeles and Gardena to the west and northwest. Like the Arab lands, these cities alternately cooperate or oppose each other, depending on what best serves their self interest at the moment.

To put the battleground in perspective, it is necessary to go back 11 years to the first of seven attempts to incorporate Carson.

THEN THE 28.5 square miles between the Los Angeles River, Lomita Boulevard, Normandie Avenue and Alondra Boulevard represented the largest pocket of unincorporated land left in the southern part of Los Angeles County.

A proposal to incorporate it as a single city lost badly because industrial interests, which owned most of the property, preferred to remain a tight little county island.

In the eight years before incorporation, one square mile was nibbled away by annexations to Long Beach, Compton and Los Angeles.

Compton filed — and lost — a proposal to annex the area south to Del Amo Boulevard. Long Beach failed three times to acquire the industrial area east of Wilmington Boulevard. Gardena was frustrated (until this year) from jumping over the barrier of the Los Angeles Strip. Los Angeles got nowhere with attempts to acquire the western areas.

CARSON finally incorporated after an election held Feb. 6, 1968, although the Los Angeles County Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) slashed the boundaries from 27.5 to 15 square miles. That reduced the new-born giant from fourth to 20th in area among the county's 77 cities.

Carson officials then moved to expand the city.

A proposal to annex the Palo Del Amo Woods area west of the Harbor Freeway died before it reached LAFCO. Annexation of 2.6 square miles south of Del Amo Boulevard and east of Wilmington Avenue was defeated by the Lincoln Village voters 505 to 1,044 in December, 1968.

Success returned Jan. 13, 1970, when the Stevenson Village voters north of Victoria Street added their 1.1 square miles to Carson by a 258-to-102 vote. On Aug. 17, Carson moved to ninth ranking among the cities by carefully leaving the voters of Lincoln Village boxed between Carson and Long Beach and acquiring the uninhabited 1.6-square-mile industrial area from the unsuccessful Carson Annexation No. 1.

Meanwhile, the other cities had also been at work.

A few months after Carson's incorporation, Compton acquired 550 acres south of Greenleaf Avenue which has become the Cabot, Cabot and Forbes Industrial Park, a nearly $10 million new tax base for Compton in the last two years.

LONG BEACH picked up 44 acres between Wardlow Road and the north property line of the San Diego Freeway in 1969 and added another 22.6 acres this month along the same narrow east-west strip, pushing the city's western boundary a half-mile clos-

Students Spend Time in Cage in Drive to Bring PW Home

By ANNE HOWE

Seven years ago Darryl Pyle was just another newlywed school teacher. Today he is a Prisoner of War living in a four-by-four cage in North Vietnam.

Pyle's wife and 5-year-old son pray for his safe return and wait. His cousin, Dick Hutchinson, a senior at Gahr High school in Cerritos is trying to hurry Pyle's homecoming. That's how the "Bring Darryl Home" campaign got started at Gahr.

PYLE IS sort of special to some of the people at Gahr. Three of the Gahr teaching staff were classmates of the Air Force pilot at Compton High school.

"This year our kids wanted to do something that would reach out into the community," said Rick Stanley, Gahr director of student activities. "At one of our student-planned assemblies we had the privilege of hearing Mrs. Doris Holberg, another PW wife. Her plea for our support got us thinking."

As it happened Dick Hutchinson and Joe Hannan, student body president, are close friends and it wasn't long before Dick mentioned that his uncle was a PW. That pinpointed the project and the kids took over from there.

"We decided to erect the PW cage to provide a focal point for our 'Bring Darryl Back' petitions," said Joe Hannan. "Each student volunteers one hour of his study center to sit crouched in the cage. He isn't allowed to speak to anyone regardless of what they do. At first it was a little discouraging. The kids didn't realize we were serious. Now most of our 1,800 students have gotten interested in the campaign."

Climax of the two-month campaign will be on Valentine's Day. At that time the 2,083 signatures on long paper petitions urging immediate release of the PW's will be sent to Hanoi and to President Nixon.

"We PW wives appreciate what these kids are doing," said Mrs. Pyle at a recent student-sponsored appearance at Gahr. "We know that letters from the public stimulate action by government leaders to get our men released. We also hope to put more pressure on Hanoi to allow these men to receive mail from us. I don't think Darryl has ever gotten one of my letters.

"INTERESTED citizens can influence the situation by writing letters of concern to both Washington, D.C. and Hanoi. Letters of this kind have definitely proved effective and more letters could possibly complete the job."

"I'm one of the lucky ones," Mrs. Pyle continued. "I get a five-line form letter a couple of times a year. Some wives never hear a thing."

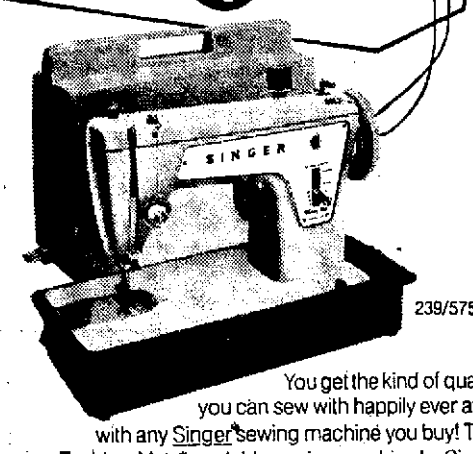

It's the kids who get hurt the most.

"When we recently moved to Tustin, the neighborhood kids taunted our son Phillip with 'You must not have a daddy, cause we never see him'," Mrs. Pyle said. "How do you explain to a 5-year-old, who was 4 months old when his Daddy left, where Daddy has gone and why he can't come home evern when he wants to? We are the strongest nation on earth, why can't Darryl be freed?"

Carson Still Warring With Neighbors Over Borders

er to Los Angeles and Carson.

But the big plum has not yet been picked.

This is an 1,800-acre area north of Del Amo Boulevard with millions of dollars worth of industrial land and only 31 registered voters, most of whom are Claretian Fathers from the Dominguez Seminary.

Long Beach tried again to annex this area a year ago, but withdrew Jan. 13 after resistance from property owners.

The value of the area is shown by a few comparisons made by Dave Elder, annexation coordinator for the City of Long Beach.

Long Beach wants to annex the area between the city's southeastern boundary and the San Gabriel River which contains a huge Southern California Edison Co. generating plant. That area, which has an assessed valuation roughly 1½ times that of the entire city of Signal Hill, would bring Long Beach approximately $1.3 million annually from property and sales taxes and other sources, according to Elder.

"Comparing the Edison area to the Dominguez Industrial area," Elder said, "we will receive far more revenue immediately from the Edison plant. But the Dominguez area is potentially richer because it is still largely undeveloped."

However, development there is booming. Last year the County Building Department issued building permits valued at $10,035,826. Through October — the last month for which figures are available from Security Pacific National Bank's monthly analysis of building activity throughout the state — the $9,535,376 in industrial permits issued for the Dominguez area was higher than that for any city in the county except Los Angeles, and higher than those for 53 of California's 58 counties.

During the same period, Long Beach's total of nearly $64 million included only $2.8 million of new industrial construction. Carson had $18 million total and $7.6 million of industrial and Compton showed $11.8 million total and $6.4 million of industrial.

A decade of annexation and incorporation attempts can justify the claim of all three cities that the land lies "within our established sphere of influence."

The latest attempt was filed Jan. 8 by Compton, even before Long Beach withdrew. A LAFCO hearing on the Compton proposal has been set for Feb. 24.

As soon as Compton filed, Long Beach requested a study by the LAFCO staff to recommend which city or cities should acquire the Dominguez and Lincoln Village areas. Compton countered by asking that the Willowbrook and Avalon Gardens areas also be included, which adds Gardena and Los Angeles to the boundary struggle.

Compton's rationale, according to Assistant City Manager Bert Wells, is:

"Nearly everyone recognizes that the best way to provide services to the residents of the Willowbrook area is to annex it to Compton. But there is not enough assessed valuation up there to pay for the services, so we also need additional industrial tax base areas."

Compton's present tax-base is only $1,462 per capita, he said. If Willowbrook is annexed, even with the industrial area known as Avalon Gardens east of the Harbor Freeway, the tax base would remain at about the same level. The only logical source of revenue to increase services in the Dominguez industrial reserve, he added.

But Gardena is hoping to use the "Townsend Bill" law that went into effect Jan. 1 in order to jump the half-mile-wide Los Angeles Strip and annex the Avalon Gardens area. The new law permits a city to jump the incorporated territory of another city provided the intervening strip is less than 3,000 yards wide and the whole area is part of the same school district.

Those provisions limit Gardena to just the industrial and from the freeway to Avalon Boulevard and north of the Carson boundary at Alondra Boulevard.

"We're studying the area up to El Segundo Boulevard and could go as far north as 120th Street," reported Gardena City Manager Harry Peacock. The results of that study will go to the Gardena City Council on Feb. 9. Depending on council action, Gardena could file on the area with LAFCO within 30 days.

The 4,000 residents in the northern part of the area want to be part of Gardena and the feeling is even stronger among the business owners to the south, Peacock said.

"LAFCO has already turned L.A. down. It has turned down Compton three or four times and Carson has expressed no interest in the area. The only logical choice remaining is Gardena," Peacock said.

Wells disagrees with Peacock's logic.

"The Townsend Bill was special legislation that was designed to let Gardena get at that area," Wells argues. "It's just the type of thing that LAFCO was supposedly set up to prevent and merely demonstrates the need for a complete revision of California's annexation laws."

Still, there are areas of agreement among all of the "Arab nation" cities:

Gardena and Los Angeles agree that any of the other cities — including Carson — can have the Dominguez area, which they can't reach.

Everyone except Los Angeles agrees that Carson is the logical choice for the Palo Del Amo Woods area — for the same reason. Likewise, Gardena and Compton would concede Lincoln Village to either Long Beach or Carson.

And Long Beach would probably support Compton's claim to Willowbrook and Avalon Gardens — especially in view of a previously unrevealed agreement between the two cities over the Dominguez area.

In reviewing the file on the area, Wells pulled out a letter sent last August to Ruth Benell — a former member of the local Agency Formation Commission who became a key member of its professional staff about a year ago.

The letter was a "tentative agreement" signed jointly by Compton City Manager James Johnson and Long Beach City Manager John R. Mansell after Carson officials dropped out of three-way talks on the area, according to Wells.

That agreement called for Compton to get the western two-thirds of the area which is still largely undeveloped and for Long Beach to take the already-developed property south of Las Hermanas and east of Santa Fe Avenue and Alameda Street.

Neither Elder or Mrs. Benell, who had already been interviewed for this article, had mentioned the letter.

In fact, Mrs. Benell's only comment on the issue was that "the staff is still making preliminary checks to determine which areas should be included in the study requested by Long Beach."

Those preliminary recommendations should be ready for presentation to LAFCO before it takes any action on the latest Compton annexation proposal. Once LAFCO has determined the scope of the study and received the staff's final report, the commission members will have a task analogous to that of the United Nation's mission in the Sinai Desert.

U Thant and Gunnar Jarring could sympathize with their position.

Honors Mark Achievement of Schools

age rate. On a nationwide basis, 35 per cent of all youngsters who enter high school do not graduate. In Long Beach the figure is only 14.4 per cent.

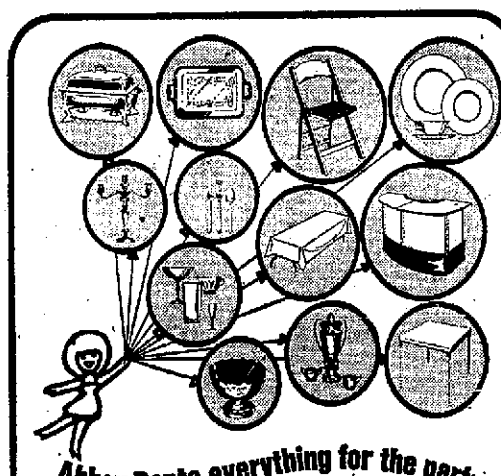

Another pointer is the consistently high scoring that Long Beach students have made in the basic reading, language and arithmetic tests.

Add to these such innovative ideas as the district's three mountain camps that complement the in-school natural science instruction; the fact that Long Beach was one of the first major districts to put libraries and counselors in all elementary schools; the initiative in establishing an enriched program for very superior students at least 10 years before the state made such a requirement mandatory.

FOR ADDED flavor there's the fact that Long Beach high school graduates last June won scholarships valued at more than $2 million. And there's the Stanford University report that students who came from Long Beach City College produced a scholastic record ranking them fifth highest among the 68 junior colleges of the nation.

"Of course," Wright added, "it is easy to reel off a list of successes and achievements. What is much more difficult is to start considering which of the special programs must be eradicated, how many teachers must be laid off, in what areas you lower your standards — should the supply of money be cut off by a 'No' vote in the election."

Letting Us Know What We Breathe

By GIL BAILEY
Contributing Editor

The radio in the morning beeped out the message that there would be "no smog in the Los Angeles Basin today."

Mornings for some of us are not the best time and everything raises vast suspicions, bordering on paranoia. As it happened the suspicions this time were true.

There was air pollution, quite a bit of it, that day in the Los Angeles Basin — carbon monoxide, oxides of nitrogen and a little sulfur dioxide, not to mention a lack of visibility.

GIL BAILEY

There was very little oxidant in the air — that maker of photo chemical smog — and apparently the radio station, an all news one, confused a lack of oxidant for a lack of smog.

The mistake is not untypical.

The Los Angeles Air Pollution Control District prediction for the day noted the lack of oxidant in the air and a lack of oxidant caused eye irritation. The district also predicted a lack of visibility, but it did not mention carbon monoxide, oxides of nitrogen or sulfur dioxide.

THE FAULT, however, does not lie with the district. It does lie with the reporting on most radio and television stations.

Not all stations make the same mistakes. Baxter Ward, of Channel 9, for example, despite his recent feud with the city officials of a nearby town, does a better than average job.

The officials complained about Ward's reporting of high levels of pollution in their area — afraid probably of a decrease in the sale of autos and houses and such.

However, the air pollution reporting station was in their area and the levels were high. One could quarrel, perhaps, with some of the interpretations Ward puts on the readings, but he is the only guy I know on radio or television who actually lets people know what they are breathing.

THE AIR POLLUTION control district will provide the news media with the readings. We print the readings in a special smog table for those who are interested.

Baxter Ward gets his readings from the same source.

The evening weather on other stations would make a lot more sense if the stations called the air pollution control district and got the facts.

And some city officials might make more sense if they called and got the facts.

Let's face it: On most days in the Los Angeles Basin we have from moderate to serious air pollution with many of those days in the serious range.

Some respiratory and heart patients have a real stake in learning about those conditions. Their doctors either have or should have given them specific instructions on what to do when the smog levels climb.

"No smog" announcements or "light smog" announcements, when the facts are otherwise, do these people a real disservice.

It is time we learned our lesson.

AIR POLLUTION HERE is not a simplistic problem.

It is not just oxidants, photo chemical smog.

The readings of oxides of nitrogen, carbon monoxide and sulfur dioxide are important too.

A lack of visibility is important.

All of these factors need to be incorporated in any air pollution report.

So keep it up, Baxter, and let's hope some of your rivals follow your example. The truth may hurt, but in this case a lack of truth can hurt a lot more.

TWO SNAGS MUST BE ELIMINATED

CSLB Radio Station's Chances Grow

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

After years of waiting and watching by faculty members — and twice having high hopes crushed —a campus radio station at California State College, Long Beach may have a chance of becoming more than a dream.

But, emphasized Dr. Howard Martin, chariman of the college's Radio-Television department, a student-operated station serving the Long Beach area is still in advanced planning stages and no official authorization has been given for its creation.

And, he added, at least two snags must be eliminated at the local level before the major formalities of seeking a construction permit and license from the Federal Communications Commission can be accomplished.

One problem, he said, lies in communicating with proper officials of the General Telephone Co.

Under current engineering plans for creating the station, signals would have to be carried by phone line from the campus studios to a downtown transmission set-up.

Martin said he has been unsuccessful several times in attempting to get an assessment of the project from telephone company officials.

"But the real snag seems to be how much confidence in students people have," added Martin. "This (college) administration doesn't seem to have any."

Martin explained meetings are underway with administrators over the question of "who will have final authority in programming."

As proposed, the station's licensee would be the Associated Students of the college — a $1-million-a-year corporation, governed by elected student officials and maintained by student fees.

Under such a proposal, students would have authority for choosing programming for the station, with faculty members as advisers.

The Forty-Niner, Cal-State's student newspaper, is run on a similar advisory basis, Martin pointed out.

The campus paper last year earned an all-America rating — highest possible status — for overall achievement from a national collegiate press assessment firm.

However, according to Dr. Leo Goodman-Malamuth, academic vice-president of the college, the proposal's legality seems questionable.

"I think the problem here is accountability," he said. "If the college is to be held accountable by the FCC for the content of programming, then I think the feeling here is the college should be the licensee."

Discussions, he added, are continuing. "We haven't made up our minds yet."

Construction of Water Main Wins Approval

Construction of a 12-inch water main to serve a proposed industrial area south of Spring Street and west of Orange Avenue has been authorized by the Water Commission.

The project will involve construction of the 12-inch main in Orange Avenue at a cost of $26,000, connecting an existing 36-inch main in 32nd Street with an existing 12-inch main in Spring Street.

Clyde N. Moore, general manager of the Water Department, said construction of the main has been under consideration for some time to serve department properties southwest of Orange Avenue and Spring Street, but has been deferred because the area is not fully developed.

Moore said, however, that W. H. Daum & Staff, builders of industrial properties, are now planning to build two warehouses on the northeast corner of Walnut Avenue and Spring Street.

With construction of these buildings, Moore said, the Fire Department will require that the area have sufficient water to provide 3,000 gallons per minute at 20 pounds per square inch residual pressure.

Present Water Department systems in the area do not meet this requirement, Moore said, but the proposed pipeline will enable development of industrial facilities in the area.

Schoolteacher Slays Wife, 4 Children

ORENSE, Spain (AP) — A 47-year-old schoolteacher shot his wife, four children and their Portuguese maid to death Saturday, police here reported.

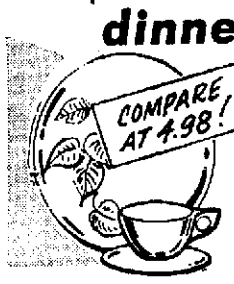

Nicanor Rodriguez Taboadela, killed his wife Glorida, their children aged 6, 4, and 3 years and 18 months, and their servant Filomena Gomes, with a shotgun while they were sleeping police said.

Taboadlea was arrested by police, who gave no hint of a motive for the shootings.

Rhinos Dwindling

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (AP) — This game-rich territory's once numerous rhinoceroses have dwindled to a handful. A recent census found only 10 surviving black rhinos and eight of the white, or square-lipped, variety.

HAL PEARY, THE GR EAT GILDERSLEEVE

Mellow Laugh Meets 'Gildersleeve' Return

By STAN LEPPARD
Staff Writer

Mellow memories of the midcentury, wafting into Long Beach on a tide of nostalgia, found a snug harbor in hearts that responded: It was only yesterday.

That's all it seemed when the deep-pitched, bubbling mirth, the basso profundo proclamations of "The Great Gildersleeve" returned to delight a capacity audience.

MORE THAN 800 overflowed the auditorium at the Institute of Lifetime Learning, and stood in the hall outside, for the program featuring Hal Peary, veteran comic of radio, television and movie fame.

"To anyone here not old enough to remember me as 'Gildersleeve' — congratulations," he told them.

Peary, 62, parried compliments from the audience on his youthful appearance with:

"A woman told me not long ago she had followed my TV show "for years and years, Mr. Peary, and you never change . . . You've always looked old."

HE ADDED: "Well, I am. I can even remember when people who wore blue jeans, worked."

As the audience roared, Peary — presented on the program by Gibraltar Savings & Loan, his boss in a current series of TV ads — chuckled and tossed in: "That's the kind of conservative audience I like to work with."

Recapping his long career in show business, Peary said he started in radio in San Francisco in 1929.

He was a singer, but studied voices — "all kinds, and all dialects," — and over the succeeding five or six years established a reputation as "the man with a thousand voices," he said.

"In 1936, I got a call to work on a new radio show, just starting, called 'Fibber McGee and Molly', "he said. But it wasn't as "Throckmorton P. Gildersleeve," it was the part of a Chinese laundryman — "named Gooey Phooey."

A SHORT TIME after that the idea for a new character on the show, still unnamed at that stage, came up, Peary said.

"He pitched his voice low, to contrast with McGee's high pitched tones, and Gildersleeve was born, he said.

"It ruined my career as the man with a thousand voices," he added. "From that time on, I was never allowed to play any part but Gildersleeve."

When Peary left the Fibber and Molly show to start his own show, "The Great Gildersleeve," he was warned by many show business veterans of the dangers of leaving a featured spot and trying to extend "a stooge part" into a full show.

But "The Great Gildersleeve" remained on the air for 16 years, he noted.

PEARY introduced his wife of seven years, Beverly, and explained she was working at the Douglas Santa Monica plant as an electronics engineer when he met and married her.

One newspaper ran a story headed: "Gildersleeve to Marry Engineer," he said, and added: "We got some awful funny mail at our house for awhile after that."

He said he had no worries about his future in show business. "If things get really rough, I can make a living singing at Zsa Zsa Gabor's weddings," he said.

"Let's see . . . Was it Zsa Zsa, or Will Rogers, who said they never met a man they didn't like?"

than any other citrus pest known today," he said.

Khapra beetle, one of the world's worst pests of stored feed and grain, is not native to the U. S. One of the reasons it has not spread to this country is the department's constant preventive ship inspections.

THE ELUSIVE pest was found in a cargo of grain aboard a ship in the Port of Los Angeles. The department ordered the cargo and ship's hold fumigated.

The Department of Agriculture inspections also protect people.

A routine inspection of a tropical fish cargo shipment turned up 25 live snails from Bangkok. The snails are a host for rat lungworm, which can cause the tongue-twisting eosinophilic meningoencephalitis and cerebral angiostrongylosis — inflammatory ailments of the human brain.

Those ornate imported horsehead-shaped marble bookends purchased in an exclusive gift shop or the marble top to an Italian coffee table may have undergone a fumigation to kill a destructive wood boring worm. The worms are not in the marble but in the splintery wood in which the marble is crated.

Container Ships to Sail East Coast, L.B. Route

The U.S. Lines' American Liberty is scheduled to sale from New York Feb. 5 to inaugurate the first direct full container service between East Coast ports and Long Beach.

Containers from Europe, as well as domestic shipments destined for the multi-state area served by Long Beach, will be carried on this voyage.

The ship will then proceed with regular calls at Oakland - San Francisco and the Far East as part of the company's 50,000-mile "Sea-Bridge" operation.

The inaugural voyage will be followed by regular weekly calls by container ships from the East Coast.

The first container ship to reach Long Beach will be the American Astronaut, en route to the East Coast from the Far East.

The ship is expected to leave Long Beach Feb. 27 and arrive in New York 10 days later, on the last leg of a 4,930-mile voyage.

The U.S. Lines' ships will dock at Pier J.

80,000 Living on Hong Kong Boats

HONG KONG (UPI) — Approximately 80,000 persons live on boats in Hong Kong, representing 2 per cent of the British colony's 4 million population, the Census and Statistics Commission said Saturday.

The 1971 census figures showed that 80,028 persons live on 10,628 boats in Hong Kong Harbor and elsewhere in the colony.

Vital Southland Marshes in Peril

Southern California along 343 miles of coastline from Santa Barbara County south to the Mexican border," Speth said.

The marshes and tidelands are vital in the breeding of marine life and for wild birds, including a number of endangered species, according to biologists.

Speth spoke on the 28 remaining Southern California "wetland" areas, many of which are being used for sewage disposal or face possible fill and development.

"Of the remaining wetland acreage, 42 per cent is threatened by existing plans for development and utilization of these wetlands," he told the 450 delegates to the convention.

Speth pointed out 600 acres of saltmarsh and tidal channels of Anaheim Bay, part of the Seal Beach Naval Weapons Station. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and State Department of Fish and Game have developed a plan for the wetlands.

"The plan has already been used by the Navy to justify its opposition to a freeway through the marsh and to a harbor development proposed by Orange County," Speth said. "However, the highway and marina developments are threats."

He outlined the problems faced by Upper Newport Harbor.

"The upper bay contains 120 acres of marsh, 525 acres of mudflat and 120 acres of sheltered water. It supports an estimated 4 million-bird-days use by some 70 species of water assorted birds," he said.

A proposed exchange of lands, now blocked, between Orange County and the Irvine Corporation, would destroy the area, he added. Orange County supervisors have expressed second thoughts about the exchange.

"Hopefully, your interest will be sharpened and you will take positive action to protect this segment of our environment," Seth concluded.

Movie Producer Turns Director

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The difference between a motion picture producer and a film director is roughly that of the president of General Motors and the chief design engineer.

The president has the final word, but it is the designer who determines what next year's models will be.

Larry Turman is a producer who has turned director, an uncommon step in the movie business. Producers reap profits while the director suffers the slings of criticism and sometimes half-hearted praise.

As a producer Turman's record is superb: "The Flim-Flam Man," "The Graduate," "Pretty Poison" and "The Great White Hope."

GEORGE C. SCOTT ran away with the praise for "Flim-Flam Man," Mike Nichols was canonized for "The Graduate." "Pretty Poison" was the first film on ecology. "The Great White Hope" is one of Hollywood's best interpretations of a Broadway musical.

One springs to the conclusion that Turman is dotty to switch from his success as a producer to the perfilous profession of directing.

Turman is handsome, slender, a tennis player and the kind of man you might expect to see in, say, a shaving cream commercial.

He has turned producer-director with "The Marriage of a Young Stockbroker," Starring Dick Benjamin, Joanna Shimkus, Elizabeth Ashley and Adam West, a story of contemporary mores.

OTHER HYPHENATES such as Alfred Hitchcock, Stanley Kramer and George Steves (to name a few) were directors first. Then seeing that it was the producer who skimmed off the cream they became producer-directors.

Turman — and Alan Pakula of "The Sterile Cuckoo" — are the only top men in recent memory to tackle the job in reverse.

"Directing is hard work," Turman said. "It's stimulating but no fun. The pressures, compromises and frustration is terrific. Before we started, I didn't have any idea, for instance, where to place the camera.

"I had some misgivings until we actually began shooting because I had never staged a scene with actors."

Lighthouse Struck

SOUTHAMPTON, England (UPI) — The 6,000-ton Norwegian tanker Rogn struck a lighthouse in the English Channel Saturday. Maritime officials said there were no injuries and neither the tanker, which was empty, nor the lighthouse was seriously damaged.

EARL WILSON

Paul Newman 'Relaxes' at 150 mph

HOLLYWOOD—The man with the famous blue yes, Paul Newman, was asked in a gentle way whether he wasn't being a damn fool.

Whether he wasn't taking his life in his hands driving a racing car 180 miles an hour at his time in life.

"I don't think so." Mr. Blue Eyes' boots were up on his desk at Universal Pictures and a grin curled on his lips.

"Know who else thinks so?" spoke his partner John Foreman, across the room, behind a beard. "His wife thinks so."

So Joanne Woodward hasn't been able to dissuade him from auto-racing although, listening to him, you were lulled into some sort of fairy tale that this wasn't racing, this was just some sort of weekend or Sunday sightseeing driving you happen to be doing at over 150 miles an hour with the drivers being great kidders who take air out of your tires before you start and then drive across the infield instead of on the track and it's just some kind of innocent picnic.

"It is a little dangerous, isn't it?"

"Oh" (shrug) "something could break, I suppose. But as for driving, I'm not off the road a lot."

"TWO DRIVERS we used in 'Winning' got killed," John Foreman interjected.

"Not in the picture," Newman said. "They went on to another race and got killed."

"They did get killed," Foreman said.

Newman had been looking across the room at a picture on the wall — of a racing car. A picture of Joanne Woodward hung above it and in a more commanding position. Newman walked to it.

"Look at that," he said. "It' exotic as a sensational Latin lady! It's sensuous — it really is."

"I don't know where this legend started about me racing," Paul said again. "The reason I like it is it's a good way to relax."

"You can relax at 150 miles an hour?"

He had given up motorcycles after an accident and then gone in for cars. "I like bikes," he admitted. "They're a great waker-up in the morning."

"How do you drive on the freeway?" I asked.

"Slowly," Paul said.

"Sure," John Foreman said.

THE WEEKEND WIND-UP . . . The stars of "Husbands" — John Cassavetes, Peter Falk, Ben Gazzara — will sit together at the Oscar awards if it's nominated. Said Falk, "If it loses, we can cry together; if it wins, we can cry together" . . . Richard Roundtree'll stay in the "new hero" image in the film "Shaft" — he won't smoke a cigaret . . . Comedienne Patsy Kelly of "No, No, Nanette" celebrated her 61st birthday at Spindeltop . . . Fran Jeffries, whose curvy nude photos are in Playboy, opens March 5 at the Bahamas International.

Sarah Miles and Robert Bolt, who filmed "Ryan's Dtr." in Ireland, will move there permanently . . . Romance: Hot new singer Karen Wyman, 18, and student Michael Brooks . . . Director Ingmar Bergman'll make his first publicity trip here, on behalf of Elliott Gould's "The Touch" . . . Singer Jill Corey's comeback stint on the "Tonight" show won her more appearances.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH. Scoey Mitchlli mooches smokes this way: "Can I have one of your cigarettes? I left mine in the machine."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: The average Women's Lib member (says Charlie Bates) isn't afraid of a thing — except perhaps a little housework.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "It takes the eye only a split second to wink — the world's quickest way for a man to get into trouble." — Evan Esar.

EARL'S PEARLS: Dick Cavett admits he's not a very dapper dresser: "However, one year I was named among the 10 best-dressed men by Popular Mechanics."

A man mentioned that his son's room contains a color TV set, stereo phonograph and a private phone: "When I want to punish him, I make him go to my room." That's curt, brother.

THE MOTION PICTURE THE WHOLE COUNTRY IS TALKING ABOUT!

More than 200,000 people of all ages and walks of life were recently guests at a special nationwide premiere of WALT DISNEY PRODUCTIONS' THE WILD COUNTRY.

The gripping story of a pioneering family who take on every challenge of the untamed Wyoming frontier brought thrills, tears and laughter to young and old alike, who were caught up in its excitement.

They sat on the edge of their chairs as a cyclone tore across the screen; they laughed at a little tenderfoot's amazing menagerie; they were moved by the inspiring scene of the birth of a colt; and they cheered as a family stood together to fight for their dream.

THEY HAD A WONDERFUL TIME AT THE MOVIES!

Now, the motion picture that brought them so much enjoyment, WALT DISNEY PRODUCTIONS' THE WILD COUNTRY, is yours to share with your entire family.

STARRING ON MEXICO STAGE

Dolores del Rio--- at 64 Her Name Works Magic

By JAMES DAVIS

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Dolores del Rio. The name still is magic to thousands of her fans, and the 64-year-old Mexican actress who introduced the two-piece bathing suit to the screen 37 years ago plans to keep it that way.

"AS long as I can draw an audience I think I will go on working," she said in a backstage interview. "I love my work and I am very dedicated."

She currently is starring on the Mexico City stage in "The Lady of the Camelis," by Alexandre Dumas. She begins her 51st movie in February. Both the movie and play are produced by her husband, Lew Riley.

Miss Del Rio called the increased realism in American films very healthy, but said the emphasis on sex was just a fad.

"The people alone will discard it. Let the people have the last word, not a censor. They will get bored with it," she said.

" 'Easy Rider' was my favorite recent film. I adored the movie and saw it three times," she said

The blackhaired beauty was less optimistic about Mexican films.

"We have not been making better movies here," she said. It is very difficult to make good movies in Mexico right now.

"We need to bring people here from all over the world. Like in the mid-1920s, when I arrived in Hollywood, they were bringing wonderfully talented people from all over."

In any case, she said, "I am more involved and more in love with the theater than with the movie and theater in Mexico is coming up."

Miss del Rio created a sensation when she bared her midriff in a two-piec bathing suit in the 1933 film classic "Flying Down to Rio".

In 1933 Miss del Rio was already a star. She was a young and beautiful Mexico City socialite until Hollywood director Edwin Carawe discovered her on a 1925 visit to Mexico City.

He urged her to take a screen test in Hollywood and she became a silent film screen star for United Artists. She quickly learned English and moved into "talkies" in 1930.

Miss del Rio re-established permanent residence in Mexico City in 1942. She has returned frequently to the United States to appear in movies and on television.

Her name is still big here and her fans don't seem to mind that she portrays characters much younger than her actual age. She is still beautiful and looks much younger than 64. She has no secret recipe for beauty.

"I think it's one of those things you inherit," she said.

MOVIE NOTES

'Hot Lovers' Warming Up for Paramount Film

By A.H. WEILER
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Neil Simon's "Last of the Red Hot Lovers" is getting warmed up for the screen. The current Broadway hit has been purchased by Paramount, the company that has sponsored movie adaptations of a string of Simon successes that includes "Come Blow Your Horn," "Barefoot in the Park," "The Odd Couple" and "Plaza Suite," which will be a summer attraction at Radio City Music Hall.

Simon, who will get an undisclosed percentage of the gross of "Last of the Red Hot Lovers," says his screenplay will stick very closely to the play in which James Coco stars as a married, middle-class, would-be philanderer. "I'm convinced that 'opening up' the play for the screen is not what's needed. The dialogue and stage business that works best in this play will work best in the film."

Back in Hollywood, Howard W. Koch, the lucky man who produced all those profitable Simon movies for Paramount, noted that he will do the same for "Star Spangled Girl."

BARBARA LODEN apparently doesn't believe what Ali MacGraw and Ryan O'Neil and the publicity boys at Paramount are proclaiming from every billboard and subway poster around town. Her next movie will be called "Love Means Always Having to Say You're Sorry." The actress, who also happens to be Mrs. Elia Kazan, will write, direct and star in the film, just as was the case with her "Wanda" — a drama which opens next month at Cinema II.

In 'Love Means Always Having to Say You're Sorry" Miss Loden will appear as a housewife who becomes deeply involved with three men at the same time. The fortunate fellows will be played by Michael Higgins, Miss Loden's leading man in "Wanda," Joe Dallesandro, Holly Woodlawn's leading man in "Trash," and Steve Billings, a publicist who is also a dancer. Shooting should begin on location at a Southern Army base in March.

BRIAN DE PALMA, who recently directed Tom Smothers and Orson Welles in "Great to Know Your Rabbit" for Warners, has signed to do three features for Pressman-Williams Pictures. The first will be "Snapshots," an original screenplay by Eleanor Perry.

Bob, Bing, Gleason on New Road

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Where there's life, there's Hope. And sometimes Crosby, too. Bob and Bing, that is. The two veterans of the "Road" are all but set to co-star with Jackie Gleason in "The Bride Wore Blinkers." Hope and Gleason will play a couple of Florida con men who smuggle a race horse into Ireland for the purpose of breeding her on a famous stud farm. The plan is for Crosby to play an Irish priest — but not Father O'Malley — and for John Wayne to do a cameo as the owner of the stud farm. The picture will be produced by Naho Productions, a Bob Hope-NBC combine.

But before hitting the road for Florida and Ireland, Hope will make "The Great Baxter," which David Swift will write and direct for Naho. Hope will play a candidate for mayor in a small town who is suddenly accused of having been a wild man with the ladies in his youth.

Discarded Rocket

BONN (UPI) — A watchman has discovered a six-foot rocket discarded in a junk yard at Oberkassel near Bonn, police said Saturday. A police spokesman said the rocket, whose thrust engine had been removed, did not belong to the West German armed forces.

ARTHUR L. BIETZ

Psychologist Bietz Plans LBCC Talks

Arthur L. Bietz, Ph.D. will begin a series titled "Knowledge Applied to Life" starting Tuesday, at 7:30 p.m. in the Long Beach City College Auditorium, Harvey Way and Clark Ave. One of the favorites of LBCC Forums audiences for many years, Dr. Bietz will present another series on the application of psychology and self-analysis to daily living.

In addition to an active career as author and lecturer, Dr. Bietz is a certified psychologist, licensed marriage and family counselor, and management consultant. He is author of many books and articles and is listed in such publications as "Who's Who in American Education" and "Who Knows What."

Dr. Bietz is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and many other professional and honorary associations. Lecture topics include: "Taking Personal Inventory," "Looking at Pain," "Is There a Genetic Determination of Personality," and "Learning to Be at Ease."

Council's Calendar

City Council agenda for Tuesday:

Resolution of intention to improve alleys east of Gaviota Avenue between Seventh and Eighth streets. (To set hearing date).

Proposed agreement with State Department of Agriculture for inspection by city of soft-serve frozen milk products plants in Long Beach.

Resolution withdrawing annexation Interement No. 211, northeast of Cherry Avenue and Werdlow Road, from Consolidated County Fire Protection District.

Proposed contract with Stanford L. Ostner and Associates, Inc., for design of traffic record system.

Award of contract to Mueller Co. for meter stops for Gas Department.

Specifications and advertising for bids for truck-mounted street flusher and for furnishing payroll bank account and payroll account reconciliation services to city.

Proposed vacation of: remaining portion of 12th Street between Orange and Alamitos avenues; of St. Mary's Court and Garnet Place in block bounded by 17th Street, Atlantic Avenue, 18th Street and Linden Avenue; and of portions of First Street between Daisy and Magnolia avenues and of Crystal Court between Bronce Way and Alta Way.

Progress report on suggested establishment of a Municipal Environmental Advisory Commission.

Report on procedures for alley improvement.

Proclamation of Feb. 7-13 as National Crime Prevention Week.

Communication from Mayor Edwin W. Wade, recommending appointment of John Read and Rev. David T. Nakagawa and reappointment of Frank Bowmile and Ernest LaBelle to Citizens Advisory Committee for Community Improvement.

Communication from Mike W. Deebic, president of the Exchange Club of Long Beach, submitting beautification plan for review and approval for city property on south side of Livingston Drive at First Street.

Communication from Llewellyn Bixby Jr., president of Alamitos Land Co., endorsing proposed ordinance to prohibit unauthorized operation of motorcycles and other vehicles on public or private property not designated for such use.

Communication from E. B. Frankel, secretary of Assured Management, Inc., complaining of trash being allowed to accumulate on private, vacant land at South Street and Ackerfield Avenue.

Annual audit of Queen Mary Department for fiscal 1969-70.

Resolution calling public hearing on area between Bayshore and Claremont avenues, immediately north of Second proposed underground utility district in Street.

Resolution calling public hearing on proposed underground utility district in vicinity of Seventh Street, Pacific Coast Highway and Bellflower Boulevard.

Ordinances: first reading on ordinance to amend Municipal Code to provide stop signs on Seabright Avenue at 16th Street and on Walnut Avenue at Alamitos Avenue; final reading on ordinance approving and accepting annexation of Increment No. 219, the Carmelitos Housing Project.

Hearings (10:30 a.m.): On resolution of intention to improve the north-south alley in the block east of Grand Avenue between 10th and Mayfield streets; on resolution of intention to improve alley east of Pacific Avenue between Union Pacific railroad and 48th Street; on resolution of intention to improve alley east of Long Beach Boulevard and north of 56th Street; and on resolution of intention to improve alley east of Diamond Avenue between Fourth and Seventh streets.

Wife of Dr. Sabin Granted Divorce

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The domestic relations court here has granted a divorce to Mrs. Jane B. Sabin, wife of Dr. Albert Sabin, developer of the oral polio vaccine. Sabin is living in Israel and is working at the Welzmann Institute of Science.

Mrs. Sabin charged the doctor with gross neglect. The couple was married in June 1967 and had no children.

High Death Toll Denied in Cyclone

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (AP) — Officials Saturday discounted reports of especially high casualties in Cyclone Felice.

A Mozambique radio station said 10 bodies had been recovered from the stricken area. Rescue workers estimated a death toll of 500 to 1,000. But other reports said the toll was far under that.

Damage and casualites caused by the cyclone have been highly exaggerated," said the semiofficial Lusitania news agency of Portugal, which governs Mozambique. It quoted Portuguese interests here as saying they did not believe there had been "more than a few hundred deaths."

The Portuguese Overseas Ministry strongly rejected reports that as many as 100,000 persons had perished in Friday's storm and resultant floods.

Flood waters covered the northern areas.

Huge Quake Rocks Sea Off Russia

UPPSALA, Sweden (UPI) — A powerful earthquake occurred Friday night deep beneath the Ochotsky Sea off the eastern coast of the Soviet Union, the Uppsala Seismological Institute said Saturday.

Prof. Markus Baath, director of the institute, said the quake registered 6.7 on the Richter scale but was not likely to have caused any damage because it occurred 340 miles beneath the sea.

Don't trust anyone under 25...

...to build your pool.

(Anthony Pools is 25 this year!)

Twenty-five years for the same management team is a long time in the pool business—an expanding, competitive industry. Few, if any, can match it. No single builder can come close to equalling our record of over 50,000 pools.

What does this mean to you, the pool buyer?

It means that you can trust Anthony Pools' long reputation for top quality equipment and skilled workmanship—from excavation to pool plastering.

It is the promise that we'll be around for as long as you'll need us for the service that goes with an Anthony pool.

Does this "extra assurance" cost more?

No. In fact, it probably will cost you less! Here's why: As the world's largest volume pool builder, we can have less overhead per pool. And as the only pool builder who actually manufactures the finest filters, heaters, lights, boards, and slides, we can "buy" them from ourselves for less than other builders may have to pay for ordinary equipment from a middleman or separate manufacturer.

"Pre-Season" is the time to buy...

- Get lower "Pre-Season" prices on pools and equipment
- Beat predicted higher construction costs
- Avoid the summer rush
- Have your landscaping completed before summer

Trust us to show you the beautiful pool you can have—and the money you will save. Call today. (And if our salesman or one of our craftsmen is under 25—that's not what our headline meant! But trust that he has behind him 25-years and millions of man-hours of experience!

USE OUR EASY CREDIT

This is where most people over 65 find out about the gaps in Medicare.

Golden 65 Major Hospital Care helps take all that worry off your mind before you ever need surgery and hospital attention, so you spend your stay—even a long one—not worrying about money matters, but just getting better.

For $4.95 a month, that makes sense, doesn't it?

Staring at four walls and a ceiling from a hospital bed is not the most pleasant thing. You start thinking. About bills. Hospital bills. And all the costs of surgery and hospitalization Medicare doesn't pay for.

For example, under Medicare you pay the first $60 of hospital expenses. You pay the first $50 of physician's and surgeon's fees. You pay 20 percent of all remaining physician and surgeon fees. You pay $15 a day for hospital room, board and services from the 61st through the 90th day of confinement during a spell of illness; $30 a day from the 91st through the 150th day during use of Medicare's 60-day "lifetime" reserve provision. And when your "lifetime" reserve is depleted, you pay all hospital expenses after the 90th day.

You probably could handle the costs of a couple of weeks' hospitalization and minor surgery. But major surgery or a long recuperative hospital stay?

The point is, what Medicare doesn't cover is something for you to consider now—when you're perfectly well.

Golden 65 Major Hospital Care takes care of you during a long illness.

It pays the sometimes huge costs of hospitalization that Medicare misses. When hospitalized, Golden 65 Major Hospital Care pays 20 percent of all surgeon's fees; $15 for each day of hospital confinement from the 61st through the 90th day; up to $35 per day for hospital room and board after the 90th day of hospitalization; and all miscellaneous hospital services after the 90th day. Golden 65 Major Hospital Care covers up to $25,000 for each spell of illness.

Put it this way: Having Golden 65 Major Hospital Care is like having your own personal declaration of independence. No more worries about the huge costs of surgery and a long hospital stay. All for $4.95 a month.

Additional hospital indemnity for cancer. Pays $10 per day on and after the 61st day—pays $20 per day on and after the 91st day—for hospital confinement due to pathologically diagnosed cancer.

Enroll now in Golden 65 Major Hospital Care. No physical examination is required. Complete the application blank and return it with your check or money order for $4.95 payable to Continental Casualty Company. If not completely satisfied, return your policy within ten days for full refund.

Exclusions and Limitations—You are immediately covered upon hospitalization for any accident or illness that commences after the effective date of your policy. Benefits are not payable for hospitalization due to conditions diagnosed before your policy was issued when hospitalization occurs during the first six months of coverage, even if the confinement extends beyond six months from the policy effective date.

You are covered anywhere in the world against all injury or illness except: mental disorders; psycho-neurotic or personality disorders*; those covered by Workmen's Compensation or Occupational Disease Law; those caused by any act of war; when confined in VA hospitals; when confined in federal government hospitals*; when confined in any government hospital for mental illness or tuberculosis (in Louisiana, Texas and Tennessee, any treatment or service for tuberculosis); custodial care confinement in a hospital. You are not covered for routine physical examinations.

Major Hospital Care does not cover any treatment or service not reasonable or necessary for the diagnosis or treatment of sickness or injury; or to improve the functioning of a malformed body member.

Your policy cannot be cancelled or rates changed unless all policies with the same form number in your state are cancelled or changed. Major Hospital Care not available in North Carolina, South Carolina or Missouri.

No reductions in benefits. All Golden 65 Major Hospital Care policies pay in addition to Medicare. No physical examination required. No health questions asked. Acceptance in Golden 65 Major Hospital Care is guaranteed.

*Except in California.

IT OUTGROWED US
This shake roofed doll house is just too big. We don't have any children to fill the 3 huge bedrooms, or use the 2 big baths, there's no one to sit in front of the brick fireplace in the living room, or to hide through the deep wall to wall carpets, or close the drapes. We can't use the completely finished garage for a rumpus room with just the two of us, or cook a big dinner in the stately kitchen with built-in gas range & oven. There'll be no more football parties in our large 76x128 pie-shaped yard. If you could use these features in a house, give us a call.

Five Share Williams Lead in Final Round

be good enough to break the deadlock. "The course has been playing harder every day and they're sure to have the pin placements in some pretty tricky places on the final round," he pointed out.

Back of the five leaders at 208 are Paul Harney who bogeyed the 17th hole when he missed a four-foot putt to fall back after battling his way into a tie for the lead, another veteran, Dow Finsterwald (71), and Australian Bob Shaw (73) who held the lead at the halfway mark.

Shaw held on with a 73 despite injuring his back on a tremendous swing on the front side and after completing the round, headed for a doctor's office for treatment.

At that, the long-hitting Aussie almost salvaged a share of first place, but missed a seven foot birdie putt on the 18th after making a brilliant recovery from the trap in front of the green.

Threatening at 209 are Dave Hill (70), Art Wall (70), Dick Lotz (70), Bobby Mitchell (67) and Terry Dill, who skied to a 75 after being tied for the lead as late as the 11th hole Saturday.

Dill bogied 13 and 15 and then took a double bogey on the 17th despite playing deliberately in an effort to settle down.

Among the 10 golfers at 211, four swings back of the leaders, is Jack Nicklaus, who carded a 71 despite putting problems. Jack bogied the 12th hole when he three-putted from eight feet.

"I had several chances of shooting a better score, missing three short putts of six feet or under," said Barker one of the five leaders. "Then I had a couple of mental lapses on the late holes.

"Those mental lapses cost me the undisputed lead," Miller said. "I had several good opportunities, but just went to sleep."

Archer recorded three birdies and an eagle against a lone bogey which was the result of missing a four-foot uphill putt on the sixth hole.

George's putting was as sharp as it was in 1968 and '69 when he won over $255,000. He dropped in 35 and 20-foot birdie putts on the front side and a 15-footer on the 18th for his eagle three after reaching the green with a 235-yard approach shot with a 3-wood.

Stone was close to the hole all day with his fine iron play, his longest birdie putts being from 12 and 15 feet.

Eichelberger was in the lead all by himself after 12 holes when he went four under for the day and 12 for the tournament following birdie putts of 40 and 30 feet on 11 and 12.

The Texan, who led Oklahoma State to the NCCA golf championship in 1963, then bogied three of the next four holes to lose his advantage.

Elder said "My putting has been fantistic. In fact, it's been great ever since last October when I got a new putter. I've been in the money in every tournament since then."

On his three rounds, he's needed only 29, 26 and 28 putts — 25 under regulation.

"I'm putting more boldly now," he explained.

Bruin Swimmers, Ruggers in Action

UCLA's swimming and rugby teams are in action today on the Westwood campus.

Coach Bob Horn's Pacific-8 champion swimmers face the Arden Hills Swim Club of Sacramento at 11 a.m. in Park Pool.

The Bruin ruggers take on the Los Angeles Rugby Club on the North Athletic Field at 2:30 p.m.

Admission to both these events is free.

Golf Can Be a Funny Game

SAN DIEGO — This community is extremely celebrity conscious as demonstrated by attendance the past two years at the pro-am prelude of the Andy Williams-San Diego Open.

Last year's attendance was over 15,000 and according to a PGA official "was one of the three largest crowds we've seen in the past year."

Wednesday's attendance was even larger than the 1970 turnout. The gate so far exceeded expectations that they ran out of tickets early in the day and had to improvise.

Robert Stack proved to be the most popular celebrity in the pro-am from the standpoint of autograph seekers. He also was the most congenial of the show business stars who played in the affair.

Dean Martin, of course, drew the most laughs, as usual.

When he walked onto the first tee and saw the large gallery forming, he asked in his whiskey delivery "how did all of these people get in my room?"

He then said, "This isn't Arnie's Army. I know, they're Dino's Darlings."

Martin drew the biggest laugh of the day when he said "I just shook hands with Pat Boone . . . and the whole right side of my body sobered up."

After seven holes, he sent a friend to the clubhouse for refreshments. "I've had enough golf for one day," he explained, "Now I'm going to drink."

Incidentally, the PGA is giving serious consideration to awarding Martin a tournament — putting him in the same company with Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Andy Williams and Glen Campbell.

WITH SAN DIEGO WRITERS trying to draw praise from the golfers about the excellent condition of the Torrey Pines course it led Lionel Hebert to recall a tournament inwhich he entered down South several years ago.

It was played on a terrible course, which was made even worse by a rainstorm.

When Lionel finished up one of his rounds, a little old man wearing an officials' badge asked him "What do you think of the course?"

"It's the worst I've ever played in my life," Lionel answered truthfully.

The old gentleman, with a hurt look, then asked meekly: "Can't you think of even one other that's worse?"

ONE OF THE TOURING PROS, who loves to wager a few bob on various things, was telling about going out to Santa Anita a couple of weeks ago between tournaments . . . and, as usual moaning about his bad luck.

"Everytime I bet on a horse, I hear the same thing: "They're off — except one."

Jack Montgomery was asked what it feels like to take a 15 on a hole like he did on the 10th at Pebble Beach on the last round of the Crosby.

"After about 10 or 11 strokes, imagine if you can." he said. "walking out of a store with a bag of groceries and getting hit by a car. Sometimes, you don't care what happens to the bag."

Tony Jacklin draws chuckles when he is asked to explain the location of his hometown, Southorpe, England: "It's hard by Raddelthorpe, Mabelthorpe, Cleothorpe and, of course, Thorpe."

WHILE WAITING FOR THE LEADERS on the first day of play, some of the famous stories that have been spawned by golf tour were recalled.

One deals with a Ben Hogan worshipper, who imitated Hogan in attire, mannerisms and even his golf swing to some degree.

Like Hogan, he also was a perfectionist and shooting in the low 70's wasn't good enough for him.

He mentioned his displeasure to the bartender at his country club, who told him: "Your trouble is that you only practice six hours a day while Hogan has at it 12."

The next evening, after 12 hard hours of practice, the golfer wearily dragged himself up to the bar and climbed onto a stool.

"Well, how did it go?" the bartender asked

The Hogan worshipper showed him raw, bleeding hands and said , "I sure wish Ben would start wearing a glove."

In remembering some of the great remarks by pro golfers in the past few years, it was agreed that one of the classic lines was delivered by Chi Chi Rodriguez regarding the sudden appearance of a transplanted tree on the third fairway during the PGA championship a couple of years ago.

"I thought only God could make a tree," Chi Chi said, "but I forgot about the PGA."

ACCIDENT KILLS OSU CAGE STAR

LITCHFIELD (AP) — The offensive sparkplug on Oregon State University's basketball team was killed early Saturday when a car went off a highway near this Northern California community.

Mike Keck, Oregon's prep athlete of the year in 1967, was the victim in the auto accident which also injured a teammate and another OSU student.

Lassen County sheriff's deputies said the car left U.S. 395 near Litchfield about 2 a.m. and rolled over several times.

Larry Webber, 20, Sacramento, and Donald Williams, 23, Oregon City, Ore., were thrown from the car and their injuries were not serious. Keck was not thrown from the vehicle.

The 21-year-old Keck, a prep all-America in three sports, went out for basketball this fall after skipping freshman basketall and had been starting under new head coach Ralph Miller, averaging 14.1 points a game.

Webber, a 6-6 reserve center and forward in his second year on the varsity, will not be able to play basketball again this year.

Girl's Discus Travels 152-9

Monette Driscoll threw the discus 152-9 Saturday in an all-comers meet at Wilson High, for the best mark in the U.S. for women this year.

Debbie Riveria, 13, fired the discus 129-4 to better the national record by five feet and was 11 inches short of the world record in the four-kilo shot with a mark of 37-11½.

49er Swimmers Churn to Victory

Cal State Long Beach raced to an impressive double dual meet swimming victory over Cal State Fullerton and Cal Poly, Pomona, Saturday afternoon in the Fullerton campus pool.

The 49ers chalked up their 24th consecutive dual meet victory spanning three years with 81-32 and 77-36 decisions over Fullerton and Pomona, respectively.

Mitch Ivey, a world class swimmer and a transfer student from Stanford, paced the 49ers with two event wins — in the 200 individual medley and 200 backstroke — and anchored a winning 400 medley relay team.

German exchange student Hans Fassnacht made a shambles of the 1,000 freestyle, winning in a lopsided 9:53.6 — a full 41 seconds ahead of the second-place finisher.

'LIFE BEGINS AT 40'

Stone Blossoms Late

SAN DIEGO — "They say life begins at 40 . . . and I'm hoping this is not only true, but will get a little more lively for me," declared Bob Stone, the gray-haired 40-year-old pro from Independence, Mo., who is one of the five leaders after 54 holes of play in the Andy Williams — San Diego Open.

After missing the cut in the first three tournaments of the year after finally gaining the status of an exempt player, Stone made his first big move of 1971 Saturday when he fired a five-under-par 67 at Torrey Pines, the low score of the third round.

Stone is one of pro golf's rarities. He didn't even go on the PGA tour until he was 38. Already he's a candidate for the tournament circuit's "geritol crowd."

Bob, who turned professional in 1954, has bypassed the tour in favor of club jobs while raising his family.

He had served as the pro at the Rockwood Country Club in Independence for four years when members persuaded him to try the tour with their full backing.

"I always wanted to try it," he admitted. "and I figured I'd better go then or forget it."

He won just a little more than $9,000 in each of his first two years on the tour, "but I only played through the summer," he explained. "I didn't enter any fall tournaments."

Last year was the first time he played the whole tour, and he won his status as an exempt player for 1971 by finishing 38th on the PGA point list. He was 65th on the money list with $36,087.

Bob's best finish in a major tournament so far has been third in the 1970 Canadian Open after leading the field for 36 holes.

He scored one victory in a satellite event, the Florida Citrus Open, and it earned him a check of $5,000.

Asked if he favors any part of his game, he says, "No, I just draw back and hit the ball."

Other "over-40" golfers who will be challenging for first money today include Paul Harney (41), Dow Finsterwald (41) and Art Wall (47), all within two strokes of the leaders.

TRY RANGERS TONIGHT
Kings, Wings in Knots, 3-3

DETROIT (Special) — The Kings and Detroit Red Wings just can't settle their differences.

Doug Robinson's flip shot from close range with less than four minutes remaining Saturday night produced a predictable result — a 3-3 National Hockey League stalemate.

It was the third tie in three King-Wing confrontations this season and helped extend the Kings' unbeaten streak to five games.

Robinson's goal, his 18th of the season, came at the 16:19 mark of the third period. He took linemate Bill Flett's drop pass and beat Detroit goaltender Jim Rutherford from directly in front of the net.

Despite the deadlock, the Kings lost ground in the race for a playoff position in the West Division as both Pittsburgh and Philadelphia produced victories, leaving the Kings six points removed from the fourth and final berth.

They'll have a chance to move up tonight when they tackle the New York Rangers at Madison Square Garden.

Ralph Backstrom, playing only his second game in a King uniform, and Ross Lonsberry shot the Kings into a 2-0 lead after eight minutes of the first period but the Red Wings caught up before the end of the period on a pair of power play goals by rookie Guy Charron.

Both of Charron's scores were set up by Bruce McGregor, the first coming with Gilles Marotte sitting out a penalty and the second with Lonsberry in the box.

Gordie Howe, back on defense for Detroit, slammed in a slapshot from the blueline early in the second period to give the Wings their first lead before Robinson salvaged the tie.

SCRAMBLE FOR PLAYOFFS
Penguins Trim Black Hawks, 3-1

Combined News Services

Val Fonteyne scored his first two goals of the season to lead the Pittsburgh Penguins to a 3-1 victory over the Chicago Black Hawks in a National Hockey League game Saturday night.

The victory snapped the Penguins' nine-game losing streak to Chicago and moved Pittsburgh into a fourth-place tie with Minnesota in the hot battle along with the Kings for the last playoff berth in the NHL West.

Bobby Clarke scored two goals and assisted in two others to give the Philadelphia Flyers a 5-2 victory over the New York Rangers, breaking a six-game winless string.

The Flyers piled up a 5-0 lead on New York goalie Gilles Villemure, who lost for only the third time in 21 appearances.

Norm Ullman scored two goals and Paul Henderson added four points to power the Toronto Maple Leafs to a 5-4 victory over the Montreal Canadiens before 17,809.

The victory broke the Leafs' three-game losing streak and moved the fourth place club to within six points of the third place Canadiens in the East Division.

Montreal defenseman Serge Savard injured his left leg in the first period and had to be helped from the ice after being checked heavily by Bobby Baun. It was the same leg which Savard broke near the end of last season, forcing him to miss the early part of the present season.

Lynn Wins Skate Title Despite Fall

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Blonde Janet Lynn, seemingly skating harder after a spill in the most difficult part of her program, won her third consecutive national senior women's title Saturday in the U.S. Figure Skating Championships.

Her brilliant performance carried her to victory over pert Julie Lynn Holmes, 19, of Littleton, Colo., the runnerup the last two years.

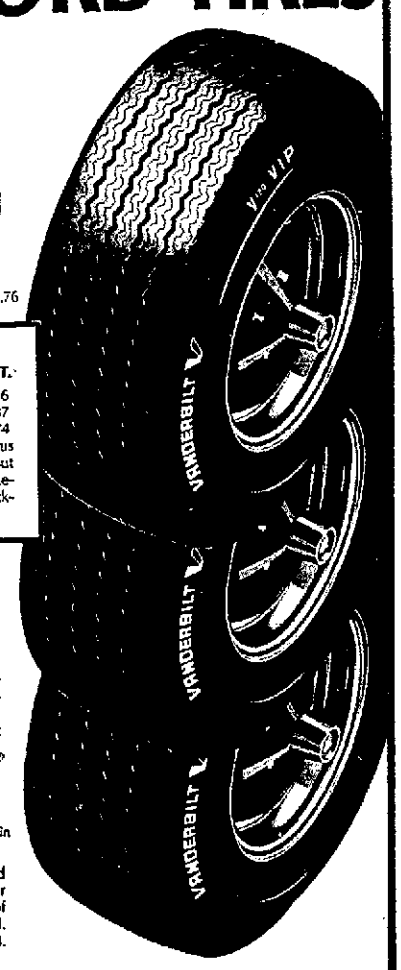

Tiny Suna Murray, 14, of South Orange, N.J., in fourth place after the compulsory figures, gained third place with one of the most dazzling exhibitions of the afternoon.

MAYCO

DONNELL CULPEPPER

Dr. McCoy Takes Tuna Club Gavel

The old saying, "like father, like son," can be so true in some cases. In this particular case — the turnover of officers of the Southern California Tuna Club last Thursday night — the saying was true in two ways. Dr. N. Robert (Bob) McCoy, a Los Alamitos dentist, became president of the club, succeeding Earle Sullivan.

DR. ROBERT McCOY
Heads Tuna Club

Back in 1955, Dr. McCoy's father, also a dentist with a practice in Long Beach, was president of the SCTC. Dr. McCoy Sr. joined others in that Great Unknown two or three years ago. When Dr. McCoy Sr. was alive, both he and his son were active in the SCTC and in other civic activities. They were strict conservationists, and young Bob still is.

Dr. McCoy and his wife, Joyce, live at 16892 Harkness Circle, Huntington Harbour, and have three children, Cathy Ann, 14, Michael, 12, and Kelly, 7. Don't be confused by those names. Kelly is a girl.

The entire family has a hand in running the family boat, the Honker, a 33-foot Drake that already has been stained with marlin and broadbill blood.

Joyce was the first to christen the boat with a marlin. Later, Don Billings, also a SCTC member put a broadbill on board while riding as a guest on the Honker. So young Bob thinks that the new boat has had a successful start and is looking forward to a catch of his own this year, plus others, he hopes.

DR. McCOY IS A NATIVE SON, but his wife came from Minnesota. Bob went to Naples Grade School, Will Rogers Junior High, Wilson High, Long Beach City College and finally to USC for his dental training. He also put in 3½ years in the U.S. Navy in World War II.

The Southern California Tuna Club, although allied closely with the Tuna Club (Avalon) and possibly an offset from that club, was conceived the year in which Bob was born — 1925.

His acceptance of the gavel Thursday night was the first time in history that either club had ever had a father-and-son succession in the top office.

Taking office with Dr. McCoy were Mel Masterson, vice president; Warren Merrill, secretary, and Paul Southgate Jr., treasurer. Sullivan became one of the directors, along with these others, Russell Pray, Don Billings, Dr. J. Thomas Hardesty, Mel Marsh and Clarence Hunt.

Dr. McCoy intends to keep the club's lineup of activities consistent, with Ladies Night scheduled for February, the Father-Son-Daughter Easter vacation trip to Rancho Buena Vista, the Mexican billfish tournament, Lake Mead annual camp, all of the tournaments and banquets and a more important role in the annual All-City Kids Fishing Rodeo at Belmont Pier, which the club co-sponsors with the Long Beach Recreation Department.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — A new bright star has appeared in shooting sports and he is only 17. He is Wayne Henry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Henry, 13613 Leibacher Ave., Norwalk. Wayne started shooting when he was 10, won the state and sub-junior titles in 1967, and took top honors at the State Junior Position Championship last May, firing a score of 781 out of 800, with 43 bull's-eyes.

Wayne became the top shooter in the Southern California Rifle League, composed of 26 clubs, scoring 5,444 out of 5,600, with 201 bull's eyes. Firing was done in three position matches, plus two prone positions.

In case you have forgotten, today is the final day to see the Los Angles Boat Show at the Pan-Pacific Auditorium on Beverly Blvd. in Los Angeles, and the International Sports, Travel and Vacation Show at the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

Fred Tabery and Fred Hall, co-producers of the Sports Show at the Arena, announced that, due to so much interest in outdoor equipment, the show will open at 10:30 a.m. today. It will close at 11 p.m.

The Boat Show, however, won't open until noon today and will end at 7 p.m. Ed Nichols, managing director for the Southern Californnia Marine Assn., which sponsors the show, says that boats worth $3 million were marked "sold" in the first four days of the Boat Show.

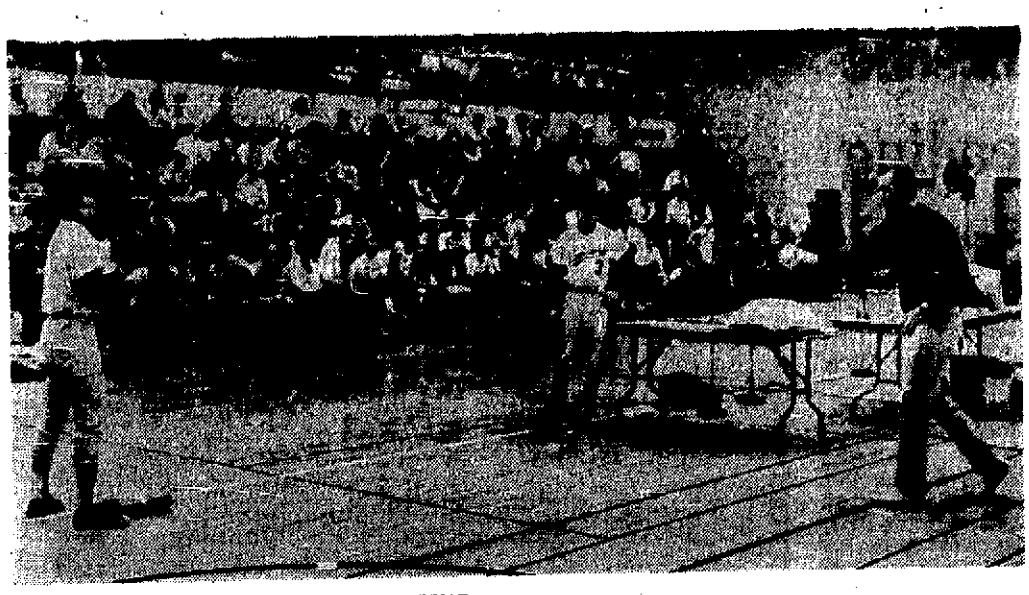

STEPHEN VALL BECAME PRESIDENT of the Douglas Long Beach Rod and Gun Club at its annual installation dinner Saturday night in the Water Wheel Restaurant, Anaheim. He succeeded Kenneth A. Ayre. G. R. Walter and Paul Duffy were installed as vice presidents.

The following directors also took office: W. D. Conaway, Robert Harn, Richard Brown, D. W. Fox, Arthur Johnson, E. A. Young, Lloyd Sunderman, Herb Lonberger, K. A. Ayre and M. C. Macklin.

Tom Lingham, in charge of Cachuma Lake Boat Rentals, says that trout fishermen are doing quite well, still-fishing with bait and trolling at the east end of the lake, in Santa Cruz Bay and the channel west of the log line. Trout plants by the Department of Fish and Game and Santa Barbara County will continue through mid-March.

Al Miles of South Gate knows how to take trout from Anaheim Lake. In 30 trips to the lake on Miraloma he has caught 27 limits. He fishes in all parts of the lake and uses all kinds of lures. His last limit was in the week just ended and he caught his limit on a 29-cent spoon with no name and purchased in a discount store.

Irvine Lake trout fishing is on the upswing, with fishermen using the following baits and lures: cheese, salmon eggs, floating bait, Mepps spinners, Hot Shots and Rapalas.

BASEBALL JUST AROUND CORNER

No one has to ask whether it's baseball season or not after annual Long Beach Unified School District's baseball coaches clinic. Coaches from throughout Southern California gathered at Long Beach City College to watch demonstrations like doubleplay executed by Lakewood High's Gary Brewsaugh (left) and Jerry Pitts and former major league shortstop Roy Smalley.

Schofield Scores Sailing Triumph

Henry Schofield, former Cal State Long Beach all-America sailing for Alamitos Bay Yacht Club, swept three races Saturday from Harry Moloshco of Long Beach to advance to next weekend's Southern California sailoffs for two berths in the Long Beach Congressional Cup match race series March 18-20.

Schofield, 27 - year - old sailmaker, was at the tiller of the sloop Duello, owned by Long Beach Yacht Club member Dr. Bill White, while Moloshco, an LBYC member sailing on behalf of Little Ships Fleet, was aboard his own Cal 40 sloop, Gypsy, in the final match of a Long Beach-Los Angeles Harbor quarterfinal elimination which began last weekend with seven original entrants.

Competition was also taking place at Marina del Rey and off Newport Harbor to determine which skippers will tangle, along with San Diego Y.C.'s Dennis Conner, off Long Beach next Saturday and Sunday. The Marina del Rey and Newport competitions continue today.

CINCY IN WITH FLYNN

76ers Chasing Knicks

Combined News Services

Hal Greer, the NBA's newest addition to the 20,000 point club, scored on a soft jumper from the top of the key with 12 seconds remaining Saturday night to lift Philadelphia past New York, 106-105, and close the 76ers to within 4½ games of the first place Knicks in the Atlantic Division.

Flynn Robinson, who did not play in the first half, sank 19 points in the final two periods as Cincinnati registered a 116-110 win and spoiled a 44-point effort by Elvin Hayes.

Norm Van Lier topped the Royals with 25 points and Hayes was high for the game with the 44 points on 15 of 28 field goals and 14 of 23 free throws. He also had 20 rebounds.

The loss for the Rockets was the 13th out of their last 14 games.

Phoenix broke open a tight contest late in the second quarter and rolled to a 134-116 triumph over Seattle.

King Rogers			7.60

Start good from gate, won driving. Mutuel pool—$231,688.

NEARLY PASSED broke alertly, attended the early pace along the outside, responded to strong urging in the stretch to get the edge and held over COUR LA HARI. The latter was hand urged early to be within easy striking distance while saving ground, found room in the middle of the track to challenge the winner in the drive but was not good enough. KING ROGERS lacked early speed and hung late.

SCRATCHED—Fazco, King's Spirit, Hikari, Jims Lady, Little Commander.

2227—SECOND RACE. 6 furlongs. 4 year olds & up. Purse $4500. Top claiming price $12,500.

SWIFT FOOT broke on top, sprinted to a clear early lead, responded to hard urging through the stretch and lasted. WINDY POINT maneuvered through heavy traffic early to move nearer, rallied in the stretch to narrow the gap on the winner but was not quite strong enough. FIDUCIARY raced wide and could make only gradual headway in the drive.

SCRATCHED—Fleet's Rule, Silver Duke, Flying Kacy, Golden Buttons.

DAILY DOUBLE, 12—NEARLY PASSED & 12—SWIFT FOOT, PAID $127.20.

STAR OF KUWAIT broke smoothly and hard pressed early while establishing the lead, drew off and won all out while holding off MISTY MONDAY. The latter lacked early speed, caught his best stride midway on the turn, rallied from the outside and finished fastest. BUKGRET was asked to be close up from the outset, raced wide and tired in the final furlong.

SCRATCHED—Coach Crowley, Trudy Will.

EARL OF MILLDALE moved up to attend the pace from along the rail after crossing onto the main track, turned back FIGONERO at the furlong pole after gaining the lead and won all out. FIGONERO raced within striking distance from the outset, saved ground and offered his best bid from along the rail in the upper stretch then slackened while in close. SIR WIGGLE rallied into a wall of horses midway on the turn, took up and fell back, recovered in the stretch and finished fastest along the outside.

SCRATCHED—Good Manners.

EL ROBLES JET raced unhurried early while maneuvering for racing room, cut between the leaders in the stretch to rally and won gamely. SOLO SAIL was permitted to drop off the early pace, saved as much ground as possible while coming down the hillside, rallied when settled into the stretch and finished with good speed on the outside. GROOVY GRAY broke alertly, shared the early lead with Titanium Pie, discouraged that one to be clearly in front and weakened in the drive.

No scratches.

DOMINANT STAR, under a clever ride, took back off the early pace, moved up on the far turn to wear down PRADO STAR, took a slight edge into the stretch and held off BORQUE under a hand ride during a long hard drive. The latter raced in hand early, rallied wide on the far turn to repeatedly challenge the winner but was not good enough. DOUBLEY ROYAL improved his position without becoming a threat to the top two.

SURFACE THINKER broke in stride, outraced LADY BROADCAST early to take a commanding lead and held it from the outside and could not match strides with the winner through the stretch. WAR HEIM saved ground in an even effort. LOUD had to be taken in hand early while drifting out, raced sticktsd along the rail to midstretch and could make little headway when tiredly clear. AGGRESSIVELY raced along the outside and lacked a closing kick. WICKED MAN stumbled at the start, recovered quickly to set the pace to the upper stretch and weakened. MAYHEDO lost ground. PROTANTO was sent up wide on the far turn, raced wide to the stretch and gave out.

No scratches.

Porsche Leading Ferrari

3-Car Accident Mars 24-Hour Race

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — A fiery accident just before midnight knocked a Porsche that was running in second place out of the 24 Hours of Daytona endurance race Saturday and forced a Ferrari that was running third into the pit for extensive repairs.

The three-car accident on the high east turn of Daytona International Speedway gave the front-running Porsche driven by Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico and Jackie Oliver of England a lead that seemingly could only be lost if that car should break down.

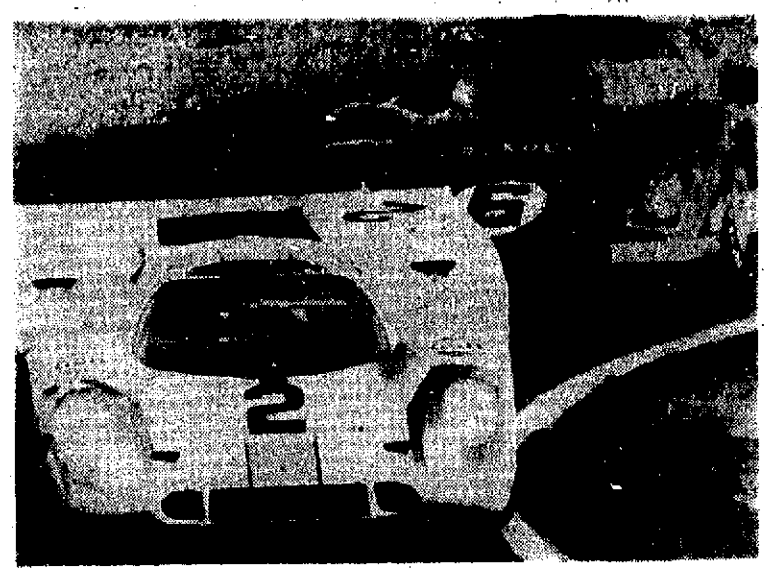

At the time of the accident, the Rodriguez-Oliver works Porsche 917, the same type car Rodriguez drove to victory here last year, held a whopping eight-lap lead over the second-place Porsche driven by Vic Elford of England and Gijs Van Lennep of Holland.

The nearest Ferrari, driven by Mark Donohue of Media, Pa., and David Hobbs of England, was in third place, 16 laps — 61 miles — behind.

Elford was at the wheel of the Martini & Rossi Porsche and Donohue at the wheel of the Roger Penske Ferrari when they collided with a conventional Porsche 911 driven by Charles Perry of Jacksonville, Fla.

Donohue was able to limp his car into the pit for repairs but the other two cars were sidelined and Elford and Perry were taken to a field hospital for observation. Neither was reported seriously hurt.

The accident enabled another Ferrari 512, one driven by Rennie Bucknum of Playa-Del-Ray, Calif., Tony Adamowicz of Winton, Conn., and Alain de Cadanet of London, England, to take over second place after nine hours and 20 minutes of the 24-hour grind.

$67,000 SAN FERNANDO STAKES

Willowick Silences Loud

Longshot Willowick, lightly weighted at 113 pounds, scored an upset victory Saturday in the $67,600 San Fernando Stakes at Santa Anita as the odds-on favorite, Loud, trailed fourth in the field of eight 4-year-olds.

Riding before a crowd of 48,500 on a summer-like afternoon, Jockey Eddie Belmonte brought Willowick into the lead in the stretch and outdueled the well-regarded Hanalei Bay with another longshot, War Heim, third.

The result left wide open the outcome of the $100,000-added Charles H. Strub Stakes two weeks away, the highlight of the season for the 4-year-old division.

Loud, from the William Haggin Perry stables, and ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., carried 120 pounds, as did Robert K. Miller's Hanalei Bay.

The time for the 1⅛-mile feature was 1:48 4-5.

Willowick, a Kentucky colt owned by R. E. Hibbert, paid $26.60, $18.20 and $5.60; Hanalei Bay, $4.20 and $3.60 and War Heim $10.60.

Willowick's stakes victories this year included the San Francisco Handicap at Bay Meadows and the Sacramento Derby and Rancho del Paso at Sacramento.

Wicked Man, a speed horse, took a quick lead under the urging of Alvaro Pineda and hung on until he began to fade at the far turn. Hanalei Bay and Willowick were never far back, and Mayhedo took a brief lead coming toward the head of the stretch.

Loud was never in serious contention and suffered his second consecutive stakes defeat at the meeting.

OUR CHERI AMOUR, a loser in three earlier filly stakes, continued her master over colts when she captured the $33,975 Militia Handicap at Liberty Bell track by three lengths over Sense A Fear.

Our Cheri Amour returned $12.80, $6.80 and $3.60 to her backers in the crowd of 20,743.

AT PIMLICO, Favorecidian, the 122-pound high-weight in the field, raced to a popular victory in the $27,800 Baltimore Handicap before a crowd of 16,573.

The winner paid $4.60, $2.80 and $2.40. Never Wink returned $3.20 and $2.60 with Knight Charger II $3.20 to show.

DRUMTOP won the first division of the $26,625 Palm Beach Handicap at Hialeah and Mongo's Pride came on from last place to win the second half.

Drumtop paid $4.20, $3.20 and $2.60. Kling Kling paid $11.80 and $3.80. Eaglesham paid $3.80 to show.

Mongo's Pride paid $9, $6.60 and $4.40. Roman Scout $16.20 and $10.60 and More The Merrier $7 to show.

FATHER'S GRAY bagged the six-furlong Ensenada Purse and completed a perfect 5-10 card for two players at Caliente.

Each collected $16,451.20 as Father's Gray made it six in a row for them when he romped home in front of Silent Spectre and Cousin Tony in 1:10 3-5.

BRUINS, 74-61—

UCLA had only a four-point lead, 56-52, heading into the final 10 minutes, then muscled in three consecutive baskets to blow the game open.

"UCLA has to get more help from its guards," said Gaucho coach Ralph Barkey. "The Bruins' offensive rebounding has been carrying them all year. If they get more help from the guards, they'll probably go all the way again."

On Saturday, however, help from the backcourt was thin. Henry Bibby had eight points and was beaten consistently on defense by Schachter, and Terry Schofield, making his first start for UCLA, had four. Kenny Booker came on in relief to contribute five.

Rowe made 11 of 17 shots in getting his 28 points and contributed 11 rebounds. His mate at forward, Sidney Wicks, either is overrated or underproductive. He had 19 points off 20 shots, many of them selected with the care of a child.

Schachter led UC Santa Barbara with 17, making all seven field goal attempts.

Said Rowe of the upcoming Bruin-Trojan game:

"If we're not sharp against the Trojans, they might blow us out. That would be embarrassing."

Wooden concurred. Then he was asked if the continuance of the NBA-ABA bidding war affects senior teams such as his.

"In this particular case, I'm sure it does," he said with great emphasis.

He's got troubles, right there in title city.

gone "it curtailed our momentum," said Boyd. "We fouled excessively until halftime."

Loyola cut the margin to six points at 50-44 1½ minutes into the second half but a free throw by Riley and two baskets by Layton boosted the margin to 55-44 and the Trojans extended the lead from there.

For the first time this season Riley was not the Trojan rebound leader. Schrobilgen grabbed 13 rebounds while Riley, who ranks among the nation's leaders, was held to just six due to limited playing time and an outstanding effort by the Ramblers' Martin who grabbed 19 caroms and fly-swatted half a dozen shots.

Westphal hit nine of 13 shots from the floor for Troy and crashed the boards for eight rebounds most of them coming after intermission.

The 16-game winning streak tops the 15 in a row record established by the Trojan team of 1942-43.

President Nixon Betting on 'Skins for Title in '71

Combined News Services

George Allen made his first trade as head coach of the Washington Redskins with some apprehension. "I hope Mr. Nixon approves," he said referring to a discussion he had with President Nixon Tuesday.

Allen got his answer Friday. A telegram arrived saying, "Great trade. I am betting on the Skins for the championship in '71 or '72. Richard Nixon."

BJK Nearly Upset Victim

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — In one of her toughest matches of the year, Billie Jean King came from the brink of defeat to edge Kerry Melville, 6-7, 6-2, 6-4, in the quarter-final round of the Virginia Slims Invitational Tennis Tournament here Saturday night before 2,000 fans.

Miss Melville, who appeared to be in complete control as the first set progressed, broke Billie Jean's second serve to gain a 4-2 advantage.

Top-seeded Billie Jean finally tied the set at 6-6 and it went to the 9 point tiebreaker with Kerry taking five straight points and 7-5 win.

Mrs. King gave herself a loud scolding and then won five of the first six games in the second set that eventually produced a 6-2 win.

The two battled closely through the third set, with Mrs. King moving in front on the ninth game and winning the match with a long lob shot over Miss Melville's outstretched arm.

In other quarter finals play, Francois Durr consistently hit backhand passing shots to defeat Denise Carter, 6-2, 6-3.

Miss Durr will play Billie Jean King in today's semi-finals match with Rosemary Casals playing Ann Haydon Jones in the other semifinals contest.

In Saturday afternoon play, Jan Jones used experience and well-placed shots to stop Tory Fretz, 6-2, 6-1, in second round singles play.

Saturday's Results

Ann Jones def. Tory Fretz 6-2, 6-1; Rosemary Casals def. MaryAnn Curtis, 6-4, 6-4.

Doubles: Esme Emanual-Cesi Martinez def. Fretz-tepShanie Johnson 6-3, 6-4; Valerie Ziegenfuss-Judy Dalton def. Bartkowic-Judy Dalton, 6-3, 7-6.

Friday's Results

Cecl Martinez 1-6, 6-2, 6-1; Francois Durr def. Kristy Pigeon 7-5, 2-6, 6-4; Kerry Melville def. Esme Emanual 6-4, 6-2; Rosemary Casals def. Stephanie Johnson 6-1, 6-2.

MSU LOST SHIRTS BUT WON GAME

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — The "Ohio State" team was certain to win the basketball game Saturday night.

Michigan State's uniforms vanished from the locker room here just before the Big Ten game with Ohio State, so the team from East Lansing played in the Buckeyes' scarlet travel clothing labeled "Ohio State." The Bucks wore their usual white home uniforms.

MSU took out its irritation with an 82-70 triumph.

Haynes Gains Fight Victory

Chuck Haynes, 195, San Diego, scored a 10-round unanimous decision Saturday night over Shotgun Joe Shelton, 205, San Francisco, in the main event at the Valley Arena.

Haynes took the lead early with a powerful body assault that staggered Shelton several times midway through the fight. Shelton was on the defensive most of the way except for an occasional small flurry.

Haynes with the victory improved his record to 19-1-2 and hoped to get a rematch with Joey Orbillo, the only man to defeat him as a pro.

Brubabes Romp to 12th Victory

For the ninth time in 12 games this season, UCLA's undefeated frosh basketball team swept over the century mark in scoring a 113-53 victory over the UC Santa Barbara frosh Saturday afternoon in Pauley Pavilion. The Brubabes are now averaging 106.3 points.

Keith Wilkes, 6-6½ forward, led the Brubabes in both scoring and rebounding with 26 and 16 totals, respectively.

DAVE SOUTAR TRIUMPHS IN $50,000 GREATER L.A. OPEN

Dave Soutar of Gilroy, Calif., who won more professional bowling tournaments than anyone else in 1970, posted his first victory of 1971 Saturday in the $50,000 Greater Los Angeles Open.

The 30-year-old veteran of the Professional Bowlers Assn. tour went into the title game as the top-seeded player of the five survivors from an original field of 160.

Soutar defeated Dick Ritger of Hartford, Wis., 235-210 in the final game for the $6,000 first prize. Soutar opened with three strikes and never trailed. Ritger lost his last chance in the eighth frame when he toppled only six pins after two strikes.

For Soutar, it was his 11th PBA tournament victory. Last year he won five titles.

The five bowlers in the finals averaged 233 in the four nationally televised matches at Bowling Square in Arcadia. Ritger closed his semifinal victory over Barry Asher of Costa Mesa with nine strikes for 270. Asher had beaten Gary Dickinson of Fort Worth and Bill Johnson of New Orleans.

It was Soutar's first win in 1971.

Laura Can't Go Where Boys Are

The CIF Council Saturday refused to make a special case out of Laura Baugh that would have allowed the Long Beach teenager to compete on the Wilson High boys golf team.

By a voice vote in its meeting at Gahr High School in Norwalk, the Council upheld the state CIF rule that forbids girls to compete on boys teams.

Attorneys Don Wallis and Don Powars, representing Miss Baugh, had hoped that the council would make an experimental case out of Miss Baugh's situation and allow her to compete this year.

Wallis said earlier this week that if Miss Baugh was thwarted in her attempt Saturday a lawsuit would be initiated. He was not available to substantiate that statement late Saturday.

It was revealed by a CIF spokesman, however, that the attorneys would attend a state CIF meeting Feb. 20 to appeal the Saturday decision.

Miss Baugh, a sophomore at Wilson, won the Long Beach and Los Angeles women's titles this past summer and is considered good enough to make the Bruin varsity.

Dodgers, National League Plan Earliest Opener Yet

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)— The National League baseball season will have its earliest start in history, with April 5 openers at Cincinnati and Houston and including a record 611 night games.

The earliest opening date previously in the 96-year history of the league was April 6 last season.

The Cincinnati Reds will play their traditional season opener — but for the first time in their new Riverfront Stadium — against the Atlanta Braves.

The Dodgers will be at Houston for the Astrodome season opener.

National League president Charles S. Feeney said the 12 clubs will fly a total of 383,640 miles in 1971, which is less than the number of air miles required under the 1970 scheduling.

The schedule format is the same that has been used since divisional play began in 1969. Each club will play 18 games against teams in its own division and 12 against teams from the other division.

Naval Station Top Choice in Cage Tourney

Coach Ray Gritton's speedy Long Beach Naval Station Islanders are favored to win the 11th District Northern Area basketball tournament opening Monday at the Naval Station.

All games will be in Stark Gym and the public is invited to watch the seven-team, double-elimination meet. Winner and runnerup enter the district finals, also in stark Gym Feb. 8-11.

The USS Bainbridge, winner of the station's Holiday Tournament, and Pt. Mugu Naval Air Station are favored behind Gritton's charges.

Monday's Games: 4 P.M. — USS Bainbridge vs. USS Saginaw; 6—USS Higbee vs. USS Decatur; 8—Islander vs. USS Leonard F. Mason.
Tuesday's: 4—Higbee-Decatur loser vs. Islanders-Mason loser; 6—Ph. Mugu NAS vs. Bainbridge-Saginaw winner; 8—Higbee-Decatur winner vs. Mason-Islanders winner.

Record Holder in Marathon

More than 200 long distance runners—including a world record holder and an Olympic Games contender—have entered the World Masters Marathon which will be held Saturday at Anaheim Stadium.

Derek Clayton of Australia, 26-mile record holder with a clocking of 2 hours, 8 minutes and 33.6 seconds will compete along with Pablo Garrido who ran for Mexico in the 1968 Games.

Meet director Bill Selvin expects the entry list will swell to nearly 400 before the race commences at 1 p.m.

To Peter Max, art is a four-letter word

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Peter Max's art is psychedelic, calligraphic, kaleidoscopic, gaudy and mind-expanding. It's shot through with stars, planets, astrological signs, the cosmos.

Not only that. It's everywhere. On murals, bank checks, body stockings, wall coverings, posters swim suits, umbrellas, shoes, the New York telephone book, buses, books, health food cereal — the list is endless.

But the message is always the same four-letter word: LOVE.

Because his work is in such demand, the message also translates into L$VE.

And that's very good for the Earl and Loraine Miller Children's Hospital Medical Center at Long Beach Memorial Hospital.

Maurie Symonds, owner of The Upstairs Gallery, 675 E. Wardlow Road, will have a comprehensive exhibit of Peter Max art from Feb. 6 through March 7.

AS A BENEFIT for the Children's Hospital, there will be two opening receptions. Symonds is donating all profits from sales of paintings, sculpture, lithographs and other media during the openings to the hospital. Further, a percentage of sales from books, posters and smaller items throughout the run of the exhibit will be donated.

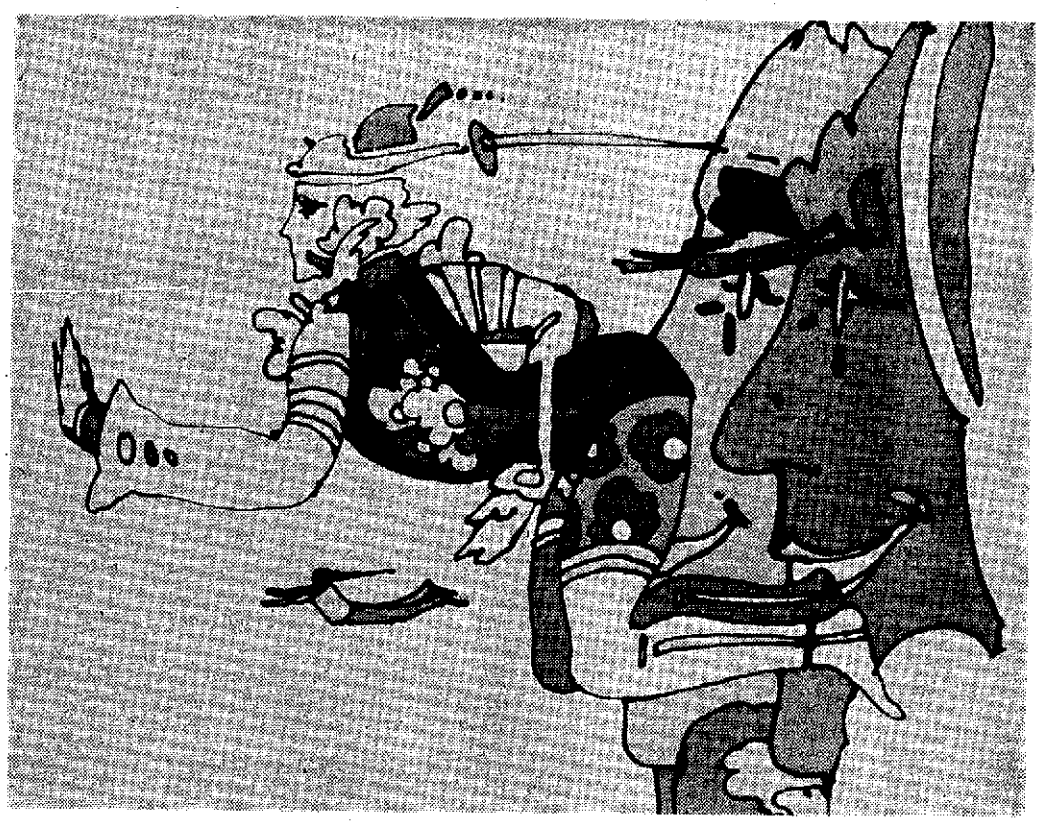

The first opening Friday night, strictly invitational, is hosted by the Nightingales and the Children's Hospital Auxiliary. Saturday the public is invited. Peter Max will attend both.

He will be at the gallery from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and there probably will be with him a chanting group of his brother monks from the Integral Yoga Institute of Los Angeles.

After many tries this week, he was caught on the wing in New York for a telephone interview. He had just flown in from a business conference in Acapulco.

"I spend a fourth of my life traveling," he said. "I am deeply involved in World Enlightenment now. We will have a World Enlightenment Festival for five days beginning Aug. 9 in Oregon.

"This will be the first festival to raise the conscious level of mankind. We have two sites of 2,000 acres we are considering. We have had a 'yes' from the governor who is now getting legal approval.

"There will be 450 masters of psychology, Zen, and other areas of science and spirit. Bishops, Jews, nuns, ministers — all kinds of people will attend.

"It is possible the Pope will come. He will receive a handwritten invitation from me. Recently, my Yoga master spent several hours with him and he sent his blessing."

This will be no Woodstock, Peter explained. "We've been working on this idea for only five weeks and already 65 groups have responded, volunteering to take on work loads. This festival will be on a very sophisticated level. We have engineering groups planning the arrangements. All religious and spiritual groups will be welcome to speak their piece. There will be seminars between masters of groups and the festival will be covered by television, motion pictures and writers."

IN LIGHT of Peter's fantastic, though brief, history, all this seems quite possible. Born Oct. 19, 1939, in Berlin, he was taken to Shanghai when his family fled the Nazis. His father was a wealthy pearl merchant; the family lived in China for 12 years across from a Buddhist monastery. Next they went to Tibet where Peter's playmates were the children of a maharajah. Back in Shanghai, the family found Communists in power, so went to Israel. When he was 13, Peter studied astronomy at the University of Haifa. In 1953, the family moved to New York where Peter studied at the Art Student's League.

With Tom Daly he opened an art studio in 1962; they won 62 design awards in three years. Then Peter closed the studio. He had $75,000 in the bank. In the next two years, he drew designs and married a beauty queen, Liz. They have two children, Adam Cosmo, now 6, and Libra Astro, now 4.

When Peter emerged from his two-year "retreat" nothing happened but money. Everything was successful and today he is a millionaire.

Does he think there will come a point of saturation — of too many Peter Max designs?

"No! My art is of joy, bliss, peace. There isn't enough of that around. My art is on walls, you wear it, live in it. All people want peace, happiness, understanding."

Four-and-a-half years ago, Peter met Swami Satchindananda and began studying Yoga. "Always I had this tremendous desire to bring higher consciousness to this planet. I have now reached the plateau through my art that gives me a worldwide audience; I am in touch with the great sages and masters. I'm like a wandering monk.

"Something is happening much greater than I — I am in a great tidal wave of creativity. I am a few drops in a major ocean. I become intoxicated with life itself."

Peter is involved with anti-drug movements and in March will donate some of his art for auction to benefit the Encounter Group. "Yoga is the answer to the drug problem, it fills the need, strengthens mind, body and spirit."

And Friday and Saturday Peter will come to Long Beach to help his art help children.

SOCIALLY SPEAKING

Parties judged a success

By CAROLYN McDOWELL

It was a big week for Law and Order when two Long Beach attorneys, among newest appointees to the Superior Court of the County of Los Angeles, were feted at parties following formal enrobing ceremonies at the Hall of Justice in Los Angeles.

It was a family affair when Campbell (Sandy) Lucas was enrobed by his younger brother, Malcolm, who happens to be Judge Malcolm Lucas, supervising judge of the Criminal Court of Los Angeles County and his former law partner George, who happens to be Senator George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, 37th Senatorial Dist.

The family affair continued on at the Alamitos Heights home of Sandy and wife, Liz, when relatives and long time friends gathered to congratulate His Honor. Among congratulators (I think I just made up a new word) were the Lucases, Mal and Joan, Pat and Bill and Eric, Jack and Pat Vander Lans, Don and Linda Dyer, Walt and Marguerite Masters, John and Aurora Minasian and Dr. Marjorie Forrest.

Other celebrants included Court Commissioner Jack and Grace Carroll, Doug and Lois Dailey, Jack and Dawn Duncan, Bill and Elen Frith, George and Willie Engelage, Bill and Mary Lingensmith, Tom and Mae Gaggs, Bill and Fran Gillis, Morris and Georgine Hayter and Dick and Barbara Rodgers, John and Margaret Kinzer, Dr. Dick and Joan Saunders and Don Caffray.

Senator George and Gloria Deukmejian came by as did the Utechts, Pete and Hildy; the Kights, Mason and Jan; the Kenadys, Al and Joan; the Barbians, Bud and Lorraine; the Reeds, Jack and Carmen; the Stoners, Warren and Alice; the Sanders, Fred and Marie; Lois Weiss and Liz's brother, Bob Buse, with his Jane.

POPULAR ATTORNEY David Eagleson was enrobed the same day at the same ceremony, but he and Virginia received congratulations the following night.

If one had had the effrontery to bt so undignified as to yell "Here Come de Judge" at the Park Estates home of the Eaglesons it might have started a stampede. Dave was toasted by Judges and their wives Charles Loring (he is presiding Judge of the Superior Court of the County of Los Angeles) Alfred McCourtney (he is assistant presiding judge) Malcolm Lucas (I told you about him already — you must pay attention), Charles Statton, Robert Wenke, Max Wisot, Beach Vasey and Campbell Lucas.

Other members of the law fraternity who came by to offer congratulations were the Bob Bergmanns, "Pete" Utechts, Don Wallaces, Jack Grishams, Gene Kirkpatricks, Dale Deatherages, Edwin Wilson, Loyal Pulleys, Patrick Phelans and the Harry Simons, Harry fresh from taking over the gavel as new president of the Long Beach Bar Association.

NO, IT WASN'T A mass evacuation from the city, it was just 600 members and guests of the Long Beach Symphony Guild boarding busses for a journey to view "Song of Norway" at the Cinerama Dome Theatre in Hollywood.

Guild President, Eva Miner and husband, Dr. Mark, hosted a pre-party in their newly UN-decorated home. Taking advantage of the wide open spaces created by the absence of all their furniture, which is being recovered, they easily seated 40 guests for dinner.

Diners included Russell and Elizabeth Peterson, George and Norma Richards, Leslie and Olive Smith, Jack and Barbara London, Bob and Charlene Basham, Dale and Letty Brown and Noel and Marge Cady.

Symphony Maestro Alberto Bolet enjoyed a night out with his Rosita, others were Jack and Grace Walton, Howard and Mary Noble and Ted and Marge Miller.

WELCOME HOME is in order for Bill and May Winskill and Walt and Dottie Phipps just back from 21 days on the SS Oriana to exotic far away places.

The cruise was a 28th wedding anniversary celebration for the Winskills who were feted at a party aboard ship before they sailed.

Well wishers included their daughter, Marsha Smith, Bill's parents, Ned and Minnie Winskill, Jim and Joann Johnson with Jimmy, Art and Marvel Ulrich, Jim and Marianne Stultz and Marie Woehlke.

I LOVE TO GET MAIL. Since I have been doing Socially Speaking I get quite a bit and it is NEVER addressed to occupant and it is NEVER a bill. That in itself is cheering. Usually the mail makes my work a lot easier because it contains column items and it saves my telephone dialing finger

I received a two-page typewritten, hilarious account of a surprise party given for Bob Fernald's birthday by his wife Janet — strangely enough my correspondent used the same type of copy paper which we use at the office. I made the fatal mistake of putting said letter down in the midst of several reams of Sunday copy. Finding a needle in a haystack would be a cinch compared to the hunt for that letter. I finally found the first page but the whereabouts of the second page will forever be a mystery and so will its contents and the name of my correspondent.

I will quote from the first paragraph because it is such a great surprise party tip for all you disorganized housewives . . .

"Janet prepared all the food herself — including chili con queso. Much of this had to be prepared in advance and so the refrigerators of neighbors, Bev Cruchley, Emily Ives and Clairlyn Jones were put into service. Janet found she still had to do something with two huge bowls of potato salad, so she covered each with Bob's shirts, put them into her refrigerator and told Bob it was her ironing."

I haven't heard of such enterprise since Mina Barnes hid the rye bread in the garage.

Guests included Pat and Molly Meyers former Long Beachers — down from Ventura, Will and Diane Gleason, Dave and Carol Bluminstein, Warren and Willene Harmon, Jim and Linda Armor, Mike and Mary Lou Delaney, Tom and Barbara Mabry, Stan and Betty Luker, Jerry and Janet Donlon, Bob and Linda Benson and Jerry and Carol Edgmon and who ever was on that lost page.

WOMEN'S LIB AND THE LAW . . . Not to be outdone by their illustrious husbands, these three Long Beach ladies find a bench of their own. Joan Lucas, whose husband has been a judge for three years, welcomes Virginia Eagleson and sister-in-law, Liz Lucas, to the bench, distaff variety. Husbands of the latter two were enrobed last week as judges for the Superior Court. — Staff Photo by KENT HENDERSON

DENTAL WIVES SALUTE THEIR HUSBANDS

Good sports fete

The Good Sports Club will host a public dessert luncheon and card party Monday noon in the Garden Room, 909 E. Third St.

Dentists feted by wives

It was a red, white and blue banner night at Petroleum Club when Harbor Dental Auxiliary members toasted their husbands at annual dinner party.

After socializing and feasting, it was time for more serious contemplation for the 80 guests.

Mrs. James Loos, program chairman, presented guest speaker, Edmonde Haddad, public affairs director for radio station KPOL. His topic was "The United States in Revolution: Positives and Negatives." He focused on the changes taking place in America and the world and their effect on each other.

Mrs. Julius Coronado helped with arrangements for the evening.

Square dancing

Cypress Twirlers Square Dance Club will hold its 14th anniversary dance Saturday in Wardlow Park Clubhouse, Stanbridge Avenue and Wardlow Road, from 8 to 11 p.m. All interested square dancers may attend.

Hearty meal planned for Heart Brunch

The Women's Heart League of Long Beach Heart Association has selected a new site for its annual Heart Brunch, scheduled next Sunday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Following the heart to the new location are Dr. Stephen Horn, president of California State College, Long Beach, Mrs. William H. Fogerty Jr., chairman and Mrs. Robert J. Yancy. The brunch will take place in the Chart Room or faculty dining room at CSLB. Tickets are $3 per person and may be purchased ahead of time from the Heart Office or at the door. Featured on the menu will be hot cakes, eggs, ham, fruit and coffee, with doctors exchanging their stethoscopes for spatulas to do the serving. Proceeds go toward heart research.

Honolulu to be site of Bake-Off

The fragrant aroma of goodies baking will mingle with that of Hawaii's lovely flowers when 100 finalists in the Pillsbury-General Electric Bake-Off gather Feb. 6-9 in Honolulu.

Representing the Independent. Press-Telegram to report on Bake-Off activities will be former food editor, Mildred K. Flanary

Each contest finalist receives the expense-paid trip to Honolulu to compete for the title "Best of Bake-Off" and prizes up to $25,000. In addition, each finalist already has won a $100 cash prize and a General Electric range.

The 100 prize-winning home cooks will prepare their dishes on Bake-Off day, Feb. 8, in the Hilton Hawaiian Village Hotel, located on Hawaii's Waikiki Beach.

Recipes were submitted for preliminary judging on a nationwide basis earlier this year. A panel of food experts will taste-test recipes on Bake-Off day in secret session to determine the winners.

Beside top baking quality, they'll be looking for creative recipes with the shortcuts and streamlined methods that appeal to busy homemakers.

Of the 32 states represented, 15 are from California, the closest Long Beach neighbor being Janet M. Tomlich of San Pedro.

Watch these newspapers for the winners—direct to you from Hawaii.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Chief drops an i, becomes chef

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

FIRE CHIEF T. J. RIZZO

For some people, the first of the month means the bills roll in.

For today's Chef of the Week Tullio J. Rizzo, however, it means something special is going to happen.

He established a pattern of "firsts" on Jan. 1, 1936, when he enlisted in the Navy and it was still with him on Jan. 1, 1969, when he became Chief of the Long Beach Fire Department.

He digressed from his first-of-the-month phenomenon on the day he was born by arriving on Jan. 31, a day ahead of schedule. He does it again today with his debut as a cook on his birthday.

Rizzo, born in Italy to American citizens, came to the United States (Utica, N.Y.) at the ripe old age of five. He remained in Utica until he graduated from high school and joined the Navy.

After serving four years, he was honorably discharged — May 1, 1940 — in ceremonies aboard the USS Nevada, then based in Long Beach.

Like many another Chef of the Week, he liked what he saw, stayed put, and the City of Long Beach became his first boss.

His trek through Long Beach environs has been on a diversified path. It includes typist-clerk in the Tax Collector's office and duty in the Police Department's Detective Bureau, complaint desk and record bureau.

His big switch to the Fire Department came June 1, 1942. On July 1, 1950, he was promoted to engineer with such other positions as captain, battalion chief, assistant fire chief and then chief following — always on a first.

An additional summary of his endeavors includes 13 years in the Fire Fighting Division; 5 years as assistant training officer and 7 years, 5 months as assistant fire chief.

In the years since his arrival in Long Beach, Rizzo has furthered his education at Long Beach City College, Cal State Long Beach, USC and UCLA.

One of his most widely heralded achievements was formulation of the Fire Fighters' Code of Ethics, adopted by the International Association of Fire Fighters in the United States and Canada.

Rizzo and his wife, Ruth, are the proud parents of two daughters, Virginia and Marlita, both married; two sons, Lawrence and James, both practicing dentists; and Dennis, a lieutenant, who has just returned from U.S. Army duty in Germany. They are equally proud of 10 grandchildren.

Says Ruth of her husband, "he belongs to every organization in town." And glimpsing the following resume, we agree. He's past president and secretary, Federated Fire Fighters of California; a member and one of the original founders of the Long Beach City Employees Toastmasters Club; chairman of the Fire Science Advisory Board, Long Beach City College; and a member of that advisory board for both Harbor and Compton Colleges.

Rizzo is presently on the Board of Directors for AID and the Downtown Lions Club of Long Beach. The Century Club and the 49'ers Club both claim him as a member.

His hobbies are his grandchildren, travel and sports of all kinds. As for the latter, he's decided he'd better become just a spectator, having broken a wrist playing touch football and a finger on the volley ball court.

Ruth describes him as extremely creative. "He creates, but I do the work. Like in this Chicken Tetrazzini, i.e., deboning chicken, dicing ham 'n hard boiled eggs. But, it's well worth it," says she. You'll agree!

CHICKEN TETRAZZINI

- 3 to 5 pounds stewing chicken
- 1 cup diced celery
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 1 4 ounce can mushrooms & pieces
- 4 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 3 cups chicken broth
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup light cream
- 1½ cups diced ham
- 2 hard cooked eggs (diced)
- 1 8 ounce package fine noodles
- Dry bread crumbs
- ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Stew chicken until tender, cool. Remove meat from bones and cut into large pieces. Strain broth. Saute celery, onion and mushrooms in butter. Blend in flour and stir in chicken broth, salt and pepper to make a smooth sauce. Cook until thickened, add cream slowly and blend, add chicken, diced ham and eggs. Meanwhile cook noodles, rinse and drain. Combine sauce with noodles. BE GENTLE. Don't make mincemeat of ham, etc.

Place in greased 2½ quart baking dish. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and cheese. Bake 1 hour in moderate oven (350 deg.). This should be quite wet to start — noodles absorb liquid. Serves 10.

Parties judged a success

It was a big week for Law and Order when two Long Beach attorneys, among newest appointees to the Superior Court of the County of Los Angeles, were feted at parties following formal enrobing ceremonies at the Hall of Justice in Los Angeles.

It was a family affair when Campbell (Sandy) Lucas was enrobed by his younger brother, Malcolm, who happens to be Judge Malcolm Lucas, supervising judge of the Criminal Court of Los Angeles County and his former law partner George, who happens to be Senator George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, 37th Senatorial Dist.

The family affair continued on at the Alamitos Heights home of Sandy and wife, Liz, when relatives and long time friends gathered to congratulate His Honor. Among congratulators (I think I just made up a new word) were the Lucases, Mal and Joan, Pat and Bill and Eric, Jack and Pat Vander Lans, Don and Linda Dyer, Walt and Marguerite Masters, John and Aurora Minasian and Dr. Marjorie Forrest.

Other celebrants included Court Commissioner Jack and Grace Carroll, Doug and Lois Dailey, Jack and Dawn Duncan, Bill and Ellen Frith, George and Willie Engelage, Bill and Mary Lingensmith, Tom and Mae Gaggs, Bill and Fran Gillis, Morris and Georgine Hayter and Dick and Barbara Rodgers, John and Margaret Kinzer, Dr. Dick and Joan Saunders and Don Caffray.

Senator George and Gloria Deukmejian came by as did the Utechts, Pete and Hildy; the Kights, Mason and Jan; the Kenadys, Al and Joan; the Barbians, Bud and Lorraine; the Reeds, Jack and Carmen; the Stoners, Warren and Alice; the Sanders, Fred and Marie; Lois Weiss and Liz's brother, Bob Buse, with his Jane.

POPULAR ATTORNEY David Eagleson was enrobed the same day at the same ceremony, but he and Virginia received congratulations the following night.

If one had had the effrontery to bt so undignified as to yell "Here Come de Judge" at the Park Estates home of the Eaglesons it might have started a stampede. Dave was toasted by Judges and their wives Charles Loring (he is presiding Judge of the Superior Court of the County of Los Angeles) Alfred McCourtney (he is assistant presiding judge) Malcolm Lucas (I told you about him already — you must pay attention), Charles Statton, Robert Wenke, Max Wisot, Beach Vasey and Campbell Lucas.

Other members of the law fraternity who came by to offer congratulations were the Bob Bergmanns, "Pete" Utechts, Don Wallaces, Jack Grishams, Gene Kirkpatricks, Dale Deatherages, Edwin Wilson, Loyal Pulleys, Patrick Phelans and the Harry Simons, Harry fresh from taking over the gavel as new president of the Long Beach Bar Association.

NO, IT WASN'T A mass evacuation from the city, it was just 600 members and guests of the Long Beach Symphony Guild boarding busses for a journey to view "Song of Norway" at the Cinerama Dome Theatre in Hollywood.

Guild President, Eva Miner and husband, Dr. Mark, hosted a pre-party in their newly UN-decorated home. Taking advantage of the wide open spaces created by the absence of all their furniture, which is being recovered, they easily seated 40 guests for dinner.

Diners included Russell and Elizabeth Peterson, George and Norma Richards, Leslie and Olive Smith, Jack and Barbara London, Bob and Charlene Basham, Dale and Letty Brown and Noel and Marge Cady.

Symphony Maestro Alberto Bolet enjoyed a night out with his Rosita, others were Jack and Grace Walton, Howard and Mary Noble and Ted and Marge Miller.

WELCOME HOME is in order for Bill and May Winskill and Walt and Dottie Phipps just back from 21 days on the SS Oriana to exotic far away places.

The cruise was a 28th wedding anniversary celebration for the Winskills who were feted at a party aboard ship before they sailed.

Well wishers included their daughter, Marsha Smith, Bill's parents, Ned and Minnie Winskill, Jim and Joann Johnson with Jimmy, Art and Marvel Ulrich, Jim and Marianne Stultz and Marie Woehlke.

I LOVE TO GET MAIL. Since I have been doing Socially Speaking I get quite a bit and it is NEVER addressed to occupant and it is NEVER a bill. That in itself is cheering. Usually the mail makes my work a lot easier because it contains column items and it saves my telephone dialing finger

I received a two-page typewritten, hilarious account of a surprise party given for Bob Fernald's birthday by his wife Janet — strangely enough my correspondent used the same type of copy paper which we use at the office. I made the fatal mistake of putting said letter down in the midst of several reams of Sunday copy. Finding a needle in a haystack would be a cinch compared to the hunt for that letter. I finally found the first page but the whereabouts of the second page will forever be a mystery and so will its contents and the name of my correspondent.

I will quote from the first paragraph because it is such a great surprise party tip for all you disorganized housewives . . .

"Janet prepared all the food herself — including chili con queso. Much of this had to be prepared in advance and so the refrigerators of neighbors, Bev Cruchley, Emily Ives and Clairlyn Jones were put into service. Janet found she still had to do something with two huge bowls of potato salad, so she covered each with Bob's shirts, put them into her refrigerator and told Bob it was her ironing."

I haven't heard of such enterprise since Mina Barnes hid the rye bread in the garage.

Guests included Pat and Molly Meyers former Long Beachers — down from Ventura, Will and Diane Gleason, Dave and Carol Bluminstein, Warren and Willene Harmon, Jim and Linda Armor, Mike and Mary Lou Delaney, Tom and Barbara Mabry, Stan and Betty Luker, Jerry and Janet Donlon, Bob and Linda Benson and Jerry and Carol Edgmon and who ever was on that lost page.

WOMEN'S LIB AND THE LAW . . . Not to be outdone by their illustrious husbands, these three Long Beach ladies find a bench of their own. Joan Lucas, whose husband has been a judge for three years, welcomes Virginia Eagleson and sister-in-law, Liz Lucas, to the bench, distaff variety. Husbands of the latter two were enrobed last week as judges for the Superior Court. — Staff Photo by KENT HENDERSON

Good sports fete

The Good Sports Club will host a public dessert luncheon and card party Monday noon in the Garden Room, 909 E. Third St.

Dentists feted by wives

It was a red, white and blue banner night at Petroleum Club when Harbor Dental Auxiliary members toasted their husbands at annual dinner party.

After socializing and feasting, it was time for more serious contemplation for the 80 guests.

Mrs. James Loos, program chairman, presented guest speaker, Edmonde Haddad, public affairs director for radio station KPOL. His topic was "The United States in Revolution: Positives and Negatives." He focused on the changes taking place in America and the world and their effect on each other.

Mrs. Juliius Coronado helped with arrangements for the evening.

Square dancing

Cypress Twirlers Square Dance Club will hold its 14th anniversary dance Saturday in Wardlow Park Clubhouse, Stanbridge Avenue and Wardlow Road, from 8 to 11 p.m. All interested square dancers may attend.

Hearty meal planned for Heart Brunch

The Women's Heart League of Long Beach Heart Association has selected a new site for its annual Heart Brunch, scheduled next Sunday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Following the heart to the new location are Dr. Stephen Horn, president of California State College, Long Beach, Mrs. William H. Fogerty Jr., chairman and Mrs. Robert J. Yancy. The brunch will take place in the Chart Room or faculty dining room at CSLB. Tickets are $3 per person and may be purchased ahead of time from the Heart Office or at the door. Featured on the menu will be hot cakes, eggs, ham, fruit and coffee, with doctors exchanging their stethoscopes for spatulas to do the serving. Proceeds go toward heart research.

Honolulu to be site of Bake-Off

The fragrant aroma of goodies baking will mingle with that of Hawaii's lovely flowers when 100 finalists in the Pillsbury-General Electric Bake-Off gather Feb. 6-9 in Honolulu.

Representing the Independent. Press-Telegram to report on Bake-Off activities will be former food editor, Mildred K. Flanary

Each contest finalist receives the expense-paid trip to Honolulu to compete for the title "Best of Bake-Off" and prizes up to $25,000. In addition, each finalist already has won a $100 cash prize and a General Electric range.

The 100 prize-winning home cooks will prepare their dishes on Bake-Off day, Feb. 8, in the Hilton Hawaiian Village Hotel, located on Hawaii's Waikiki Beach.

Recipes were submitted for preliminary judging on a nationwide basis earlier this year. A panel of food experts will taste-test recipes on Bake-Off day in secret session to determine the winners.

Beside top baking quality, they'll be looking for creative recipes with the shortcuts and streamlined methods that appeal to busy homemakers.

Of the 32 states represented, 15 are from California, the closest Long Beach neighbor being Janet M. Tomlich of San Pedro.

Watch these newspapers for the winners—direct to you from Hawaii.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Chief drops an i, becomes chef

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

FIRE CHIEF T. J. RIZZO

For some people, the first of the month means the bills roll in.

For today's Chef of the Week Tullio J. Rizzo, however, it means something special is going to happen.

He established a pattern of "firsts" on Jan. 1, 1936, when he enlisted in the Navy and it was still with him on Jan. 1, 1969, when he became Chief of the Long Beach Fire Department.

He digressed from his first-of-the-month phenomenon on the day he was born by arriving on Jan. 31, a day ahead of schedule. He does it again today with his debut as a cook on his birthday.

Rizzo, born in Italy to American citizens, came to the United States (Utica, N.Y.) at the ripe old age of five. He remained in Utica until he graduated from high school and joined the Navy.

After serving four years, he was honorably discharged — May 1, 1940 — in ceremonies aboard the USS Nevada, then based in Long Beach.

Like many another Chef of the Week, he liked what he saw, stayed put, and the City of Long Beach became his first boss.

His trek through Long Beach environs has been on a diversified path. It includes typist-clerk in the Tax Collector's office and duty in the Police Department's Detective Bureau, complaint desk and record bureau.

His big switch to the Fire Department came June 1, 1942. On July 1, 1950, he was promoted to engineer with such other positions as captain, battalion chief, assistant fire chief and then chief following — always on a first.

An additional summary of his endeavors includes 13 years in the Fire Fighting Division; 5 years as assistant training officer and 7 years, 5 months as assistant fire chief.

In the years since his arrival in Long Beach, Rizzo has furthered his education at Long Beach City College, Cal State Long Beach, USC and UCLA.

One of his most widely heralded achievements was formulation of the Fire Fighters' Code of Ethics, adopted by the International Association of Fire Fighters in the United States and Canada.

Rizzo and his wife, Ruth, are the proud parents of two daughters, Virginia and Marlita, both married; two sons, Lawrence and James, both practicing dentists; and Dennis, a lieutenant, who has just returned from U.S. Army duty in Germany. They are equally proud of 10 grandchildren.

Says Ruth of her husband, "he belongs to every organization in town." And glimpsing the following resume, we agree. He's past president and secretary, Federated Fire Fighters of California; a member and one of the original founders of the Long Beach City Employees Toastmasters Club; chairman of the Fire Science Advisory Board, Long Beach City College; and a member of that advisory board for both Harbor and Compton Colleges.

Rizzo is presently on the Board of Directors for AID and the Downtown Lions Club of Long Beach. The Century Club and the 49'ers Club both claim him as a member.

His hobbies are his grandchildren, travel and sports of all kinds. As for the latter, he's decided he'd better become just a spectator, having broken a wrist playing touch football and a finger on the volley ball court.

Ruth describes him as extremely creative. "He creates, but I do the work. Like in this Chicken Tetrazzini, i.e., deboning chicken, dicing ham 'n hard boiled eggs. But, it's well worth it," says she. You'll agree!

CHICKEN TETRAZZINI

- 3 to 5 pounds stewing chicken
- 1 cup diced celery
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 1 4 ounce can mushrooms & pieces
- 4 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 3 cups chicken broth
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup light cream
- 1½ cups diced ham
- 2 hard cooked eggs (diced)
- 1 8 ounce package fine noodles
- Dry bread crumbs
- ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Stew chicken until tender, cool. Remove meat from bones and cut into large pieces. Strain broth. Saute celery, onion and mushrooms in butter. Blend in flour and stir in chicken broth, salt and pepper to make a smooth sauce. Cook until thickened, add cream slowly and blend, add chicken, diced ham and eggs. Meanwhile cook noodles, rinse and drain. Combine sauce with noodles. BE GENTLE. Don't make mincemeat of ham, etc.

Place in greased 2½ quart baking dish. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and cheese. Bake 1 hour in moderate oven (350 deg.). This should be quite wet to start — noodles absorb liquid. Serves 10.

PEPPY GRANDMA RETIRES TO SCHOOL

Russian widow learns English at 74

By PAT McDONNELL
Staff Writer

Next time the oldster in your family says he (or she) is too old to take up a new hobby, mention Ahafia Dobryanow.

At 74 the Russia-born widow is learning to speak English. What's more, she's learning to read and write it at the Learning Center for Adults, 1305 Pacific Coast Highway.

Every Tuesday and Thursday morning the peppy grandmother of four boards a bus for classes at the Long Beach City College Business and Technology campus. Her only absenteeism since 1963 was last December when she was hospitalized for eye surgery.

"Ahafia's progress has improved consistently," said her instructor Shirley Klein.

"For the most part, our elderly students have blown all kinds of educational theories out the academic window. They do learn fast and retain knowledge — when motivated."

As for Ahafia's motivation to take up a language at an age when most people are slowing down to a rocking chair pace — the explanation is simple.

"When the President is on television, I wanna know what he says. When my grandchildren talk, I wanna talk with them," she said in an English accented by a delightful Slavic inflection.

In her early years, Ahafia's yearning for an education was eclipsed by the more immediate needs of a teen-aged immigrant and working mother-of-three. But as financial struggles diminished, her desire to learn increased.

Until retiring in 1962 as an assembly worker for American Motors, Ahafia lived in Kenosha, Wis.

"I always wanna school, I wanna learn, but in Wisconsin they didn't have schools for beginners like me. So all the time I wait and say when I retire I go to California and learna English."

Upon moving to Long Beach in 1963, Ahafia quickly set about proving the familiar saying about old dogs and new tricks doesn't apply to humans — particularly determined ones.

Patting her tousled brown wig, the carefully groomed grandmother confided she taught herself the alphabet by embroidering each letter in samplers.

Then pointing to a stack of primers, Ahafia added: "People giva me books on 'cat, rat, sat,' I read and read alla my books until I know every word."

COMMENTED HER teacher:

"When Ahafia enrolled, we started her out learning single words with picture cards. Now she's reading and speaking sentences with a tape-recorder. Her handwriting and spelling are excellent."

Mrs. Klein noted that Ahafia may be the only Russian immigrant among the more than 1,000 students at the center, but Greek, Yugoslav and Arabic speaking people, as well as Spanish, are learning English as a second language.

"An Italian grandmother enrolled so she could write letters to her son who is appearing in a Broadway show. It's not only English, but arithmetic, grammar and reading skills that are offered free of charge to anyone over 18."

Which brings to mind the latest project in Ahafia's life — namely to support the Feb. 9 election for a tax overide for Long Beach schools.

NO DOUBT the energetic student would make an excellent teacher of Russian — except that she never learned to read or write her first language.

Instead of a schoolroom, she entered the barnyard at age 5 when she was taught to milk cows in a village near Minsk.

"My father died when I was 6 years old. My brothers took over the farm. We grew wheat, rye, barley and potatoes that made good whiskey . . . verrrrry good whiskey," she grinned.

In addition to farm chores, the 13-year-old was apprenticed to a Jewish seamstress and she recalls that a dress sold for the equivalent of 15 cents.

"We worka on sewing machines that move with foot pedals. I really missa that machine," she enthused.

DRUDGERY OF chopping wood and driving a wagon pulled by draft horses through snow quickly inspired Ahafia to seek a better life in America. The topic often was discussed by neighbors whose sons already had crossed the Atlantic.

In 1912, the 16-year-old persuaded her mother and brothers to permit her to travel to Chicago where a colony of Russian immigrants lived.

"It's not easy to make a living in America if you don't speak English," she sighed. "Not easy at all. But I save my money. I don't smoke. I never go to tavern. I send money to my mother."

Ahafia recalls that she "ran so fast a train couldn't catch me" from proposals of marriage — until she met a handsome Russian lumberjack.

"Three hundred people danced at our wedding," she said, her wrinkled round face breaking into countless smile lines.

"I had the best husband in the world. When he died in 1941, I cried for three years."

There's no time for tears now what with studies and a house and garden to tend.

"I worka hard and now I have my own home and a beautiful garden. You should see my peaches and camellias. I really make things grow . . . I've been a farmer alla my life."

AMIGOS: The response from all ages of volunteers for Spanish-speaking interpreters has been tremendous. Already many are at work with the Department of Public Social Services, as friendly visitors and as aides to the elderly.

FOR NEEDY Mothers: The plight of needy new mothers partially alleviated with layettes provided by the Court St. Augustine Catholic Daughters Sewing Group.

PROJECT CONTACT: Sixteen women, working through the Community Volunteer Office, contacted all member firms of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce seeking work for young people.

TIME TO SPARE: Mrs. Russell Udy (pictured at left) came to CVO seeking volunteer placement. No longer working at North American, she felt she had time to give to her community and was especially interested in working with small children. Within a short time she was placed with a Well Baby Clinic where she has given her time two days a week for more than a year.

Each week the I, P-T Women's Section brings readers a list of volunteer opportunities. Those wishing further information may contact the Community Volunteer Office, an agency of the United Way, at 426-7171, Monday through Friday, 10 a.m.-3 p.m.

A MOVING Proposition: Drivers are needed in the Wilmington area to transport blind people to music lessons on Saturdays 1-2 p.m. On the Westside, Spanish-speaking students enrolled in English classes need rides Monday and Wednesday evenings.

WEIGHTY SUBJECT: The Westside Well Baby Clinic needs a helper to weigh and measure babies, 8:30 a.m.-noon on Wednesdays.

TALKATHON: The local agency of a national organization needs phone callers 6-7 p.m. on Tuesday evenings.

SHOP ALONG: CVO has received numerous requests from elderly people who need assistance with weekly grocery shopping.

HELPING HAND: "Big brothers" and "big sisters" are needed for retarded teen-agers and adults for outings and companionship.

TUTORING: A 17-year-old boy in Hawaiian Gardens needs help in reading and remedial math.

Coast premiere

Next Sunday at 8 p.m. in UCLA's Royce Hall Henri Temianka will conduct the California Chamber Symphony in the West Coast premiere of Shostakovich's "Symphony No. 14" for chamber orchestra and vocal soloists. Also on the program will be Mozart's "Divertimento No. 15." Tickets are $5.75, $4.75, $3.75 and $2.75. Students will be admitted for $1.50.

EPISCOPAL RITE

U of Arizona graduates marry

All Saints Episcopal Church was the setting for the marriage Saturday of Mary Ann Gray and Lt. Bruce R. Fiene, USAF.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Walter Gray of Long Beach was attended by Margaret Burnett, maid of honor. Best man for the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert H. Fiene of Addison, Ill., was Charles Buhman.

The new Mrs. Fiene was graduated from Wilson High School. She received her B.S. degree in bacteriology from UCLA and her M.S. degree in biology from the University of Arizona at Tucson.

Her husband obtained his B.S. degree from the U of Arizona, was graduated from the U. S. Air Force Officers Training School and returned to the U of Arizona where he completed work for his master's degree in physics.

The couple will tour the southern states to New Orleans. Their first home will be at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio, where the bridegroom is stationed.

The Aces on bridge

by IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

Dear Mr. Corn:

How should this hand be bid after a one spade opening by North?

WEST	EAST
♠ J 9 4	♠ A
♥ 8 3	♥ A Q J 10 9
♦ 8 6 3	♦ A Q J 10 7 4
♣ K Q 10 9 5	♣ A

Too Strong and Two-Suited,
Grand Prairie, Texas

Answer. This hand is not particularly easy. A possible auction is:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	2 ♠	Pass	3 ♣
3 ♦	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♦
4 ♥	4 ♥	Pass	5 ♦
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

East should cue-bid two spades to force the partnership to game. After the most expected response of three clubs, East shows his suits in order of length. After West's raise (showing at least three diamonds), East should gamble and drive the hand to at least a small slam.

You would need a little luck to bring in this slam, and your gamble might result in a minus score. However, you should take a few risks like this one, even if only to test your luck.

After a bidding sequence of this sort, wherein East essentially bids a slam by himself, if West had one of the red kings, he would realize its high value and bid a very reasonable grand slam.

Dear Mr. Corn:

Please settle a major disagreement. Who was wrong? No one vulnerable.

WEST	EAST
♠ 9	♠ A Q 10 4 3
♥ A J 8 7	♥ K Q 10 9 3
♦ J 6 4 2	♦ A Q 3
♣ Q 10 6 3	♣ —

East bid one spade, and West doubled South's two-club bid. This went down one but we can make six hearts. East said he has to pass the double because West could have had better clubs, and if West had passed they would get to slam. I was West and disagreed.

Disappointed,
Scottsdale, Ariz.

Answer. West had a clear-cut penalty double. If East had a hand suitable for defense, South may have suffered a large penalty while East-West could make little more than a part score.

East s decision to pass was possible based on "I have no clubs — partner must have a bunch." This reasoning is generally invalid.

After West's double, East should ask himself a simple question, "Is my hand suitable for defense or do I hold hidden distributional strength?"

I suggest this bidding sequence:

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	2 ♣	Dbl.	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥	Pass

BETWEEN US

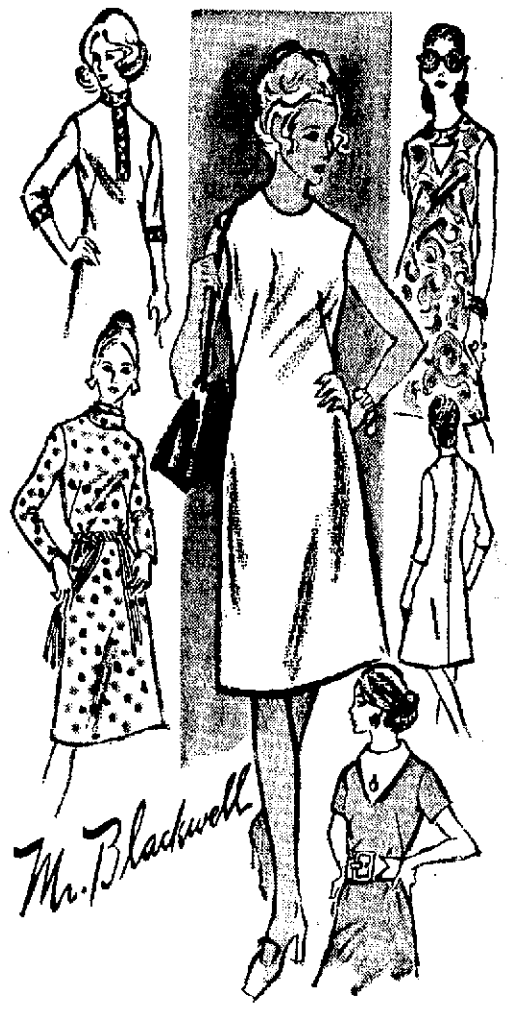

Insist upon standards for your teen-agers

By DR. HAIM GINOTT

ELLEN, AGE 15, told her mother how she had had a brush with the law.

Ellen: You know that I've always wanted a "Hello, Dolly" poster. I saw one in the subway station, and I had just about managed to get it off the billboard when I heard a gruff voice behind me. It was a policeman and was he mad! He threatened to take me to the station house. He asked me questions and wrote everything down. He told me I was a J.D. — a Juvenile Delinquent with a record. He threatened to book me like a criminal.

Mother: You were breaking the law by defacing public property. I do not approve of that at all. The policeman meant to warn you against future impulses of that sort. I'm glad you weren't arrested. You must have been pretty scared.

Ellen: Oh yes. At first I jumped when I heard his voice. But then I realized that he is just another human being. I even felt sorry that he had to do petty things like making J.D.s out of clean-cut kids.

Mother: My daughter is not a J.D. But she will have to think of a better way of getting a favorite poster. I view this incident seriously.

Ellen: Okay, Mom.

Mother was helpful. She kept her cool but transmitter her concern. She refrained from hysterics but made clear her expectations.

KAREN, AGE 16, went with a group of boys and girls to a jazz concert. Her date, a responsible boy, asked permission to stay out until 2 a.m. Father gulped, but consented. It was the last social event before the boys went off to college.

They returned at 4 a.m. "I'm late because the police stopped our car and searched it. They didn't find anything."

"It's too late for conversation, now," said Father. "We'll talk tomorrow. Good night."

The following morning, Karen tried to explain her lateness. Father looked puzzled. The story did not add up. He started an inquiry. But he caught himself. He raised his hand in a gesture of protest and said:

"Karen, let's stop. I do not wish to be a policeman or a detective. I have no desire to trap or embarrass you. Basically, when a curfew is agreed upon, the person to whom you have to account is yourself."

Father turned around and walked out of the room.

Karen called him back. "I'd like to tell you what happened. After we were stopped by the police, we went to the beach. That's why we were late."

Father said, "We were concerned. We expect you to observe curfews. If you are detained you should call, even in the middle of the night."

In this incident, Father avoided self-defeating inquisitions. He did not try to trap his daughter. Instead, he put the responsibility squarely on her shoulders while preserving her dignity and eliminating fear of retribution.

To help tenderize a chuck steak you may want to marinate it in a mixture of olive oil and lemon juice before cooking it.

Week's top recipe

MUSHROOM & CRAB OVER RICE

- 6 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups milk
- 1 pound cooked crab meat, shredded
- ¾ pound fresh mushrooms
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 1 tablespoon chopped chives
- ½ cup thick cream
- 3 tablespoons Sherry

Saute mushrooms in 2 tablespoons butter and set aside. Melt remaining butter, add flour and blend. Stir in milk until sauce is smooth. Add parsley and chives and salt and pepper to taste. Place pan over hot water and cook for 5 minutes. Slowly stir in cream, sherry, crab meat and mushrooms. Allow to heat through on low fire, then serve on hot rice or toasted muffins. Serves six.

Couples marry in rites

Wangsness-Patterson

A first home in Long Beach has been selected by newly wed Mr. and Mrs. John B. Wangsness (Jayne Lorraine Patterson).

The couple was married Saturday at Our Savior's Lutheran Church. Among those attending the ceremony were their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Patterson of Long Beach and Mr. and Mrs. John C. Wangsness of Long Beach.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Kenneth Scurlock, was her matron of honor. James Wangsness served as his brother's best man.

Both attended Long Beach City College. The new Mrs. Wangsness graduated from Polytechnic High School; her husband graduated from Wilson High.

They will honeymoon in San Francisco.

MRS. JOHN WANGSNESS

AT WIT'S END

Too much, too soon

By ERMA BOMBECK

You know what's wrong with the world today?

In church last Sunday I sat behind a mink coat that cried for my body. The skin glistened, the softness beckoned, and even my hot, panting breath didn't wilt the pelts. Then the owner turned around to sit down and She was a little kid no more than 14 years old.

Has the world gone crazy? A fur coat isn't something to wear over our training bra. It's something a woman says, "I'll do anything for . . and means it." It's to be lusted after, and remembered in your prayers. It's the year your husband got promoted, your 25th wedding anniversary, your reward for the last baby, a peace offering, your income tax return, the Christmas your heart stopped beating

I COULDN'T TAKE my eyes off the little girl in the mink. She was cheated out of the excitement of her first, genuine, fake, look-alike synthetic fur coat in which you feel like royalty and look like Teddy Snowcrop. (The coat grows all summer and moults all winter.)

She was denied the once-in-a-lifetime thrill when Aunt Allison makes you heir to her fur coat that smells like decayed moth crystals and makes you the first woman in your block to wear a fur coat of extinct animal skins.

She would never know the challenge of putting a coat in lay away and paying on it so long your arms grew two inches.

Ironically, the sermon was how much more blessed it is to give than to receive and I pondered, "A blessing for whom?" The parking lot was full of "blessings" with GT motors and mag wheels. The pews were filled with "blessings" of Villager sweaters and leather boots. And a generation that talks a good game of happiness and love sits around looking miserable.

I SUSPECT our blessings have bored them to death. They are bored with families, sex, country, churches and schools. Tomorrow they may be bored with cars, furs and themselves. I said this to a mother the other day and she replied, "I can't imagine why. They've got everything."

A recent cover of the New York Magazine showed a mink-draped parent standing by a wheelchair which held her son. He had shoulder length hair, and Indian band round his forehead, expensive clothes and was slumped in the chair looking defensive. The caption read: "But of course he can walk. Thank God he doesn't have to."

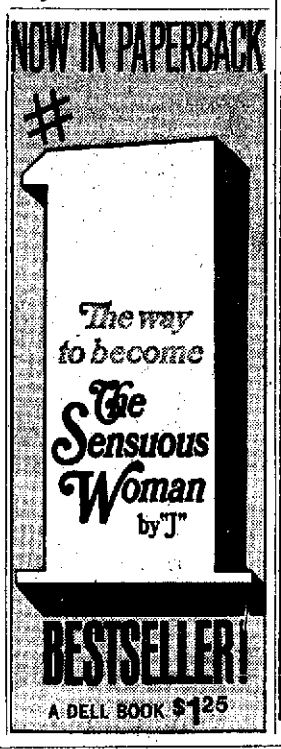

That's what I think is wrong with the world today.

Sweetheart Ball aids missions

"Love and Dreams of Children All Over the World" will be theme for 13th annual Sweetheart's Ball, sponsored by St. Columban Fathers Guild, Saturday in Grand Ballroom of the Proud Bird Restaurant, 11022 Aviation Blvd.

The silverplate with more silver.

PATTERN SHOWN: COUNTESS

You know DeepSilver. It's the one that contains more silver than any other silverplate.

Not just because we plate it more thickly. (Which we do.) But because we inlay every one of the pieces you use most with a block of solid silver, at the point where you give it the most wear. Solid silver under the spoon bowls. Solid silver under the fork tines. An inlay of solid silver where it really counts. In fact, DeepSilver has so much silver, we guarantee it for your lifetime (under normal use and care).

But don't just buy it for the future.

You see, all this extra silver makes DeepSilver feel richer and heavier, right now.

We think that counts, too.

Dr. Moffett to jury show

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., will stage its annual Juried Show April 25 to May 30. Resident artists of Southern California are invited to submit paintings, sculpture or graphics, but no crafts. Receiving periods and locations may be obtained at the museum.

Dr. Kenworth Moffett, distinguished art critic and writer, will be judge. It will be his responsibility to review all entries and to select about 80 works for exhibition. He also will recommend works for awards.

Arts

Dr. Moffett has taught art history at Wellesley College for the past three years. Two of his monographs, one on painter Kenneth Noland, the other on sculptor Anthony Caro, will soon be published by Abrams, Inc.

Jason Wong, director of LBMA, says that the museum hopes to have $8,000 in prizes this year through support of foundations, industry, business and individual patronage.

FRIENDS of the Long Beach Museum, who sponsor the children's art classes, announce that there still are openings for the spring session. Classes will begin Feb. 13 and continue through May 22. The fee is $23 for 14 sessions. Classes will be scheduled for youngsters from pre-school age through senior high school. The museum will supply further information.

THE COUNTY LIBRARY at Norwalk, Imperial Highway and Norwalk Boulevard, is showing a small but creative display of work from Metropolitan State Hospital, Norwalk.

A display case near the entrance of the library holds primitive wood sculptures, clay figures and wooden plaques, all carved from found materials. An adjacent wall displays a small grouping of watercolors, oils and drawings, selected for their creativity as well as skill. On two other walls are oils by Betts Waite, volunteer art director at the hospital. The Metropolitan art studio has been conducted by volunteers for the past four years. It is open for viewing and sales each Wednesday from 9 to 11 a.m. and from 1 to 4 p.m.

Volunteers are needed and art supplies of any kind will be gratefully received.

TWENTY drawings and paintings by George de Metropolis will be on exhibit at El Dorado Library, 2900 Studebaker Road, from Monday through Feb. 27.

A graduate of Vesper George School of Art in Boston, the artist also studied at Massachusetts School of Art, Long Beach City College and California State College, Long Beach.

"OBJECTS to Wear," an exhibition showing the changing character in jewelry from mere ornament to "portable sculpture," will remain in USC's Fisher Gallery through Feb. 11. Hours are noon to 5 p.m. Circulated by the Smithsonian Institution, the exhibit includes work of five contemporary Dutch jewelers, some of whom have won gold and silver medals at international jewelry exhibitions.

DOWNEY Museum of Art opens its annual juried Art League exhibition today with a public reception from 2 to 4 p.m. Roland Shutt of Cerritos College and Yoshio Nakamura of Rio Honda College juried the show. Awards will be presented at 3 p.m.

The show will continue through Feb. 21 at the museum in Furman Park, 10419 S. Rives Ave., Downey. Hours are 1 to 5 p.m.

Maestro of the guitar

Andres Segovia will appear in two different guitar programs at The Music Center Pavilion on S. Hurok's Gala International Season. Friday he will perform numbers by De Visee, Ponce, Scarlatti and Bach. Next Sunday he will play compositions by Torroba, Handel, Villa-Lobos and Albeniz. Both programs will begin at 8:30 p.m.

"A ROSE FOR MISS EMILY" will be performed by American Ballet Theater only on Feb. 15, opening night of the Los Angeles engagement. In principal roles will be Agnes DeMille (right), Gayle Young and Sallie Wilson.

Premieres mark ballet run

Three full-length productions and seven Los Angeles first stagings are included in the 11-performance engagement of American Ballet at The Music Center Pavilion Feb. 15 through 24.

Principals are Erik Bruhn, Eleanor D'Antuono, Royes Fernandez, Carla Fracci, Cynthia Gregory, Ted Kivitt, Natalia Marakova, Bruce Marks, Ivan Nagy, Mimi Paul, Lupe Serrano, Michael Smuin, Sallie Wilson and Gayle Young.

Other members of the company will appear with a full corps de ballet. Jaime Leon is music director and Akira Endo is conductor of the symphony orchestra.

THE PERFORMANCE schedule, with casts to be announced and all programs subject to change, is:

Feb. 15: "Les Sylphides" (Fokine/Chopin), "A Rose for Miss Emily" (Agnes De Mille after W. Faulkner story/Alan Hovhaness) local premiere, Pas de Deux (to be announced) and "The River" Ailey/Ellington) local premiere.

Feb. 16: "Ontogeny" (Naha/Husa) local premiere, "Jardin aux Lilas" (Tudor/Chausson) and "Etudes" (Lander/Riisaager).

Feb. 17 evening and Feb. 21 matinee and evening: "Swan Lake" (Petipa-Ivanov-Blair/Tchaikovsky) in four acts.

Feb. 19: "The Moor's Pavane" (Limon/Purcell) local premiere, and "Giselle" (Coralli - Perrot-Blair/Adam) in two acts.

Feb. 20 matinee and Feb. 22 evening: "Coppelia" (Sain-Leon, Martinez/Delibes) in three acts.

Feb. 20 evening: three local premieres of "Brahms Quintet" (Nahat/Brahms), "The Traitor" (Limon/Schuller) and "Schubertiade" (Smuin/Schubert) and a Pas de Deux to be announced.

Feb. 23: "The Moor's Pavane." "The River," a Pas de Deux to be announced and "Gaiete Parisienne" (Massine/Offenbach-Rosenthal.

Feb. 24: "Schubertiade" and "Giselle" in two acts.

Avco collection is exciting, sumptuous

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"The Avco Collection of Contemporary American Art" is probably one of the most exciting art events in Southern California this year.

This East Coast oriented collection will add to the local scene, for Avco Financial Service is donating it in its entirety to the Newport Harbor Art Museum to "bring both insight and pleasure to the community which is our new home."

The sumptuous gift should prompt community response in providing more permanent quarters for the museum which, in the few years of its existence, has presented one significant show after another.

The 33 works, immaculately chosen, seem to sing together. Their compatibility is explained by the fact that Walter Gropius, designer of Avco's Cleveland office building, guided the Avco representatives in their selections.

TWO THEMES prevail: Clean abstraction and clear color derived from the Bauhaus School (which Gropius directed), and Zen mysticism to which Gropius felt strong affinity.

Among the former are a major Josef Albers "Homage to the Square,' Norman Ives' "No. 2, Five Yellows," and Georgy Kepes' "Colour Harvest," a theme amplified in Richard Anuszieicz's "Treasure."

The "less is more" Oriental theme can be seen in Joan Miro's elegant tapestry, "Dream" and large paintings by Yutaka Ohasi and Kenzo Okada.

INCLUDED are spectacular tapestries by Helen Frankenthaler and Theodore Stamos; sculpture by Louise Nevelson, Harry Bertoia and James Wines; and graphics by Gene Davis, Arnold Gottlieb, Natvar, Raymond Parker, Carol Summers and Jack Youngerman.

Viewing hours at 400 Main St. (over the Ferry Building) in the Balboa are Wednesdays through Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. The Avco Collection will continue through Feb. 17.

JOHN CARRADINE

Carradine to appear at vesper

John Carradine, veteran of more than 300 motion pictures, Broadway actor, singer, and renowned Shakespearean star, will appear next Sunday at California Heights United Methodist Church, 3759 Orange Ave.

Presented by the church's Friends of Music, the Winter Vesper will begin at 8 p.m. Carradine, who studied to become a sculptor before going to Hollywood as a scene designer for Cecil B. DeMille, will give readings from the Bible, Shakespeare and Gibran.

The musical portion of the program, "The Song of Songs," will include works by Janowski, Lavry, Foss, Saminsky, Castelnuovo-Tedesco and Helfman. Soloists will be Patricia Hugen, Marvellee Cariaga, Robert Olinger and Roger Ardrey.

There is no charge but donations to the Friends of Music will be accepted.

Arts council schedules new dates

TRAVELING WITH DELAPLANE
A visit to safari land

By STAN DELAPLANE

Paraa, Uganda (East Africa)

This is the exotic Africa that Hemingway wrote about in "The Snows of Kilimanjaro."

An elephant snuffling outside the bedroom window. A lion lying in the headlights as you come up the dirt road from the airfield.

We are at Paraa Safari Lodge. It sits on a bluff overlooking a stretch of the Victoria Nile below Murchison Falls, 3,900 miles upriver from Alexandria on the Mediterranean.

EAST AFRICAN Airways wears the flags of Tanzania, Uganda and Kenya. (Former British colonies. Now independent nations.) British Super VC-10 jets. British pilots.

Tourist business is modest but going up —it runs neck and neck with coffee as the cash crop in Kenya.

A package trip is $777 from New York. But figure it closer to $900, and you see all three countries.

IT'S AN EXHAUSTING day's flight. But it's wonderful country.

In the early morning after breakfast, we got on a launch with a dozen bottles of beer in the cooler and went for a spin on the Nile. You want a camera.

Crocodiles and hippos. Fish eagles and maribou storks. Lions and buffalo and giraffes and zebra are all out there on the rolling savannah grasslands.

MOST TOURISTS wouldn't shoot anything except with an Instamatic and Tri-X. But sporting types with plenty of money can still hunt "the big five" — lion, elephant, rhino, buffalo, leopard.

A hunting license is $280. A safari — White Hunter, gun bearers and all the drill — is a minimum $100 a day.

"I heard we can bring in things from Hong Kong that were made in Red China."

New rule. You can bring in $100 worth. But, if you have anything SHIPPED to you it pays duty. And the duty is 90 per cent!

Two Red Chinese stores now in H.K. Clerks are very uptight — I mean, they HATE you. But they'll sell. Interesting item is an inexpensive red lighter with sayings of Chairman Mao on it. (Very good lighter, too.)

"We intend to stay in Europe for six months. We need a base . . . "

I'd make it Madrid. Central. Good air service. A lively but inexpensive city.

"Our son will be visiting a French family. We need a present for their 6-year-old boy . . ."

Cowboy hat. And a pair of GOOD cap pistols with belt and holsters. They can get such toys, but not as good as we have.

Travel

They watch our TV Westerns —French dubbed in: "Voila, varmint! Je suis le Sheriff!"

Siberia! Russia!

This is it, the big one. The now famous all inclusive 15-day tour charter to Russia. Choose from 12 summer flights via the Alaska Gateway . . . Anchorage. Visit Siberia, exotic Middle Asia, the Black Sea resorts, the Kremlin and Moscow, beautiful Leningrad, and jet home over the North Pole. 15 days, $1,398.00 includes everything. See your agent.

TRIP TIPS:

See an island for $5

By MARIE MATTSON

HONOLULU — The best airline buy on earth is the common fare which permits Hawaii travelers to visit outer islands for $5 per island.

Islanders, for example, pay $26 one way to fly from Honolulu to Hilo — but when using the common fare with a mainland ticket, you will pay only $5.

Have visits to outer islands included when your ticket to Honolulu is written.

To get more pleasure and greater value for your dollar here, keep the following in mind:

HOTELS: Honolulu offers 32,000 hotel rooms — almost a third more than are available in Tokyo, the world's largest city. As a result of several large new hotels opening in the past few months, there now are enough rooms to accommodate all visitors — many at budget prices.

The de luxe new Ala Moana Hotel — tallest in the state — has one complete wing (Kona Tower) where rooms are priced at $16 double, $13 single. So don't worry about hotel space even if you decide to come here on the spur of the moment.

CLOTHING: Bring your summer wardrobe — plus a sweater for occasional cool mornings and evenings. If you need anything new, buy it after you arrive. Fun to have is the muumuu — the long, loose garment missionaries put on Hawaiian women last century to hide their charms. Top designers now give it a look of elegance.

Men wear Aloha shirts — without a tie and outside the trousers. Coat and tie are required at only a few of the more plush spots, such as Michel's and the Royal Hawaiian Hotel's dinner show.

LANGUAGE: Everyone, of course, speaks English, but you should know a few Hawaiian words: "Wahines" means "Women," "Kanes," "Men." When they ask for your "kokua," it's "cooperation" they want. Notices signed "Maholo" are simply saying "Thanks."

APARTMENTS: For an extended stay, you might like an apartment. Start out at a hotel and check classified newspaper ads — you probably can line up something satisfactory in a week's time. Cost for a one-bedroom apartment within three blocks of the beach will run upward from $250 a month.

ENTERTAINMENT: There's music everywhere after dark — often without cover or minimum charge. Top entertainer is Hawaii's own superstar Don Ho, who performs in the Reef Towers Hotel. For big Polynesian revues, it's the Kahala Hilton and Hawaiian Hut.

FREE EVENTS: Dozens of free activities are offered daily, including such diversity as Hawaiian entertainment, flower arranging demonstrations, perfume factory tours and ukulele lessons (free uke supplied).

INFORMATION: The Beach Press on Monday and Friday, the Tourist News on Wednesday keep you posted on activities. Pick up these free newspapers in hotels, shops and restaurants throughout Waikiki.

COST LEVELS: Figure a minimum of $15-$20 a day per person double for room, meals and tips in good budget accommodations. For the majority of night spots, cost will run at least $10 for dinner show, $5 for show with one drink, tax and tip. Groceries are high — allow a bit extra in budgeting for apartment living.

MEDICATIONS: If you're using prescription drugs, bring along a sufficient supply to last throughout your stay. Drug stores will fill prescriptions written by local doctors only, so if you run out you have to pay to have the prescription rewritten here.

GIFTS: Fresh Hawaiian fruits are one of the nicest gifts to take home with you. Place your order by phone with Tropical Fruits Distributors or Aloha Pineapple and packages will be waiting for you at the airport check-in counter. Order whatever quantity you want — cost for six large pineapples or seven large papayas is $3.25.

With its mixture of Polynesian and Oriental peoples and customs, Hawaii has a foreign flavor — but you don't feel like a stranger here.

Tidbits from travel circuit

By HERB SHANNON
Travel Editor

Three Long Beach area residents share prize-winning honors in a contest sponsored by Pacific Southwest Airlines to depict ideas of future air travel.

Walt Bacon of Torrance, Russ Stokey of Redondo Beach and Jim Livesey of Hawthorne, all among six second-place winners selected from 2,000 entries, received weekend-for-two packages at PSA's Islandia Hotel in San Diego or its northern counterpart, the San Franciscan.

The contest asked entrants to describe or show what PSA's intrastate service airplanes would look like in the year 1991. Judges were two engineers from Boeing and Lockheed, plus a member of the traveling public.

THE TOP winner, R. Brooks Stover, a 23-year old bachelor student at Stanford University, received a two-week, all expense trip for four to Tahiti for his drawing of a double-fuselage aircraft from which cabin sections detach to serve as monorail ground transportation.

Stover is now the most popular man on campus. He and his three traveling companions will jet to Tahiti on UTA French Airlines and stay as guests of the American Express Club Mediterannee on the island of Moorea.

DRINKING ON duty department:

Passengers on National Airlines flights are accustomed to living it up because they know someone in their midst is keeping a sharp eye on would-be hijackers.

Last week a young lady en route to Florida from Los Angeles eagerly accepted the stewardess' offer of champagne with her lunch. But, there was a peculiar flavor to the serving from a tray of identical bubbling glasses.

Asked to identify the vintage, the stewardess sipped a taste and blinked in surprise.

"It's ginger ale," she explained. "That was supposed to go to the Sky Marshal."

The passenger noted that there was no complaint from the skycop.

LONG BEACH travel agent Al Beach, on a busman's holiday from his shop at 452 Locust Ave., witnessed the rescue of more than 500 passengers from the French cruise ship SS Antilles, which hit a reef and caught fire in the Caribbean earlier this month.

Beach was attending a Cunard travel agent seminar aboard the British luxury liner Queen Elizabeth II, which picked up most of the survivors of the near-disaster.

Al is happy to report that all 633 persons aboard the blazing ship were saved, and that none of them had been booked by his agency.

JAL offers tours for swingers

Japan Air Lines has a European tour for the under-30 generation that will make grandma's "grand tour" seem pale by comparison, unless grandma was a swinger.

JAL, in cooperation with Trafalgar of London, one of Europe's finest motor coach operators, is offering 43- and 22-day tours to 10 countries especially tailored for swingers 30 years and under.

HOWEVER, THE over-30 group isn't forgotten. JAL and Trafalgar also has tours for older swingers.

Soak up sun on the Riviera; cruise picturesque canals, rivers and lakes; laze in the sunshine of Nice; walk spellbound through the Louvre; then swing your nights away in Europe's best night spots.

Inclusive tour prices start as low as $632 for the 15-day "Scenic Europe" and go as high as $817 for the 43-day "Swinger."

Pismo Beach readies for annual Clam Festival

Pretty girls, beach buggy races, parades, bands, sports show plus plenty of clams for digging are among activities scheduled for the 1971 Clam Festival Feb. 5-7 at Pismo Beach.

The Pismo Beach Chamber of Commerce sponsors the three-day event, which is open to the public. Theme is "Paradise-by-the-Sea."

Other sights and sounds include a queen and her royal court and art exhibit. Numerous temporary locations will offer visitors clams steamed, baked, fried and in chowder.

PISMO CLAMS are only found in the wet sandy beaches of the Pacific Coast between South San Francisco and Baja. However, the greatest concentration of clam beds are in Pismo Beach despite more than one-half century of persistent clam diggers.

DEAR ABBY

Giving up girl friend for Lent

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend told me I shouldn't expect to see him between Ash Wednesday and Easter Sunday because he was giving ME up for Lent.

I told him I was terribly disappointed and asked him to please reconsider and give up movies because that's what I had planned to give up. He said, No, movies wouldn't be a big enough sacrifice.

Now I don't know what to think. I'd like your opinion. —KATHY

DEAR KATHY: If your boy friend gives you up for Lent, you'd be ahead to give HIM up for Lent instead of movies.

DEAR ABBY: I recently built an "office" for myself in our home, which I find very convenient because I can now spend more time at home than in my downtown office.

My wife's apparent annoyance with this new arrangement has become obvious, and that is my problem.

It is very depressing to be asked the first thing in the morning, "What is your schedule today?" (What she means is, "Are you going to stay home all day and get in my way?")

Due to the emotional tension of my work, I often jog in the morning and nap in the afternoon and this displeases my spouse no end. I figure that this will keep me in good physical condition and possibly increase the number of years I will be around, which I suspect is another source of annoyance to her.

I thought of a solution: Suggesting that she go back to work, teaching school. Or have you a better idea? We have been married for 19 years and have three lovely children. —SENSITIVE

DEAR SENSITIVE: Quit guessing, and ask your wife some pertinent questions: "Why are you unhappy with my home office setup? Why do you object to my jogging in the a.m. and snoozing in the p.m.? Would you like for me to just drop dead and get out of your way entirely?

Don't fight fire with fire by trying to get HER out of the house. You two need a good healthy truth session.

DEAR ABBY: After reading in your column that many people dislike receiving annual Christmas letters in which the writer brags about hubby's promotion, the wonderful vacation and how well the kids are doing, we decided to write one playing up our tough luck. It was easy. We mentioned our car accident, stock market losses and how the whole family came down with the flu.

It was much better received than those we had written telling about our good luck. I guess people love you more when your luck is down. —SCRIBE

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

GEORGE SCOTT

The Price

Miller Play Airs Wednesday, Ch. 4

A room in a Manhattan brownstone, full of memories and old furniture, provides the setting for a bitter confrontation in the colorcast of Arthur Miller's "The Price," starring George C. Scott, at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Ch. 4.

Co-starring with Scott in the drama special are Barry Sullivan, David Burns and Colleen Dewhurst.

Miller's play, praised by the critics when it opened on Broadway, focuses on the conflict between two estranged brothers — a policeman and a wealthy surgeon. They meet, after a 16-year separation to dispose of the furniture left by their deceased father.

Scott appears as Policeman Victor Franz, and Sullivan portrays his surgeon-brother Walter.

David Burns re-creates his Broadway role as Gregory Solomon, the used furniture dealer who arrives at the brownstone to buy the contents of the room.

Miss Dewhurst, married to George C Scott in private life, is cast as the policeman's wife, Esther.

AS FAR as Scott is concerned, his private life belongs away from the limelight and his acting career is centered at the footlights — and the two worlds will never meet, not even when he shares an acting assignment with his wife.

This is the first time in more than three years that Scott and Miss Dewhurst have acted together in a television play. Their previous co-starring performance was in another Miller drama, "The Crucible."

Scott said: "Being cast in the same play with my wife presents no particular problems. Why should it? We have always worked very well together. There have never been any of those husband-and-wife difficulties, either at a rehearsal hall or on the stage."

The square-jawed actor said there is a simple formula for their acting compatibility: "We leave all of our domestic considerations right where they belong — at home. When we are working, we behave as two professional actors trying to do the best we can. After all, that's what we are."

Man on the Flying Trapeze

In addition to performing on the flying trapeze, George Plimpton, the amateur who will try anything, tries his hand at training lions and clowning around at the circus, 9 p.m., Tuesday, Ch. 2.

Hope and 'Pot' on NBC

By JACK GOULD
New York Times Service

The tricky issue of mentioning marijuana on the air arose recently in connection with the television show made from film footage of Bob Hope's annual Christmas tour of overseas military bases, and Hope's own remarks about the show as broadcast.

The version that finally reached the home screen gave viewers no indication that Hope's wisecracks about pot had evoked perhaps the heartiest laughter among the troops; nor did the pictures on the tube ever confirm what Hope freely told the press and, indeed, discussed earlier and openly with Johnny Carson on the "Tonight" show.

The National Broadcasting Co. readily acknowledged that it had applied the scissors to Hope's holiday show and explained why. Within its prevailing standards of broadcast conduct, a spokesman said, NBC does not believe it wise to make a laughing matter of the use of drugs within the context of entertainment shows. If the comedians on the network receive a green light to offer gags on the marijuana culture, the medium all too easily might be accused of making pot a household word and encouraging its acceptance as a fact of life involving no element of controversy.

NBC DOES not have a specific writ on the subject; it merely enjoins performers from lending tacit popular approval to a matter involving a disputed question of sensible health habits.

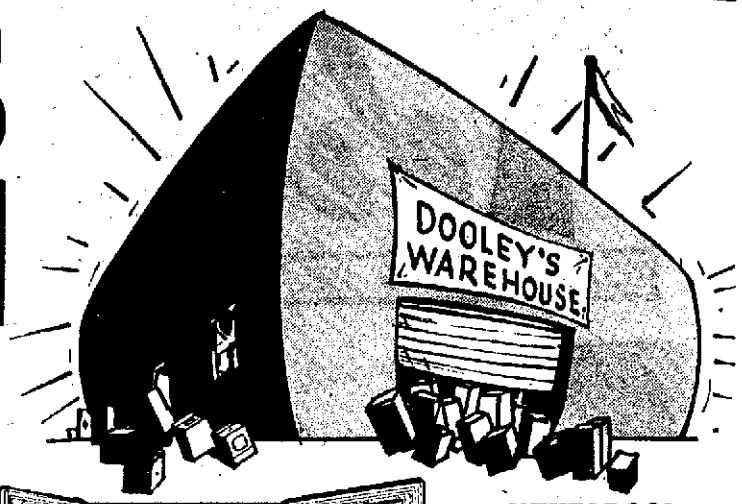

As for Hope's appearance on the Carson show, a different set of values prevailed, according to the NBC spokesman. In this instance, it was noted, Hope acknowledged that his jokes about pot had stirred up quite a storm, that he was speaking as an individual rather than giving a formal performance, and that he brought out the element of controversy by conceding without objection that he had been censored.

On Carson's show, Hope repeated some of the jokes that found favor with the troops but were withheld from his own show. On the televised account of Hope's travels there was only one vague allusion to pot. Some military men who were riding high, said Hope, used airplanes. Carson added that there was nothing like shielding the folks back home from the dark thought that their boys would try the weed and that it must be some other person's loved ones who were high in Vietnam without leaving the ground.

THERE ISN'T much doubt that NBC officials and other broadcasters would be quickly summoned to Washington under a deluge of criticism if the subject of pot were a nightly part of electronic show business. But still one must wonder if Hope's annual Christmas trip falls within the strict definition of entertainment. Admittedly the prime purpose of Hope's travels is to bring diversion to troops overseas but, whether so designed or not, his program is also something in the nature of a quasi-documentary if only because much of the film footage is focused on the soldiers, sailors and aviators watching Hope and his coterie of pretty girls.

But is the film as edited inviting the conclusion that it is capturing reality while in point of fact offering a distorted picture? Hope told it as he found it during his conversation with Carson: the troops in Vietnam did respond to quips on pot, which even the Pentagon admits is heavily used there, and everyone did want peace and wanted to come home.

Without too much conviction, Hope expressed the wish that the war would be over by next Christmas and that there would be no occasion for his return to that theater. He added that, despite all the sacrifice, he believed American intervention may have saved all of Southeast Asia from communism. But more by manner than word, he left no doubt of the war's unpopularity among the troops he encountered.

HUMOR, or the reaction to it, often can tell much about the state of a culture. If the GIs responded more heartily to Hope's pot jokes than to his traditional patter devoted to putting down The Brass, wisecracking about the chow or local references to recreational tedium, doesn't it say rather a good deal about the attitude of the soldiers?

Hope's producers had the unenviable task of cutting down thousands of feet of film to fit the prescribed 90 minutes of a commercially sponsored television show. But in the case of the Christmas tour, Hope is not only an entertainer and his trip not just a show in the usual sense. He also doubles as a reporter, a journalist in greasepaint, and the public would seem entitled to share in what he found out.

BOB HOPE

Because of Hope's unique rapport with enlisted men, his presence among the military is a special opportunity for them to give vent to their feelings in the form of laughter and applause. Accordingly, the network's argument for censorship of Hope's overseas show seems altogether weak where it might be reasonable in the case of a Hollywood studio audience.

How men in the field feel about the war involves much more than a 90-minute TV special. Probing jokes that win a hand often can be immensely revealing of attitudes that should be imparted to those at home. In press interviews, Hope has openly worried about the lack of sufficient activity and diversion for troops, the marijuana problem, and the strain of being in uniform in a war that nobody wants.

As a patriot and performer, Hope's credentials are impeccable. It is not unimportant, therefore, that his Christmas tour accurately reflect what he may find out, if only because he has the knack of shedding substantive light through humor rather than preachment. The country needs such a distinctive liaison man between those at home and those overseas. No one would want Hope's TV special to be stripped of its vital elements of humor; but if in his own way he can also incorporate the accompanying elements of significance, sans strictures by either NBC or the Pentagon, he could be even more of a national asset than he is.

PAN AND FAN MAIL

I AGREE with Dr. Hayakawa's article (IPT, Dec. 27, 1970) that television does not shape our minds as much as it shapes our buying habits.

But how can it shape our minds when we are fed mostly a diet of soap operas, old movies, and billious commercials? It is no wonder that most of us are sick of the materialistic TV industry. There are, to be sure, a few good programs ("Civilisation," Jacques Cousteau, and others) that inform and stimulate. These few programs, however, do not compensate for the rest of the poor fare.

We desperately need, of course, good educational programs. Learning is a lifelong process, and the TV industry can do much more in educating than it has. As a public utility, it owes this service to its viewers.

Mrs. Norma I. Davis,
Bellflower

(I don't know but what you might get an argument about TV being a "public utility" — I'm not so sure it's essential public service. The question you raise is whether programming content should be regulated. That's getting into the area of freedom of speech.)

IS THERE anything the viewing audience can do to protest when a particular program is cancelled?

I'm referring to "The Governor and J.J." We really enjoyed this show . . .

The stories were varied — not the same old thing every week. It was fast-paced, and the cast seemed to really enjoy the roles.

It is hard to understand why shows like this are cancelled.

Has another cute new show, "Odd Couple" been cancelled, too?

Mrs. D. H. Kirby,
Long Beach

. . . "ODD COUPLE" . . . Who is the idiot, or should I say idiots, that took this program off the air . . . ?

Mrs. J. B.,
Bellflower

(You can't do much about a cancelled program except write to the station. "Odd Couple" has not been cancelled. It was preempted one night for the President's State of the Union Message but now is on regularly at 9:30 p.m., Fridays, Ch. 7).

WHY DO they take two good Saturday shows, "Newlywed Game" and "Let's Make a Deal" and place them opposite "Gunsmoke"?

Watched pilot of "Alias Smith and Jones" — now programmed opposite Flip Wilson! Which one to watch; which will be on summer re-runs?

Also, a big argument out our way: Is Lucie Arnaz adopted . . . ?

I guess, as for the programming it's as Flip says, "What you see is what you get."

B. C. Parrish,

(Right about Flip's quote; it's a bit early for the networks to state what's going to be on summer re-run; idea of "counter-programming" is to put the best possible competition opposite the opposition and ABC thinks the games opposite "Gunsmoke" is its best deal; about Lucie, an old Associated Press clip notes that

THE BOB HOPE Christmas special on NBC attracted 61 per cent of the viewing audience, making it the highest-rated show of the season.

Flip Wilson was No. 2 in the Nielson ratings for the week of Jan. 11-17.

Andy Griffith's new show on CBS pushed him into 14th place and "All in the Family" was in 43rd place. Griffith did not reach the top 20 with his "Headmaster" series.

Here are the top 10:

1. Bob Hope Christmas Special, NBC. 2. Flip Wilson, NBC. 3. "Medical Center," CBS. 4. Dean Martin, NBC, and "Gunsmoke," CBS, tied. 6. "Hawaii 5-O", CBS. 7. "Here's Lucy," CBS. 8. NBC Tuesday Night Movie, "Secret Ceremony." 9. Walt Disney, NBC. 10. NBC Saturday Night Movie, "Duel at Diablo."

WHAT'S IT like to live the life of a famous bear?

Ask Jonas Prohaska, who created the costume and gives life and voice to the cookie-mooching bear on NBC-TV's "The Andy Williams Show."

Prohaska says: "I enjoy the success the bear is having on the show. The cast and crew also seem to enjoy the bear blackouts and I think Andy does more than any of us. Any recognition that I get from doing it is purely incidental. I don't think of myself as a personality, but as a person who gives life to — who animates — a personality.

The bear concept evolved out of a one-time idea that paid off in one of last season's earlier shows. Comedian Flip Wilson was a guest and producers Chris Beard and Allan Blye came up with the idea of inserting a bear into the act.

Says Beard: "The bear sort of represents a downtrodden fellow who keeps banging on the door of life, and is constantly being turned away. A social comment if you like. His performance on the show says something about prejudice, and rather reflects people's ideas of acceptance and non-acceptance. We received such a hearty response from that first performance, that we decided to make it a regular part of the show."

COOKIE-MOOCHING Bear of the Andy Williams show plants his paws in the cement at the Burbank City Animal Shelter—45th animal from movies and TV enshrined in the Grauman-style ceremony.

"Despite the bear's plight," says Prohaska, "he's still a funny character. He's contemporary — he's now and that's what makes him interesting. His plight just seems to add to his believable qualities."

He constructs many of his own creations in the workshop of his Santa Monica, Calif., home. When he completes a costume, he submits photo-

Kids' Film Festival

BURR TILLSTROM's Kukla, Fran and Ollie, with Fran Allison, are host-narrators of "The CBS Children's Film Festival" which opens its season 1:30 p.m., Sunday, Ch. 2.

"The CBS Children's Film Festival" returns with a new series of major offerings from around the world at 1:30 p.m., Sunday, Ch. 2.

Burr Tillstrom's Kukla, Fran and Ollie with Fran Allison will once again act as hosts.

During its six weeks of featuring films specially selected for their quality and appeal to the young viewers, the series will present productions from the United States, Great Britain, Tahiti, Russia and France, most of them new to television.

The premiere Sunday, titled "Miguel, Felipa, and Geronimo Jones," consists of three short features produced and directed in the U.S. by Bert Salzman and demonstrates how children from various ethnic backgrounds — Mexican, Indian and Puerto Rican — can bridge the gap from their own cultural heritage and translate it into a uniquely personal union with today's society.

Other presentations:

Feb. 7: "Lionheart," a film from Great Britain about a little boy who befriends an escaped circus lion he finds hiding in his barn and saves it from soldiers ordered to kill it.

Feb. 14: "Tiko and the Shark," produced in Tahiti, tells of a Tahitian boy who raises a baby shark and, after sending it out into open waters, forgets about it until ten years later when suddenly the two meet face-to-face and recognize each other.

Feb. 21: "The Ransom of Red Chief," a Russian-produced version of the O. Henry classic. The story follows the adventures of two petty thieves who decide to make their fortune by kidnapping a little boy for a huge ransom, but who soon wish they'd never set eyes on him. (Rebroadcast, black and white.)

Feb. 28: This presentation consists of two short features from France, "Glamaador," a film about a boy who learns to love and respect the freedom of a herd of wild horses, and "The Little Wooden Horse," the story of a street urchin's love for a small, wooden carousel horse. The latter film was previously presented as part of the trilogy, "Clown and Other Stories."

March 7: "The CBS Children's Film Festival" expands to 90 minutes for its final broadcast, "John and Julie," a black-and-white motion picture from Great Britain about a little English boy and girl who run away from home to see the coronation of the Queen.

The Athlete: His TV Glorification

JOE NAMATH

BILL RUSSELL

By RICK Du BROW
United Press International

Despite recent expose-type books demolishing the mythological approach to sports heroes, the glorification of athletes actually seems to be increasing because of television and its business tieup with leagues and teams.

As a frank partner in athletic events in the sense that it wants them to be successful, video for the most part still is more interested in promoting sports than covering them with the tough impartiality of those with no stake in the proceedings.

From a coldly commercial, very crass viewpoint, this attitude is paying off more and more handsomely for television. In the first place, many experts agree that video's live presentation of sports may be the best thing it does because these events are real, immediate and exciting.

In addition, whereas broadcasting has truly built up minor sports and leagues into enormously popular national institutions, the athletes who have been glorified now have become big television attractions in themselves — on entertainment shows — and are thus, in a way, repaying video's business interest in them.

JUST CHECK the networks almost any night, and you will see that sports idols are hot video properties, in the same way they are a big item in commercial and setting styles in the "mod" fashion industry.

Joe Namath, for instance, has hosted NBC-TV's "Tonight" show, and Bill Russell has filled in for ABC-TV's Dick Cavett. Johnny Bench was a large hit on Bob Hope's recent No. 1-rated special about his annual Christmas season visit to troops overseas.

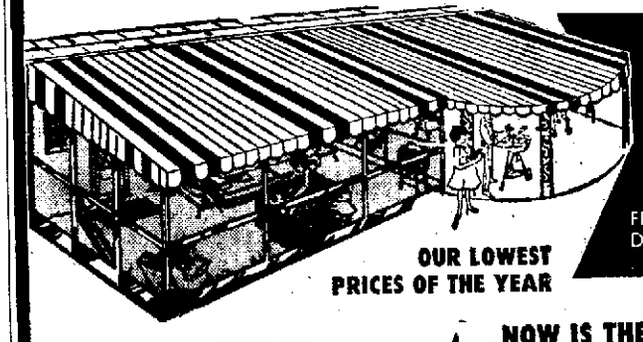

It used to be that show business personalities, many of whom are big sports buffs, used athletes as guests, and that was just about that. Nowadays, however, the ballplayers and other sports heroes are often larger celebrities with the public — because of television. For the week ending Jan. 10, as an example, CBS-TV's "Super Comedy Bowl," an hour special with top entertainers and athletes, came in a potent fifth in the ratings.

As another example, NBC's-TV's Feb. 3 "Music Hall" features Don Rickles and a number of star athletes — among them Alex Karras, Boog Powell, Joe Frazier, Tony Conigliaro, Victor Hadfield and Bill Russell, who is now retired from pro basketball's Boston Celtics. The show is titled "Locker-Room Follies."

SPORTS figures continue, of course, to get guest video roles. Lew Alcindor and Gail Goodrich do what comes naturally (portray basketball players) on the Feb. 18 episode of CBS-TV's private eye show, "Mannix." Bud Harrelson appears on Cavett's. And other upcoming Cavett guests include Johnny Bench Monday and, on Feb. 9, Tom Seaver, Bob Griese and Gale Sayers in a fashion show.

The syndicated video market is also fertile ground for sports idols. "Sports Challenge," for instance, is the title of a new quiz program in which two teams of famous athletes compete over questions based on film clips of memorable events in professional sports. The first show had former Yankee greats Joe DiMaggio, Mickey Mantle and Tommy Henrich against ex-Dodger stars Duke Snider, Don Newcombe and Don Drysdale.

Hoss Goes Swiss

"Bonanza" Star Moves to Lugano

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press

Hoss Cartwright in the land of fondue and yodel?

It seems unlikely, but Dan Blocker, the Sierra-sized star of TV's "Bonanza" series, has moved his family to Lugano, Switzerland. He intends to make his residence there whenever he isn't working.

How did it happen?

"Well, I happen to be a subscriber to National Geographic Magazine," he explained. "One time they did a spread on the lake country of Italy and Switzerland, and it knocked my eye out. My wife and I had been to Europe once, and I told her, 'The next time we go, we gotta see that lake country.'"

LAST YEAR the Blockers went — and were entranced. They visited Lake Como and Lake Maggiore, then viewed Lugano, which Blocker termed "the prettiest place I ever saw."

They discovered an American school nearby and last September the family moved into a chalet — parents, 17-year-old twin girls, boys, 15 and 13, plus two other boys from their old neighborhood who are attending the school.

"It's great for the kids," said Blocker. "They go to a fine school, they're learning languages and all of Europe is just a short train-ride away. We've got no discipline problems; my wife has everything under control.

"I was there for the holidays, and I get back whenever I can break away. All I need is a four-day weekend. That'll give me a couple of days with them.'

BLOCKER denied that he made the move for financial reasons.

"Taxes? Hell, I don't save a dime in taxes. If I were to take dual citizenship, that'd mean I'd have to pay 17 per cent of my earnings to Switzerland — plus what I'm paying here. No, thanks.

"Course, I don't mind paying taxes here. My only objection is how my tax money is being used. Instead of going for highways and the environment and the social programs we need so badly, it's being used to drop napalm on people in Southeast Asia. That's what I object to."

The isolation of a Swiss village may have had its enticements to him. Like James Arness star of "Gunsmoke," Blocker has never enjoyed the attention that his television fame has brought him — and neither he nor Arness can get lost in a crowd.

"'Bonanza' appears on Swiss TV," he remarked during a shooting break here, "but only in German. There aren't many German-speaking people in southern Switzerland, and I admit that had something to do with me settling in Lugano."

IT'S A long distance from a farm in Bowie County, Tex., to a chalet in Switzerland, and Blocker admits that he is among the luckiest of actors. The 42-year-old onetime substitute teacher in a Glendale, Calif., high school was moonlighting in bit parts when he was chosen to play one of the ranching Cartwrights in 1959.

HOSS CARTWRIGHT

The NBC series has made him a millionaire, and he said, "I feel a little guilty when I see no many actors out of work. I've had it too easy."

His salary now?

"How much am I makin'?" he asked an aide. He was told $15,000 per segment — about 26 a year. Plus 100 per cent residuals, meaning he eventually gets another $15,000 from each segment of the series.

"THAT KIND of money is unbelievable," he admitted.

"Yet it isn't out of line when you consider what some other series stars earn. Jim Arness gets double that. And Chuck Connors, who had a hit with 'Rifleman' and then three flops, still got $25,000 for that last one, 'Cowboy in Africa.'

"I'm not complainin', no sir. But when you consider that 'Bonanza' is the most profitable series in the history of television, I don't think we're overpaid."

Doesn't the series drag after 12 seasons?

"Sure it does. It's routine, the same way most jobs are routine. Oh, once in a while something comes along to give us a lift as actors. But most of the time it's a job. But damned well-paying you gotta admit."

"Bonanza" was recently No. 1 in the audience ratings and shows no signs of failing. How much longer can it last?

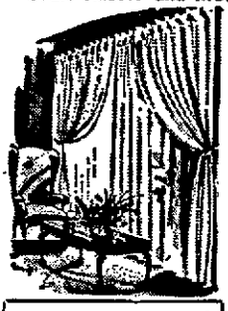

"I'm the last person to ask. Halfway through the first season I predicted it wouldn't last a year — and it nearly didn't. I said the same thing the second year. Now I've stopped makin' predictions. It may go on and on. If so, I'll stick with it."

Switching Shows in Mid-Season

Andy Griffith had a Loser, but he Moved Out Fast

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
Associated Press

The star was a valauble, time-proven television property. The new series was molded to his personality, his early interests, even his educational background. The basic idea was relevant, the word with which Hollywood and the networks were madly in love all summer.

"Headmaster" had its CBS premiere show in September—and quietly died.

What is it like to preside over one's own professional—but hopefully temporary—demise?

"PAINFUL," said Andy Griffith, looking grim and resolute. "That's it: painful."

It all seems clear now, looking back over those 12 programs, that "Headmaster" could not possibly have worked. But since hindsight never pays off, Andy is not pointing any fingers of guilt and, beyond an occasional "mea culpa," is looking ahead. In a unique and fast turn-around, Griffith junked the unhappy property and came up with a completely new show which had its early January premiere without missing a beat.

"The New Andy Griffith Show" brings back the drawling Southern character who has been around network television for years.

"I'd been uncomfortable in my mind since the second 'Headmaster' show," the actor said. "I felt pretty sure I could act, but I was saying things that made me uncomfortable. In spite of my background music major at the University of North Carolina and three years as a high school teacher I just knew I didn't fit into the academic world—not on television, anyway."

IT WAS, of course, much more than Andy's discomfort that was the stumbling block.

"We were preaching," he continued. "And if you preach, you can't entertain—or at least I can't. We were trying to combine comedy with drama and we had shows about suicide and drugs. Every now and then, I'd say, 'Hey, we've gotta do some comedy . . . '"

I talked with Walter Cronkite—it was one of those promotional things that we did when the affiliates met before the season started. And Walter said something then that stuck, way in the back of my mind, and I suppose I didn't want to admit it. I told him what we were going to do—and that one of the big school problems today is suicide.

"He just said, 'Suicide isn't very funny.' Well, my bag is comedy and I was just out of my element."

"Headmaster" drew poor notices and low ratings and "was on a straight track downhill; I was unhappy, CBS was unhappy."

ON A Saturday in October, with one more episode of "Headmaster" to complete in the original batch of 13 programs, Griffith, who had been stewing most of the night, called his producer, Aaron Ruben.

"I asked him if we should struggle through another show or eat the script," Griffith recalled. "He suggested eating it. Then we called Freddie Silverman, CBS programming vice president in New York, and asked him if the network wanted us to try to bend the old show into a new shape or to start a whole new one. We had the answer—new show—in two days, and were ready to shoot the first episode in 10."

Griffith took over command of the new project. He directed his staff to get him Lee Meriwether, a former Miss America, to play his wife—he had worked with her before and liked her style. Another personal selection was Ann Morgan Guilbert, formerly of the "Dick Van Dyke Show," to play his sister-in-law.

GRIFFITH himself appears as pretty much the same man viewers knew through the eight years of the old "Andy Griffith Show," except this time he is happily married, the father of two and the mayor of a small, Southern town.

"And now I feel comfortable," he said. "I keep thinking about a note I got from Paul Hartmenm He asked me to please don't preach because not many performers know comedy."

Of course, there is still a good chance that "The New Andy Griffith Show" will fall by the wayside and Andy is prepared for that possibility, but not without a battle.

"I've been defeated by things from time to time all my life," he said rather grimly. "But I think I've got a driving force, maybe a driving hunger.

"I remember one time in college I found I had to

SPECIAL

FLIGHT OF APOLLO 14 — Alan Shepard, Stuart Roosa and Edgar Mitchell are due for launch at 12:23 p.m., to begin a 9-day mission duplicating the planned voyage of Apollo 13, which was aborted in April 1970 when an oxygen tank exploded and the astronauts were forced to return to earth without landing on the moon. Moon walks are due early Friday and Saturday mornings, with splashdown due Tuesday, Feb. 9, in the Pacific.

CBS CHILDREN's Film Festival (2), 1:30 p.m. — Kukla, Fran and Ollie are hosts for a six-week series of acclaimed movies from around the world, for and about children. Initial week's offering, consisting of three short features, looks at the life-styles of three minority groups — Puerto Rican (Miguel), Mexican-American (Felipa) and American Indian (Geronimo Jones) — as viewed and practiced by youngsters of each ethnic group. Grandfather in latter film is played by the real-life grandson of Apache chief Geronimo.

SPECIAL

THE PRICE (4), 7:30 p.m. — George C. Scott and Barry Sullivan star in the "Hall of Fame" version of Arthur Miller's 1968 Broadway play about two brothers, estranged for 16 years, who face old memories and bitter recriminations when they meet in a condemned brownstone to dispose of old furniture left by their deceased father. Colleen Dewhurst (Mrs. Scott) and David Burns are featured, with music by Arthur Rubinstein, Fielder Cook directing.

JOHNNY CASH (7), 9 p.m. — Moving from the usual Nashville setting to Tucson, Cash salutes both the legendary West and the "Hollywood West" in an hour with Kirk Douglas, Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, Judy Lyn, and TV's "over-the-hill-gang' Walter Brennan, Andy Devine, Chill Wills and Edgar Buchanan. Film clips from famous westerns are featured, as is a medley of western songs.

THE PSYCHIATRIST (4), 10 p.m. — Premiere. Roy Thinnes and Luther Adler begin a 6-week run in the "Four-in-One" series, with Pete Duel returning as a former addict, desperate to kick his return to the habit. Dr. Whitman is caught between wanting to help his patient with methadone, and a law which prohibits paroled ex-addicts from using any kind of drugs

WASHERS - DRYERS - DISHWASHERS - DISPOSERS
7 DAYS ONLY! DON'T MISS IT!

MAYTAG AUTOMATIC WASHERS
• Automatic water level control saves water, detergent • Power Fin Agitator—designed for all size loads • Permanent Press Cycle—for today's modern fabrics • Lint filter • Perforated washbasket gets dirt away from clean clothes • Full Time Safety Lid—action stops in seconds when lid is opened • Maytag Dependability.

MAYTAG HALO-OF-HEAT® DRYERS
No Hot Spots! — Gentle, even heat, surround clothes • Permanent Press—keeps wrinkles out, creases in • Fine mesh lint filter—filters 100% exhaust air • Full opening safety door—easy loading and unloading • Electronic Control—automatically shuts off when proper dryness has been reached.

MAYTAG PORTA-DRYER®
Use it—store it anywhere. Needs no installation, no venting. Just plug into any adequately-wired 115 volt outlet and you're ready to dry. Does everything a big dryer does, except take up space.

MAYTAG DISHWASHERS
Three spray arms get high velocity jet washing action — top, middle, and bottom — scrub away food particles, even grease, easily. Self-cleaning micro-mesh filter prevents recirculation of food particles. Built-In or Portable.

MAYTAG DISPOSERS
Grinds all types of food wastes from the toughest bone to stringiest fibers—all to tiny uniform size for quick, efficient draining. Positive pressure water seal guards against water leakage into motor areas.

SPECIAL

UNHAPY Hunting Ground (2), 7:30 p.m. — More than 60,000 Indians have chosen to come to Los Angeles in search of a better life. This 90-min. KNXT special, told with the Indians' own words and sans host, follows a young Navajo, newly arrived from his Arizona homeland, as he strives to hold on to his identity and culture — struggling against the urban erosion of pride and dignity.

MUSIC MAN (28), 7:30 p.m. — "Theatre Beat" comes to the Long Beach Civic Light Opera, as Hal Marienthal chats with director Harvey Waggoner and president James Sidford.

APOLLO 14 — A live transmission showing the planned lunar landing area is slated for about 5:30 p.m., with all networks turning to the mission between 12:30 and 1 a.m. for audio coverage of the descent and landing of the lunar module on the moon — due at 1:17 a.m. in the hilly area of Frá Mauro.

graphs of the design to television and movie companies for possible use. Having performed since the age of 12 as an acrobat in Budapest, Hungary, Prohaska now prefers to tinker in his shop rather than be in show business.

"If Andys show hadn't come along I would have given up performing to concentrate on my inventions," he says.

What does the bear do when he's not on the "Andy Williams Show?" He resides with Prohaska and about 30 other animal costumes of varied species. He's among friends.

RYAN O'NEAL, formerly of video's "Peyton Place" and currently a tremendous hit in the motion picture "Love Story," stars in ABC-TV's "Movie of the Week" Feb. 9 in a tale of a fashion model whose romance with a playboy turns into a terrifying experience. Title of the tale is "Love Hate Love." It was written by famed mystery author Eric Ambler, and the producer is Joan Harrison, long associated with Alfred Hitchcock.

TV NOTEBOOK

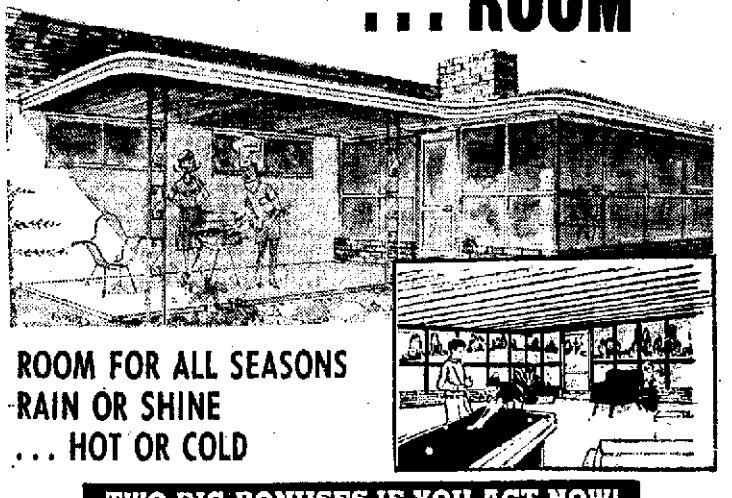

"ROBERT YOUNG and the Family," an hour special starring the headliner of "Marcus Welby, M.D." as host and narrator of a satiric yet affectionate look at American marriage and togetherness in the 1970s, will be broadcast on CBS-TV March 10.

PAUL NEWMAN stars and participates in "Once Upon a Wheel," an hour ABC-TV special which explores the excitement of automobile racing, and airs April 18. Also appearing in the program are Mario Andretti, Al Unser, Bobby Unser, Parnelli Jones, James Garner, Kirk Douglas, Arte Johnson, Glenn Ford and Pancho Gonzalez.

ROCK HUDSON is the latest movie star to take a plunge into video films. He begins work this week in a two-hour "World Premiere" offering for NBC-TV, "McMillan and Wife," a suspense-comedy about a police commissioner and his madcap spouse (Susan Saint James).

FACTORY-SPONSORED Magnavox
ANNUAL SALE
SAVE UP TO $150
Television
Stereo
Radios
Tape Recorders
Stereo Components

There will never be a better time to consider the purchase of a magnificent Magnavox than right now! For this is your opportunity to enjoy substantial savings on the Magnavox of your choice: today's most advanced Color or Monochrome Television . . . Stereo High Fidelity . . . an all-inclusive Stereo Theatre family entertainment center . . . a superb Tape Recorder or a fine-performing Portable or Table Radio!

Why should you consider purchasing a Magnavox? The reasons and advantages are numerous: Each model is an honest value, even without these Annual Sale price reductions! Every Magnavox is built-up to the highest standards of quality; never "stripped down" to a price tag! You always get more and finer features for greater enjoyment — for added performance, conveniences or beauty — in return for every additional dollar you choose to spend.

You'll also be pleased to discover that a Magnavox costs you less! Only Magnavox is sold directly to just a few carefully selected fine retailers in this community — stores such as ours who, like Magnavox, are dedicated to serving you better!

There are no "middleman" costs in the price of a Magnavox! Resultant savings are passed on to you in the forms of higher quality, more features, finer performance and lasting reliability! We invite you to come in and prove it to yourself!

Finally — unlike so many other "sale events" today — our Magnavox Annual Sale does not limit your choice to just a few advertised models! You may select from the widest assortment of authentic fine furniture styles . . . beautiful finishes and distinctive decorator colors . . . as well as prices to please every budget.

SPECIAL

LUNAR WALKS — Astronauts Alan B. Shepard and Edgar D. Mitchell, their lunar module "Antares" nestled in the hilly area of Fra Mauro, are due to open their hatch at about 5:45 this morning and shortly thereafter begin a walk of about four hours, using a rickshaw-like cart for their moon samples. Color cameras will be deployed, as they will about 21 hours later as the second walk is covered from 2:35 to 6:50 a.m. (Sat.)

WILDFIRE! (4), 7:30 p.m. — Lorne Greene is off-camera narrator for a special about the dedicated men who risked their lives last August to battle one of the worst fire disasters in the history of the state of Washington. More than 8,000 men—including Eskimos, Indians and students—spent ten days battling the inferno that destroyed 118,000 acres of trees in the Wenatchee and Okanogan national forests.

CAMERAMAN captures of some of the devastation for "Wildfire!," program airing at 7:30 p.m., Friday, Ch. 4. More than 8,500 men, including those at right, were called to control the blazing holocaust which destroyed more than 118,000 acres of forest land in Washington last summer.

CRITICS' CORNER

MAN'S THUMB ON NATURE'S BALANCE, aired Jan. 28, 1970.

. . . One of the most brilliant in some time, "Man's Thumb on Nature's Balance," was a quiet masterwork described as examining "the methods man uses to control and preserve wildlife — and the controversy surrounding some of these methods."

Incredibly, this hour, much of which concerned the annual seal fur harvest in the Pribilof Islands off Alaska, went unsponsored. And one can only wonder whether the lack of advertising resulted from the program's tenaciously independent reporting and its refusal to be another of those easy one-dimensional specials that jumps simplistically on the popular emotional bandwagon known as ecology.

For this was a program which, while undeniably the work of people with a passionate feeling and respect for the balance of nature, also showed a graceful, mature perspective on the overall human situation and did not avoid going into some of the vast complexities and technical problems that modify any emotional condition. Before the broadcast, producer Robert Northshield said.

"Some organizations, through publicity and legislation, are hoping to outlaw the killing of the seals. But the report will show that the seals are slaughtered as humanely as possible, in carefully calculated numbers, under terms of an international treaty whereby four nations — the United States, the Soviet Union, Japan and Canada — benefit financially. If the killing were stopped, the treaty would be broken and uncontrolled slaughter would result. Also, the killing would be indiscriminate. Cows and pups would be the main victims and the seals might eventually disappear."

Other opinions were also offered, and the viewer could draw his own conclusions. But the strength of the hour came in the pervasive, humanitarian tone that argued for conservation in tough, informed narrative rather than in obvious, emotional diatribe.

Northshield was the director as well as producer, and wrote the script with reporter Jack Perkins, who, as host, gave the narrative a superb reading. Together they generated a combination of journalism and poetic in-

Andy Changes Show in Midseason

move from my room in the basement of a house to a dormitory, and move fast. I couldn't figure out how I was going to get my stuff out when I just has one suitcase. Well, I threw some things in that, and then put everything else in a sheet. I strapped the suitcase on my bicycle, and held the sheet in my hand and I just rode everything over to that ole dormitory.

"Whatever else I lack, I think I have a knowledge of when to move—and how."

Many a series has tried making repairs, changing format or moving in new directions in mid-season when things were not going well. Griffith's clean-cut decision to junk the old and start fresh is without precedent.

If it works—Griffith frankly doesn't have a firm conviction—he has plans made for next season.

"I'd like to start early in March on the new season," he said. "I'd like to have time to develop good comedy scripts."

CRITICS' CORNER

"THE FEMINIST AND THE FUZZ," aired Jan. 26, Ch. 7; "CITY BENEATH THE SEA," aired Jan. 25, Ch. 4.

ABC's "Movie of the Week," "The Feminist and the Fuzz," used women's rights as a device to get in a little conflict. The female revolutionaries seemed only concerned about receiving equal treatment. Barbara Eden and Jo Anne Worley were about as convincing as feminist militants as they were as lady doctors: not very.

The 90-minute program asked us to believe that a pretty young pediatrician, Barbara Eden, and a stalwart young policeman, David Hartman, converged on an apartment for rent at the same moment. Because both were desperate for living quarters, the strangers agreed to share it on a platonic basis.

The show then resembled an old, naughty bedroom farce with people dodging in and out of rooms and hiding. At one point, the doctor's father, a chiropractor, gave a treatment to a lady of easy virtue under the impression that she was his daughter's roommate.

Of course, there was no doubt through all the turmoil that the beautiful feminist would wind up in the arms of the cop. She did.

IRWIN ALLEN practiced his specialty, peering into man's future adventures in an NBC "World Premiere" film feature called "City Beneath the Sea." It is a pilot for a future series.

Earlier Allen souffles have established the series-maker as a master of special effects. There was "Lost in Space" with as astronaut family gypsying around the Galaxy; "Land of Giants," about lost earthlings on a planet where everything including the inhabitants were 12 times the size of things on earth and "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea," about a submarine of the future fighting an enormous array of enemies.

It was back to the ocean depths, in the present case, to build a story around an underwater city called "Pacifica," where people are living and working in the year 2053. The special effects were remarkable. There were panoramic sights of a city with submarines threading their way gracefully among the structures, electronic gadgets flashing lights, nuclear warheads racing information toward the stars and a human "aquanoid" who could breathe underwater like a fish.

Regretfully, all the artful trick photography and pyrotechnics were the backdrop for a silly, cliche-ridden action story that could be — and has been — played out many times before on dry land.

Our hero is an admiral returning to the undersea city he helped build on special presidential assignment to remove all Ft. Knox gold to Pacifica vaults as a shield against fissionable H128, the most powerful material in the world, which must be stored there. Some bad guys wanted to steal the gold and the nuclear material. Naturally, they failed and our hero not only managed to turn them back singlehanded but deflected a planetoid racing toward earth.

It seemed too bad that producer - director - writer Allen could dream up such interesting background material but settled for such a pedestrian story.

Stuart Whitman, looking noble in spotless white Navy uniforms, played the hero as if he believed in him. Robert Wagner, disguised behind a large mustache, seemed to enjoy being a black-hearted, power-mad villain.

— Cynthia Lowry, AP

Lucie and Desi Arnaz Jr. are both children of Miss Ball by her former husband, Desi Arnaz).

WHAT A DIRTY trick to play on all us watchers of "As the World Turns," substituting another actress to take the place of "our Penny."

We were anticipating seeing Penny again.

She has always been a very important part of "As the World Turns" and we always looked for her back from England.

Then again we were glad to see her in "All My Children" and then she takes off for Switzerland.

Why is she always leaving a program . . .?

H. E. Barton, Long Beach

(Networks never explain. Usually, reasons for dropping a role are: 1) the story line calls for this action — although enough demand could, I suppose, revise the story line; 2) the original contract is only for a specific number of shows; 3) the actress is fired or quits for some reason; 4) introduction of a new character, it is believed, will freshen the story).

I AGREE with HWN, Garden Grove (TeleVues Jan. 17) — the tripe we see on TV is using up time which could be better used if only to twiddle your thumbs. These so-called young stars we can see every day on the street — dirty and long hair and beards. A good look at a bar of soap would scare them to death. As I said, those so-called rising young stars don't look like men; they look like freaks and the catresses who brag about having babies out of wedlock are nothing but a bunch of tramps.

WELLS REPORT

Cain Was Able and Willing

In the 1920s, motion pictures became the art form of the masses. The depression merely intensified the popular demand for movie escapism, and the Hollywood dream factories were called upon to increase their output. To make films they needed stories and to get stories they needed writers.

For almost 30 years the studios combed the lists of best-selling authors and not-so-best-selling authors, of magazine short story writers and British novelists to keep up with the demand for scripts.

The writers came. They dutifully hammered out vehicles for Joan and Constance Bennett. They added yet another chapter to the epic of Andy Hardy. And when they weren't writing for the movies, they were writing novels and short stories and murder mysteries with Southern California settings. There are more than 1,500 novels about Hollywood itself, but that is only a fraction of the fiction produced with a Southern California setting.

Most of the literary greats of America, Britain and Canada wrote for films during the golden era of the movies — Aldous Huxley, Evelyn Waugh, Scott Fitzgerald, William Faulkner, Nathanael West, Morley Callahan, Raymond Chandler, to mention only a very few.

Some of them, like Huxley, managed to tolerate Hollywood. Most of them detested it and said so in no uncertain terms. But, during the depression, most of them were economically dependent on it for the livelihood that would permit them to continue writing novels or plays.

"A writer who is currently receiving $1,000 a week," Carey McWilliams wrote in the 1940s, "who has made a down payment on a $25,000 home, and whose option is about to expire is about as engrossed with motion pictures as it is possible for a person to be with any single topic."

If writers resented the production-line atmosphere of the studios, they took revenge in their own novels. The Hollywood experience was unpleasant, but it provided material and so, ultimately, was beneficial to most.

Not to all. Some writers were destroyed by Hollywood. Scott Fitzgerald was certainly not helped by it, but the processes of disintegration had started long before. A better example of a Hollywood casualty is James M. Cain.

No one mentions James Mallahan Cain any more, yet in the 30s and 40s his books were enormously successful and he was considered a leader in what for no good reason was then called the "hard-boiled" school of writing.

Cain was a Baltimore newspaperman whom H. L. Mencken talked into doing some short stories for the American Mercury. He then tried novels without much success until he came to Hollywood. California not only gave him employment; it gave him a style.

". . . I moved to California and heard the Western roughneck," Cain said, "the boy who is just as elemental inside as his Eastern Colleague, but who has been to high school, completes his sentences and uses reasonably good grammar. Once my ear had put this on wax so that I had it, I began to wonder if that wouldn't be the medium I could use to write novels. This is the origin of the style that is usually associated with me."

Cain's first published novel, "The Postman Always Rings Twice" appeared in 1934. After "Serenade" in 1937 and "Double Indemnity" in 1943, he began to be regarded as a rising novelist although critics deplored the Hollywood melodrama influence they detected.

Cain admitted a penchant for melodrama, but denied it came from Hollywood.

"I had acquired," he said, "such a morbid fear of boring a reader that I certainly got the habit of needling a story at the least hint of a letdown."

Nevertheless, the habit of "needling a story" grew. Cain began repeating himself. His later books all read today like bad 1936 Hollywood whodunits. "Postman," on the other hand, is still a good book. The great French writer, Albert Camus, in "The Stranger," frankly paid Cain the compliment of imitating the style of "Postman."

Cain moved back to Maryland, but contined to do very well in Hollywood. Practically all his books have been made into films. But he continued to deny the influence of Hollywood on his writing.

"Though I have worked for the picture studios, they were strictly . . . an incidental thing to gain some income from, and never of any literary importance to me," he said.

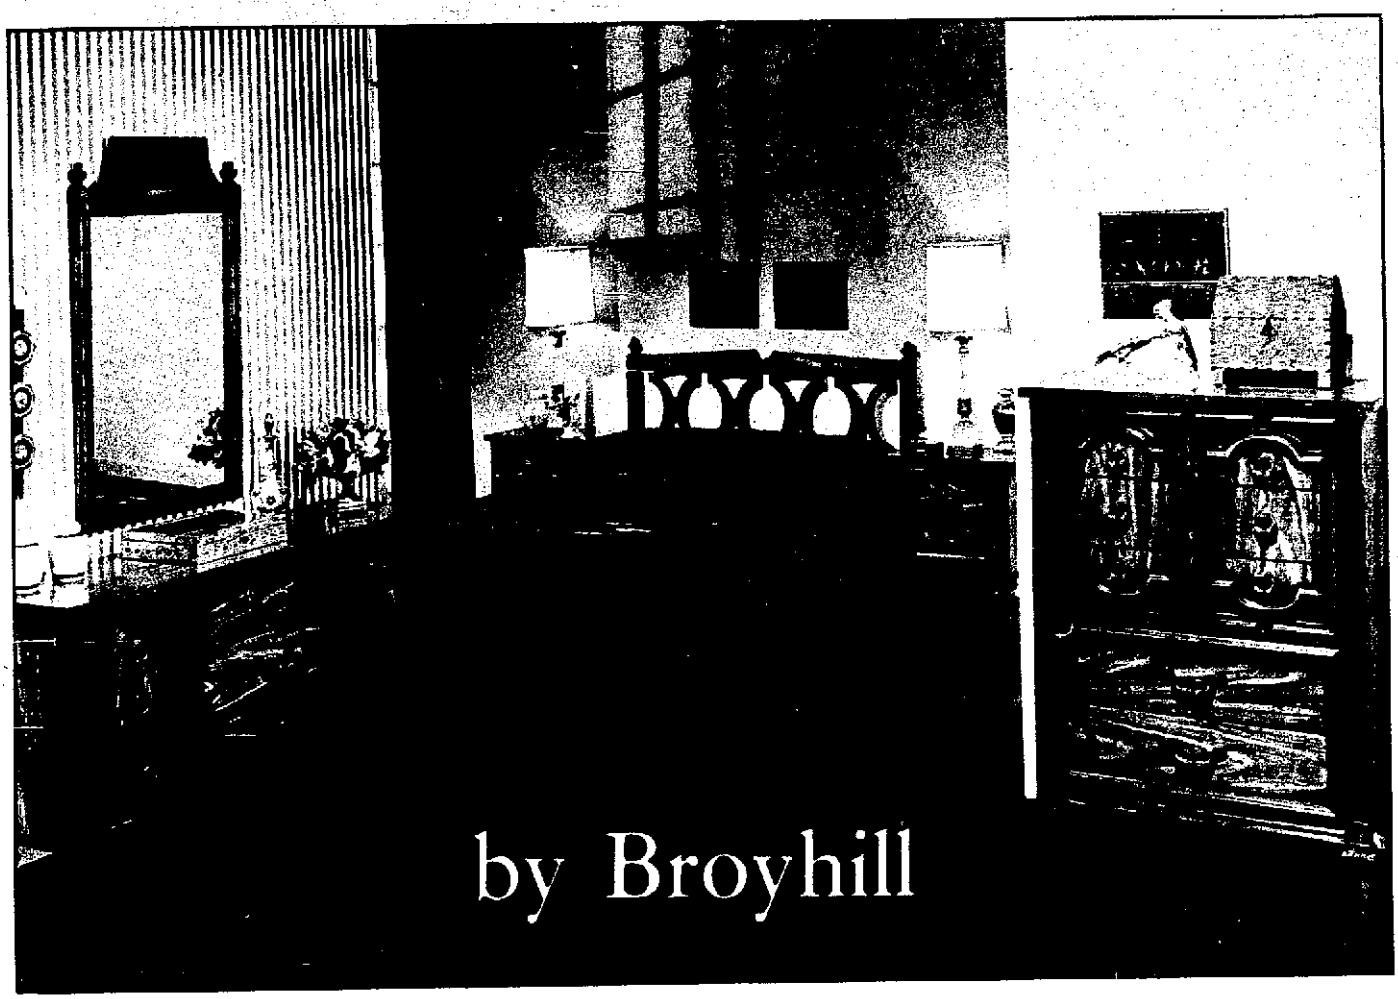

But Raymond Chandler, another and better writer of the hard-boiled school who wrote the screenplay of Cain's "Double Indemnity," perhaps summed it up more accurately:

"They don't want you until you have made a name," Chandler wrote of Hollywood, "and by the time you have made a name, you have developed some kind of talent they can't use. All they will do is spoil it, if you let them." □

GOLD . .

This is truly "The Man in the Golden Suit." Developed in the research laboratories of E.I. duPont de Nemours & Company, a fabric known as "Armalon," made of two layers of Teflon ("dragon fur") and coated with pure gold, is used to make this protective suit for workers handling high-energy rocket fuels. The suit will reflect an explosion flash of 3,000-degrees Fahrenheit, and will safely protect the human body against sustained temperatures as high as 500-degrees Fahrenheit.

Paves the Road to Space

By Marshall K. McClelland

Not until man recently ventured into space had so much as one speck of the world's gold supply been obliterated from its earthly existence.

The gold that cavemen picked up in nugget form out of streams to use as ornaments; gold mined 6,000 years ago in Africa; the gold of Egyptian Pharaohs; the gold of ancient Rome; the gold of the Incas in Peru had survived every use to which it was put. "... neither moth nor rust devoureth it ..." observed Pindar, the Greek philosopher-poet. "That which alone of all Earth's treasures is Eternal!" (Anon).

Although the use of gold in the exploration of space has destroyed the one tradition of its earthly permanence, it may, on the other hand, be enhancing and insuring man's future life.

—Man's footsteps on the moon were made possible by three remarkable little gold-plated boxes, each the size of a small jewel case. Carried to the moon by the spacecrafts Surveyor V, VI and VII, the boxes, containing miniature robot chemical laboratories, were lowered automatically to the lunar surface. The labs bombarded the lunar soil with radioactive streams of alpha particles, then measured the moon's energy responses, telemetering the information 240,000 miles back to earth, and thereby revealing for the first time to man the chemical composition of the moon. Hailed as one of the greatest scientific achievements of all time, it eliminated concern over possible potential hazards for a manned moon landing. Of all the metals available on earth, only gold could adequately protect the sensitive instruments inside the box from the extreme fluctuations of lunar temperature.

—A 24-karat gold suit has been developed to protect space age workers who must handle exotic high-energy rocket fuels and fuel equipment. The suits are made of two layers of Teflon (known as "dragon fur"), with an outer coating of pure gold. They will harmlessly reflect an explosion flash of 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit, and will safely protect the human body against sustained temperatures up to 500 degrees Fahrenheit.

—Space walks demanded improved eye protection against the harmful infrared region of solar radiation. A thin, transparent film of gold-salt solution is sprayed on the clear plastic visors of the astronauts' helmets. The gold coating reflects infrared energy, absorbs ultraviolet and permits the astronauts' eyes a good reception of the visible spectrum.

—One of the weightiest problems of the space program has been just that — weight! Being the most malleable of all metals, a single grain of gold can be drawn into a fine wire 600 feet long. One gram of gold makes a fine wire 1.5 miles in length. One ounce of gold can be stretched out for 50 miles. An ounce of gold, if very thinly plated in leaf form upon a silver or copper wire base, covers 1,000 miles of such wire. Not only does this afford a vital weight-saving of tens of pounds over conventional wiring in a spacecraft, but the gold wire and gold-plated wire is additionally more durable, more dependable and even more economical!

—The advantages just mentioned above resulted again in the gold plating of printed circuits, transistors, switches, bellows, pumps and connectors used in spacecraft.

— A gold plating applied to microwave vacuum tubes has greatly improved the operation of communications equipment in the quality of transmission between tracking stations and satellites, and between ground control and spacecraft.

— Radioactive gold is used as a source of heat in the thermionic converter, which produces electric current in spacecraft.

— A transparent conductive film of gold deposited electrically on spacecraft windows reduces glare, filters out hot, red and infrared rays, and prevents fogging and frosting.

— In the Gemini space vehicle, the interior of the large adapter ring linking the capsule to the booster rocket was gold plated, serving the function of retaining heat generated within the adapter and maintaining a suitable operating temperature. The rear exterior of the ring was covered with a thermal curtain made of special gold-coated fabric.

— Spacecraft needed antennae of revolutionary new design — lightweight, durable, compact, reliable. The need was filled by using a gold film on open-weave, lightweight fabrics, such as woven fiberglass. The gold-plated fabric antennae then could be stored in small, tight rolls in the spacecraft and unfurled at the proper time in outer space to perform their functions.

— A gold-plated titanium shield reflects fuel-element heat away from the Apollo spacecraft, and also helps to maintain the thermal balance inside the lunar module.

— About $1,500 worth of gold is aboard each Apollo spacecraft, contained in a brazing alloy used on the connections of the fuel and oxidizer lines for the reaction control system. There are 600 such fittings. The gold alloy adds strength to the joints and provides a high resistance to oxidation and corrosion.

—The environmental control system of the Apollo spacecraft also depends on the reliability of gold. It is used as an insulating layer 75-millionths of an inch thick on approximately 50 feet of glycol coolant lines in the system. The gold covering absorbs a minimum amount of heat and cold.

—The computers involved in every space flight, both on the ground and in the spacecraft, owe much of their accuracy, speed, memory and dependability to the gold contained in their subminiature and microminiature circuitry. Gold has another vital use in alloy form for cladding metal tapes used in the computers.

—Fascinating tiny gold "whiskers," only 1/10th the diameter of a human hair and about 0.01 inch long, that vibrate like tuning forks, have dramatically improved transistors for spacecraft radio and electronic equipment. The gold "whiskers" make it possible to "tune" integrated circuits to a narrow band of frequencies and reject all others. The transistors can cover frequencies from 10 to 100 kilocycles per second.

—When Apollo 12 visited the moon, the most important project performed by the astronauts was the deployment of ALSEP, translated from abbreviology meaning: "Apollo lunar surface experiment package." This package contained the most sophisticated scientific instruments ever put on the moon, or any other planet by earthmen. They measure moonquakes and other seismic activity that shake the moon, and also measure the moon's magnetic field, solar wind and any atmosphere that might be present in any degree. The instrument package has continued to function in spectacular fashion for the past year, unlocking the moon's secrets one by one. Its prolonged life and excellent performance can be traced to the gold-coating on the interior surfaces of the package, providing protection from the extremes of heat and cold.

—In May 1971 two Mariner spacecraft will be launched for trips to Mars, arriving at the planet in November. Both will orbit Mars to obtain vital data to establish touch-down sites for the first Mars Lander Mission, currently planned for 1973. Again gold

This remarkable photograph of the south polar cap on the planet Mars was taken by the television camera aboard Mariner 7 on Aug. 4, 1969. The spacecraft was nearing an altitude of 3,300 miles. The area surface of Mars shown is about 740 miles by 930 miles. The polar cap is at the upper left of the photo. Scientists have been struck by the seeming cloudlike formations in the right center of the photo. The superb quality of this picture and the many others sent back to earth by Mariner 7 was due in considerable degree to the television camera lenses being vacuum coated with gold, which controlled the heat entering the vidicon system.

Spectacular shot of Apollo 12 command ship taken from the lunar landing module as they passed over surface of the moon, following separation and prior to the module's descent to the lunar surface. Gold has proven unequaled by any other earthly metal for use in and on the most vital operating parts of the Apollo spacecraft. Gold's resistance to extreme temperature fluctuations, its malleability, its strength in alloy with other metals, its light weight (since a little goes a long way!), all have made it a "golden" key to man's successful conquest of the moon.

When U. S. astronauts started venturing from their spacecraft into outer space, improved eye protection against the harmful infrared region of solar radiation was required. The Lockheed Missiles and Space Co. came up with a remarkable gold spray, which it named "Lockspray-Gold." A thin, transparent film of gold is sprayed on the clear plastic visor of the astronaut's helmet. The gold coating reflects infrared energy, absorbs ultraviolet and permits the astronaut's eyes a good reception in the visible spectrum. Shown here is Lt. Col. Ed White during his space walk in 1965. Astronaut White was later killed in the tragic testing accident of the Apollo spacecraft at Cape Kennedy.

will play an important role. There will be a thin vacuum deposit of gold on the television camera lenses to control heat entering the vidicon system through the lenses, guaranteeing the highest possible quality of pictures relayed back to earth. Each spacecraft will be covered with a high temperature plastic blanket of about 76 square feet, which will be vacuum coated with gold, protecting the craft from the drastic temperature changes encountered during the approximate 90-day orbits. Radio frequencies will be shielded from interference across the vastness of space by gold plating of radio circuitry and enclosures.

—The developments of new uses for gold in space exploration are certainly being reflected in the daily lives of those of us still earthbound. For instance, the applications of gold use "discoveries" in the space program have resulted in safer automobile windshields and welders' goggles. As in space use, a transparent conductive film of gold is deposited electrically on safety glass, reducing glare and heat, and preventing fogging and frosting.

—Computers, electronic installations, radio equipment, jet aircraft parts, telephones, television sets, manufacturing testing equipment and certain medical treatments have all made impressive gains through "spin-offs" from the space program's gold experiments, discoveries and developments.

—Platinum-sheathed gold seeds, less than 0.1 inch in length, are used in the radioactive treatment of cancer. The radioactive gold is totally encapsulated in pure platinum, which screens certain harmful radiation products while permitting beneficial gamma rays to pass through and destroy the malignant tissue.

—Radioactive gold has been used

Artist's conception of the two Mariner '71 spacecraft going into orbit around the planet Mars. Each spacecraft will be covered with a high-temperature plastic blanket of about 76 square feet, vacuum coated with gold, protecting the craft from the drastic temperature changes which will be encountered in their trips around the distant planet. The television camera lenses will be vacuum coated with gold; certain exterior surfaces, facing the sun, will be plated with gold to provide thermal control; all radio circuitry and enclosures will be gold plated to provide shielding from interference; and other areas of the spacecraft where corrosion control is essential will be gold plated. The Mars spacecraft will be seeking a suitable landing site for the first Mars Lander Mission, scheduled for 1973.

successfully to fight cancer in the abdominal and chest cavities. It is injected into the space of the cavity where it reduces the amount of fluid. It does not destroy cancer cells but lessens their ability to reproduce.

—Injections of small quantities of gold will sometimes bring lasting relief to sufferers of rheumatoid arthritis. The injections must be given on a regular basis every three to four weeks for an average period of six years.

—Gold leaf is being used in surgery on the human body. Its adherence, malleability, chemical inertness and tensile strength make it ideal for patching punctured blood vessels, and other defects in body tissues, including the brain.

—Dr. Naomi M. Kanof, a specialist in Washington, D.C., has been granted a patent by the U.S. government for her method of treating skin ulcers by the application of several layers of porous gold leaf directly on the ulcers.

—Having sent gold to the moon, the question naturally arises: Will the moon yield vast treasures of gold to man? According to Dr. Anthony Turkevich of the Enrico Fermi Institute of the University of Chicago, the scientist responsible for the design and development of the gold-plated miniature robot laboratories placed on the moon by the Surveyor spacecraft, there will be no gold rush to the moon, so everyone might just as well unpack his shovel and pick. "The gold content of lunar soil is infinitesimal. In the cold light of scientific evaluation of our lunar soil and rock studies to date, there will be no gold mines on the moon."

OK, Doc, but then there's Mars coming up! □

Oasis For Frightened Families

You are 24, slim, pretty, but with a perpetual frown line between your dark brows. You have four children, the eldest a bright first-grader, the baby barely two months. You think you could stand the beatings your husband gives you; you still love him, at least when he is sober. But lately, you fear for your babies' lives, especially the youngest. Her crying infuriates him, and he threatens to throw her against the wall. You believe him. You have no relatives nearby, no job, no money, and you MUST stay with your children. Where can you go?

You are 48, beautifully groomed, outwardly calm. You look like country-club set, and you are. Your husband is a prominent professional man, and his increasingly frequent binges have thus far been a carefully kept secret. Only YOU know how abusive he is at these times. Now you have covered your blackened eyes with stylish dark glasses. You know you are near the breaking point. In spite of your status, you have no money; he has managed to control the finances. You have to get away to find some answers. What can you do?

You are 13. Tonight, while your mother was out, your stepfather came home drunker than usual, beat you, and assaulted you sexually. Your mother returned; there was a fight. He threatened to kill you both. When he passed out, you and your mother fled. You need immediate medical and probably psychiatric care. You have no funds, not even extra clothing or a toothbrush. Where can you turn?

By BETTY MAZZACANO

Incredibly enough, in most communities there is no answer for such distraught families, who must flee from abusive alcoholics. They must go to relatives or friends, where they can be followed and harassed, or they can try a hotel or motel, difficult, if not impossible with several children and no money. In Pasadena, there is shelter for these displaced persons. Over 450 mothers and some 1,000 children have been temporary residents in its nearly five years of existence. It is called Haven House, and it is just that . . . a haven, a refuge, a home where aid is given by people who understand.

Primary organizer of Haven House was Mrs. Bettie Patterson, who was actively involved in the Al-Anon Family Group, a fellowship formed to assist relatives of alcoholics to understand the complexities of the disease of alcoholism. Together with 20 other interested Al-Anon members, Mrs. Patterson raised the first $1,000 needed to form a nonprofit charitable organization, found a suitable house for rent, and, in July, 1965, opened the doors of the first Haven House.

Almost immediately it was too small, filled to overflowing with grateful guests. In 1966, a roomy old mansion was made available at a reasonable rent, and Haven House settled comfortably into its present quarters, on a quiet residential street in Pasadena.

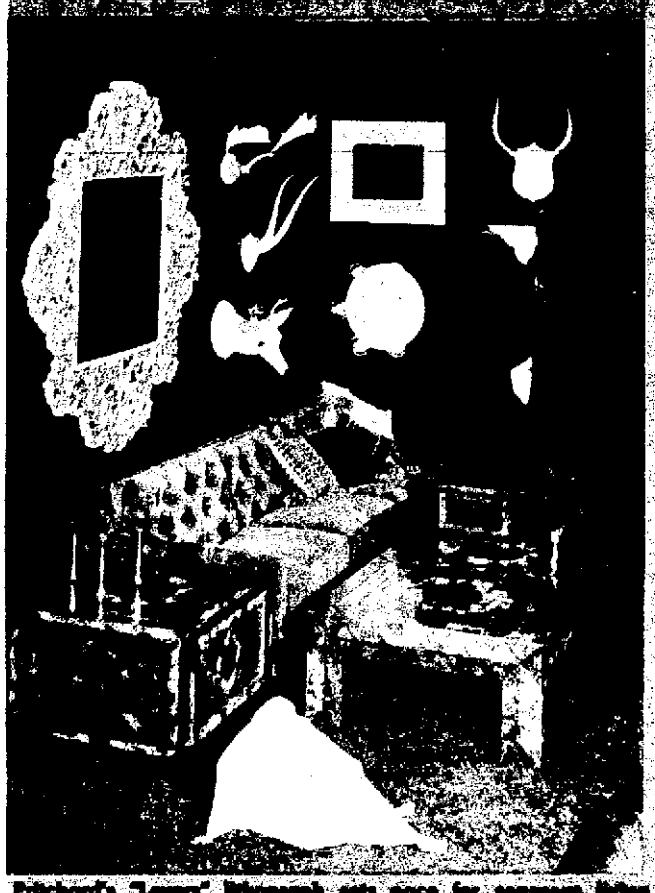

Mrs. Patterson, who became the first resident-manager, died in 1967, but had seen her dream become reality. She is remembered with fierce affection by those whose lives she touched. "An unofficial saint," they call her.

Present manager of this unique home is Mrs. Margaret Knox, who was one of Mrs. Patterson's original organizers. Her small office sees a dismaying parade of human woes, but her enthusiasm and compassion grow in proportion to the number of problems she faces. Mrs. Knox has come to expect crisis as a part of each working day. She knows that alcoholism is a family disease, insidiously invading and eventually disrupting any semblance of normal family life.

"Our guests arrive at any time of day or night," says Mrs. Knox. "They may be hysterical, or withdrawn in shock. They are very often badly beaten . . even the little ones. Whatever their appearance, the stories are basically the same. They need protection, care and counseling. We provide these things in a home atmosphere."

Mrs. Knox and her sm... staff expect certain duties from their guests in return for the aid they offer. They also realize that 'keeping busy' is in it-

If you appreciate slickly sensual surroundings, you will adore Phyllis Morris Originals.

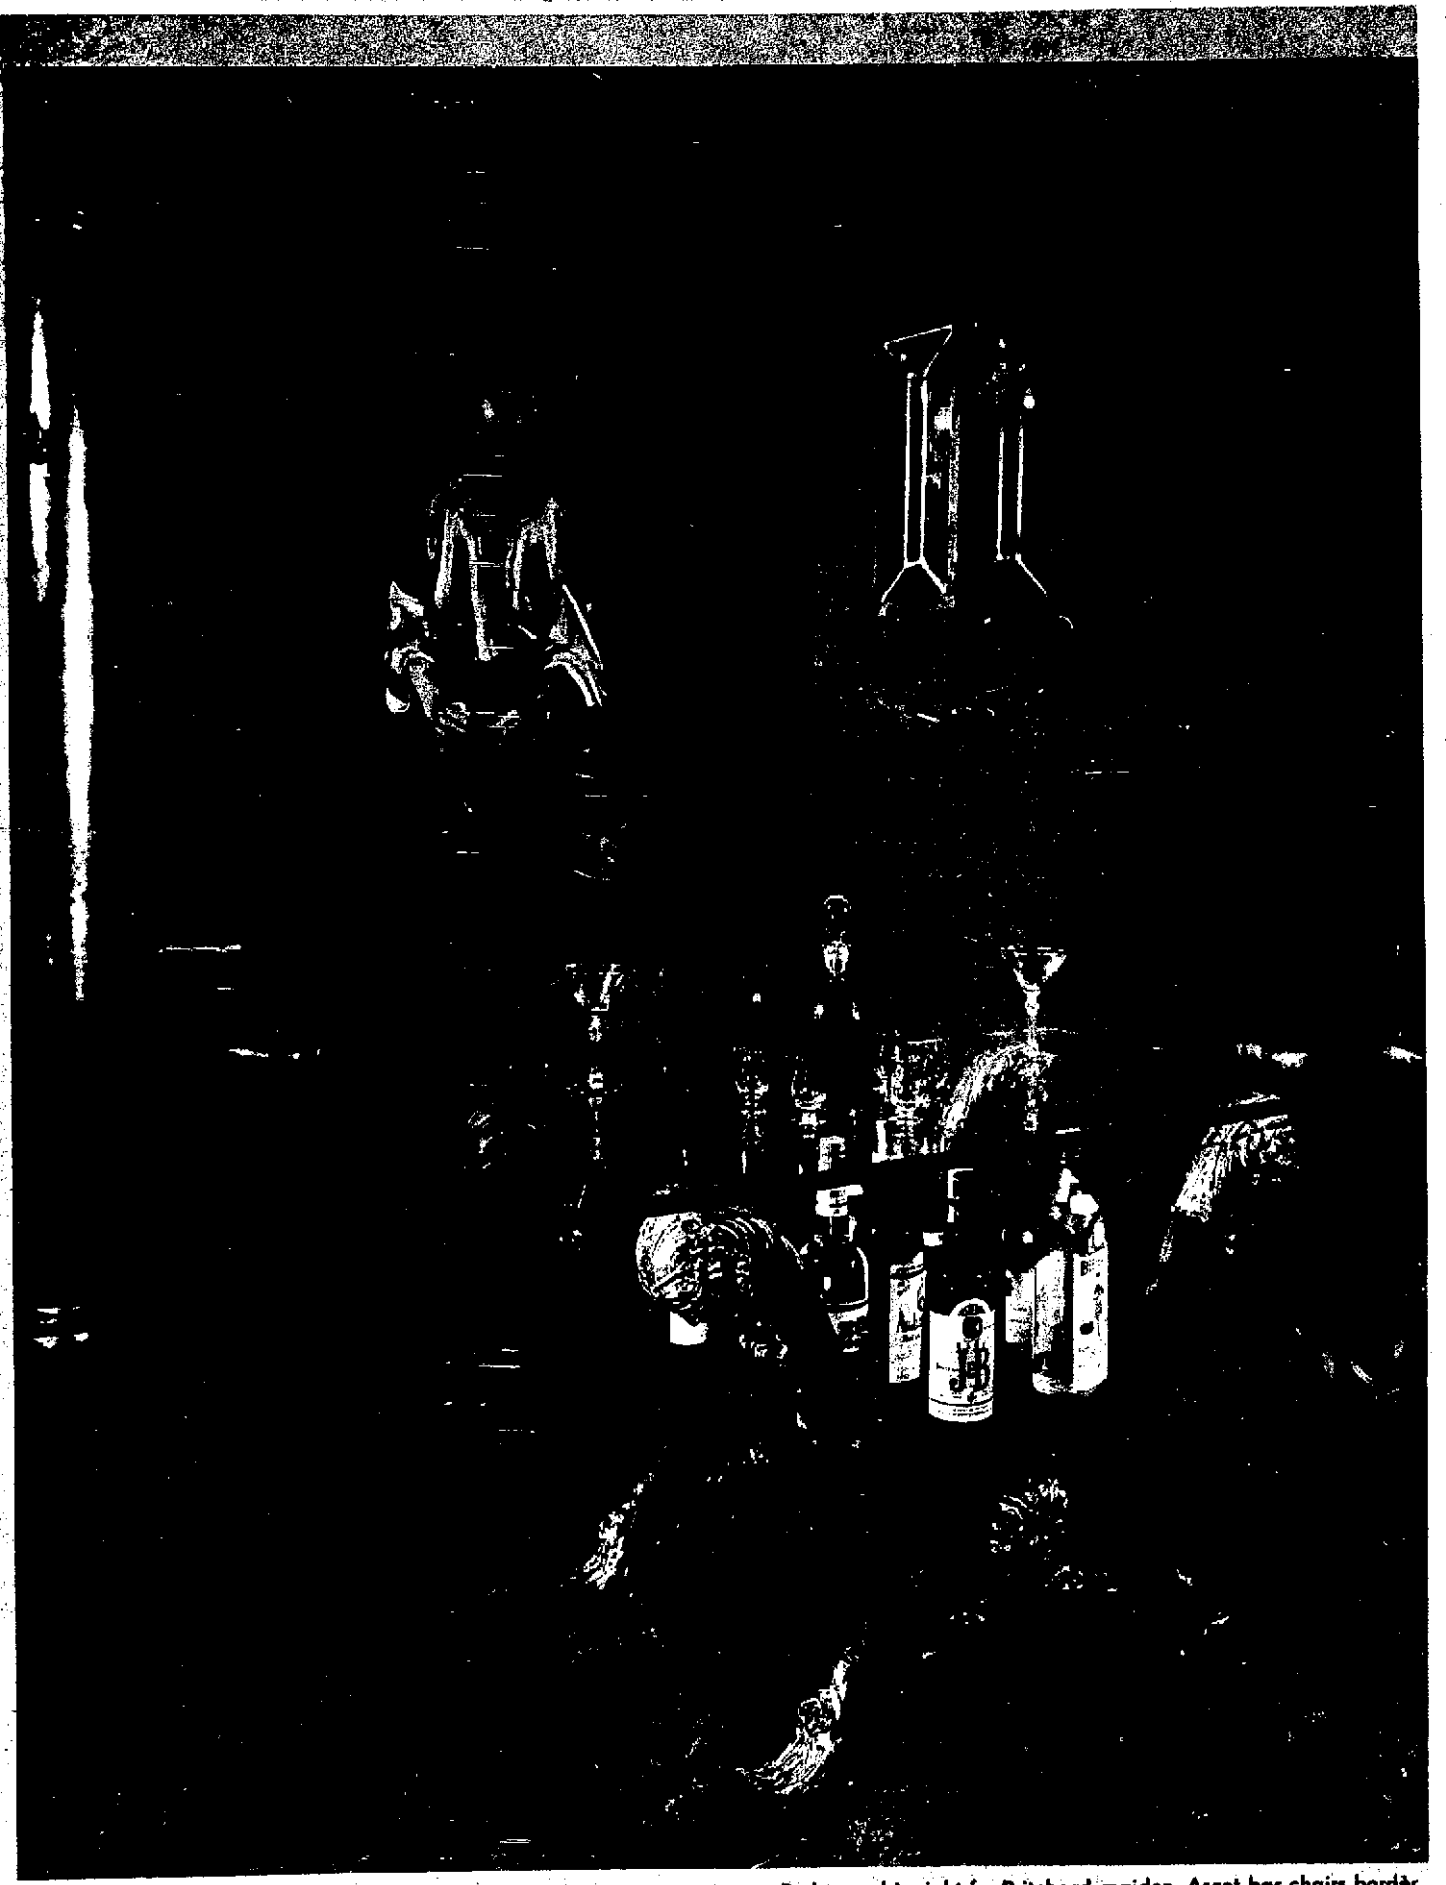

There IS a Phyllis Morris and she certainly is an original. In her snakeskin suit, sipping champagne and dipping in caviar, she reigns over the many-million-dollar home furnishings showrooms in Los Angeles and 12 others east.

Sitting high in a throne-like, leopard-covered chair, she is so much a part of the baroque environment that the halbert-lined fence and her Theda Bara daybed in the balcony niche can appear quite normal.

If you inquire about the average customers for the lush designs, you would discover they are mostly theatrical persons who prefer the "on stage" look at home: Frank Sinatra, Danny Kaye, Lucille Ball, Danny Thomas, Carol Burnett and Joan Crawford, who thinks nothing of sending 40 cases of her favorite pop, Pepsi, to her favorite decorator.

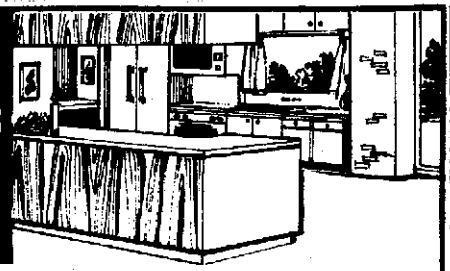

Even the decorators who call at the showroom are closely associated with the entertainment industry — there are Mrs. Army Archerd and Mrs. Buddy Hackett, who delve into decorating. Dick Martin retains his playboy image with the help of P.M. Hugh Hefner borrows some of his erotica from P. M., who enjoys a wide collection of same in porcelain, wallpaper and paintings commissioned to indulge the sensual.

The elusive Howard Hughes, whose handsome checks arrive for "pad"ing, likes the look of lush living.

Most of Phyllis Morris' collectors fall into the higher-income bracket. For these people Miss Morris designs hedonistic home furnishings. She concentrates on fur — real to the dismay of the ecology conscious — for the floor, the chair, the pillow or a throw.

The "simple folk" lean toward the lowered sofa in the Roman style, they like the rococoed MacArthur Park bench, the San Simeon game table with griffin legs. They dig the sculptured hands coffee table . . . palms up of course . . . and take home a dog or python stuffed.

Who else but Phyllis Morris would outdate the slick Parson's table with grooves and curlicues, then insist on surrounding it with suede sling chairs framed with chrome? She likes to do today's thing with yesterday's trim to arrive at a tomorrow look.

At the showroom a variety of room vignettes provide a moveable feast. What once was a lamp base can become a leg for a coffee or pedestal table. Since all the furniture is custom designed, any combination of textures and designs is possible, especially with the factory within walking distance. To keep on top of the construction scene the newest innovation in the gilded office will be intra-business, closed-circuit television where the furniture may be fancied without moving from home base.

Phyllis Morris' liberation began 15 years ago when she tired of the "drudgery" of keeping her 16 Beverly Hills rooms. The same address houses her understanding attorney . . . and husband . . . Nathan Goller and children Jim, 12, and Jamie, 9. The business began as a success and continues. She insists that women are inordinately better at selling home furnishings and insists that the major portion of her staff be distaff.

Nothing is understated in the Phyllis Morris design . . . everything speaks for wealth, comfort and authority.

A cautious touch of simplicity recently has intruded into the opulence of the Phyllis Morris design with cabinet surfaces mirrored to reflect all that expensive taste. Brushed chrome frames the furniture and also is being mixed with leopard, lizard and python to create the "lavish little nothing" chairs.

Even burglars burgle in grand style. Recently the silent alarm was sounded. When the alert police arrived on the scene, stacks of valuable merchandise were found near the entrance, but the youthful robbers were discovered inside, one making a small lump under a luscious lap robe while the other found a sumptuous Recamier daybed a comfortable but poorly selected hiding place.

If you want your home to reflect Hollywood '30s in concept but California '70s in style, you might be interested in the "bare essentials" listed at Phyllis Morris Originals:

Tables to drink from Rugs to lie on
Lamps to turn low
Chests to hoard treasures in

The gate at P. M. O. swings open only to the professional decorator, but, her instant-rich furniture may be seen on television in "Mannix," "Name of the Game," "It Takes a Thief," or locally in Carl's, Lloyds or Betsy Ross. □ self a form of therapy. Each mother is given a sheet of house rules, including such items as being responsible for her own children, keeping her beds made and room tidy, and assisting in housework and meal preparation. The No. 1 rule, however, gives indication that Haven House is not just a comfortable boarding house. It says bluntly: "No Dangerous Weapons Allowed," a reminder of the strain under which these women's lives have been lived.

Meals are served at regular hours in the large, cheerful dining room with a usual 20 or 30 guests seated as one family around a banquet-sized table. High chairs and feeding tables are close by for the toddlers.

"We find that often, on their first evening with us, the children's reaction is one of disbelief," says Mrs Knox. "They just cannot believe that this is the way some people dine. A meal without fighting, without yelling, without Daddy drunk and Mommy crying . . . and with neat place settings' wholesome food, chatting, even laughter . . . they can't believe it. Their lives have been too chaotic; it takes getting used to."

Although Haven House is a non-profit organization, the expenses of feeding, housing, sometimes clothing their guests are great. Management depends heavily on donations from individuals, service clubs, even school fund-raising projects. The food is plain, often donated, the furnishings in the old house are well-worn, there is always a need for more of everything. Guests are charged $6 a day, and $3 for each child. This is halved for welfare clients, and is always scaled according to ability to pay.

All socio-economic levels, all ethnic groups, all ages live together at Haven House. Guests may stay as long as 30 days at one time, and may make three visits. By the end of the third visit, management feels a workable permanent living plan should have been found.

Over 80 public agencies cooperate with Haven House, and can be made available to meet a variety of needs. If medical care is indicared, and sometimes it is urgent, the emergency services of a nearby hospital are given at no charge, and with a minimum of questions. Referral can be given for legal aid, public assistance, dental care, job training, housing, marital or juvenile counseling, mental health, spiritual advice . . . an endless list of qualified help, as close as the manager's telephone.

Not welcome at Haven House are the husband/fathers of the guests, or mothers who are themselves alcoholics. Should a husband come to the always-locked front door, the police will respond to a call within minutes. The protection Haven House offers is absolute and strictly maintained.

Babies and toddlers usually accompany mothers for any scheduled daytime appointments, but school-age children pose still another problem. They must attend school.

In the early days of Haven House, these youngsters either missed school altogether during their stay, or entered nearby schools on a temporary transfer. This involved answering questions at both schools, and being easily traced by their fathers through school records, which was to be avoided if at all possible.

Recently, however, an arrangement has been discovered whereby Haven House children can be transported to a neighboring community study center, staffed by competent, qualified tutors. The center's primary purpose is to aid culturally-deprived minorities, into which category these troubled children could sure fit, at least temporarily.

The tutors found themselves with some time during morning hours when most of their clients were in school. They offered their services, at no charge, the Board of Education approved, and now every school morning sees Haven House's battered old station wagon full of youngsters going off to receive accredited schooling, and not being forced to fall behind in school work, thus further complicating their young lives.

That alcoholism is indeed a family disease, even though only one member is alcoholic, is a discouraging fact faced daily by Haven House personnel. Their own statistics show that their guest-mothers, without exception, suffer from an extremely poor self-image. They have come to feel that somehow they deserve the bad treatment they have received from their spouses.

Even sadder are results of a recent survey of grown children of alcoholics, which reveals that one-third of those studied became alcoholics, another third married alcoholics, and the final third became involved in drug abuse. Still, there is optimism in the fact that younger families can be helped, if opportunity comes soon enough.

The Al-Anon philosophy, which is based upon that of Alcoholics Anonymous, is everywhere evident at Haven House. Al-Anon holds regular meetings in the big living room, which the mothers in residence are expected to attend. They learn there how to change attitudes, how to gain strength from others caught in the same dilemma.They represent many creeds, yet they find help in reciting together the Serenity Prayer, "God, grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, courage to change the things I can, and wisdom to know the difference."

This thought is expressed in another way on a prominently-displayed, hand-lettered sign on the house bulletin board. In flowing script it reads: "Today's Reminder: I will examine my own attitudes, and face the fact that much of what I do or leave undone contributes to my distress. Like the alcoholic, I too, have an unrecognized sense of guilt which I could overcome by correcting what I find wrong with me. My first job is to stop fooling myself, stop excusing my own shortcomings."

One other sign, this one pinned up in the neat kitchen, sums it all up for Haven House. It says simply, "WE CARE." □

California's 24

By Bob Schmidt

SACRAMENTO — In the far-distant future, it is probable that man will move from one place to another in ways only dreamed of today. And yet, the transporting device of the future, its shape and workings not yet known, will quite likely bear one similarity at least to the vehicles which transport man today.

Somewhere on it will be a number or some other specific identification which will have been issued by the authority of that day.

It will serve the same purpose as the combinations of letters and numbers carried by the approximately 14 million vehicles which will be using California's roadways this year.

We dream of exotic methods of transportation today, but it is difficult to imagine anyone dreaming of an eventual need for 24 million license plates when the state first started registering vehicles.

Originally, the state simply authorized "counties, cities, chartered incorporated cities and towns to license bicycles, tricycles, automobile carriages, carts and similar wheeled vehicles."

That was in 1901, and the fee was limited to no more than one dollar per year. No record appears to have been kept on the total number of cars licensed in the first few years, but in 1905 the secretary of state took over the job, and between March of that year and the following June, 6,428 motor vehicles were issued numbers.

There were no license plates as we now know them. Applicants paid two dollars and received a metal disc two inches in diameter reading "Registered Motor Vehicle No. 2, State of California."

The disc had to be displayed conspicuously on the car, and owners were also required to display the license number somewhere on the rear of the vehicle in three-inch-high numerals, painted black on a white background.

Car owners displayed some creativity in displaying their numbers.

The black-numbers-on-white-background law was not scrupulously observed.

By 1908, there were 17,015 registered vehicles, and a large variety of license number displays. It was not until 1914, however, that the first official California plate was issued. It was brick red, with four numerals and the letters "CAL" printed vertically on the left and the year appearing vertically on the right, with the printing an off-white color.

The design stayed the same but the color scheme changed the following year. A now familiar idea to officials of the newly created Dept. of Motor Vehicles in 1915, and in 1916 motorists received permanent plates, with detachable symbols indicating the year.

registration, a poppy was used in 1917, then a liberty bell and finally a star before new plates, with the year appearing, were issued in 1920.

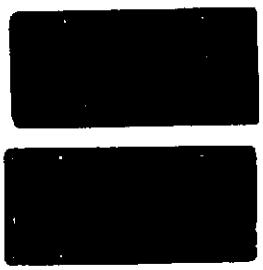

New plates, with different color schemes, were issued each subsequent year, and letters first appeared in the license number in 1929. Only in 1939, when the phrase "California World's Fair" appeared, did anything other than the name of the state, the year, and the license number appear on the plate until 1943, when, to conserve metal in a war year, a metal tab bearing a red "V" on a silver background was issued.

A stamp replaced the tab the following year, and then a new plate was handed out in 1945.

In 1946 motorists received tabs again. They got another plate in 1947, tabs in 1948-49-50, a plate in 1951 and tabs for the next four years.

Q: A friend just back from Ethiopia claims slavery is still legal there. Also, that Emperor Haile Selassie holds some 20,000 black and white chattel slaves in bondage. Can't the United Nations correct this ancient evil? — F. L. Bogart, Pittsburgh.

A: No need to give the United Nations another headache. Though slaves were traditional in Ethiopia, a law abolishing slavery was signed in 1942. Any one-time slave who remains with his former master does so of his own free will — probably for financial security.

Q: Who was the first performer in radio to have a live studio audience? And when? — Rosalinda C., Dallas.

A: In April, 1932, the Texaco "Fire Chief," Ed Wynn, shook up the industry by permitting audience reaction (laughs, applause, even throat-clearing) to be heard over live mikes. Prior to this innovation, a glass curtain was dropped to block out any such sounds. As Ben Gross, dean of radio-TV editors, points out (in "I Looked and I Listened"), Wynn's daring revolutionized broadcasting. And improved programs by permitting performers to do what they enjoyed doing most — working before a live audience.

Q: Why did the Arabs ban all Laurence Harvey films? — Cornelia R. McM., Pittsburgh.

A: Because the thin-skinned Arab hierarchy claims the British actor engaged in Zionist propaganda. Harvey says the boycott is rot. Admits being pro-Israel, but insists he's nonpolitical and cannot understand how come Cairo considers him a propagandist.

Q: The shot of Independence Hall and the Liberty Bell in John Wayne's TV special — my mother says they were fakes. I say they weren't. Who's right? — Paul Berg, Fairbault, Minn.

A: Mother knows best. The originals were not used. What you saw were replicas from the Knott's Berry Farm, reveal the producers of that impressive NBC spectacular.

Q: I used so to enjoy Johnnie Ray's unique style of singing. Whatever happened to him? And is he bitter about some big new stars stealing his stuff? — Brenda R., Harrisburg, Pa.

A: Johnnie's no longer on the spot. Fully recovered from a long illness, he's stopping shows again wherever he plays — from Vegas to Australia. Far from being bitter, here's how he sizes up the new names: "Tom Jones? This will come as a shock to his female fans, but I was delighted to find that Tom's a very gracious, very shy young man. Great pipes but works too hard. Humperdinck I haven't met — but I'm glad he 'happened.' Our business needs new blood and the gals love him. The success of Johnny Cash," Ray continues, "doesn't surprise me. There's too much about the man and his life we can all identify with, one way or another. They're all great — but you didn't ask who my favorite is. It's Andy Williams."

Q: Who is the strongest man in the world today? — Calvin R., West Palm Beach, Fla.

A: Paul Anderson (5-foot-10, 375 pounds). He won the title in 1957 when he lifted a table covered with weights totaling 6,270 pounds (more than the weight of a Rolls Royce Silver Cloud). Anderson, performer, lecturer, poet, preacher and patriot, has a heart to match his big body. With his wife, he founded and operates a foster home for unwanted teen-age children in Vidalia, Ga. One of his proudest moments came in 1967 when his long-time idol, Sen. Barry Goldwater, presented him with a Georgia Jaycee Outstanding Young Man trophy.

Q: About one-time famous crime fighter and New York governor, Thomas E. Dewey — anything to a tip I heard that he had been a college classmate of the infamous murderers, Leopold and Loeb? — Earl Walton, Clarksville, Tenn.

A: "I never heard that either of these characters was at the University of Michigan when I was," answers two-time GOP presidential candidate Dewey. Adding, "And am I glad I did not!"

commercial vehicles traveling regularly between states.

Many letter combinations are reserved for special use. For example, "VET" and "VNT" are issed only to disabled and blind veterans, and "DPW," "DPX," "DPY," and "DPZ" are given to other disabled persons. Owners of those plates are entitled to certain parking privileges.

The newest, but certainly not the last, change in California's license plates permits the issuance of "personalized" plates which can contain up to six letters or a combination of letters and numbers totaling six units. The plates (sometimes called "vanity plates") cost $25 initially and $10 for each renewal, in addition to the regular charge.

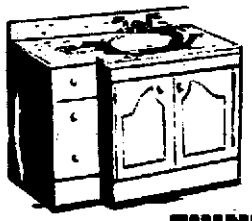

The added income, hopefully to total more than a half-million dollars this year, will be used to help finance anti-smog programs.

The new plates have set in motion a new game, in which some applicants seek plates containing words that are a no-no in polite circles. Again, the DMV tries to spot words which might offend somebody in either English or a foreign language.

Folsom Prison produces California's license plates, and it obviously is a full-time job for the inmates assigned to the task. Vehicle registration fees — more accurately known as an "in lieu tax" — will bring in some $250 million this year, to be returned to cities and counties after the state's administrative costs are deducted.

When some future museum curator prepares an exhibit of 20th century artifacts, the license plate will surely be included. □

WORKSHOP

IT'S HIGH TIME

By Steve Ellingson

Not too long ago, an enterprising inventor manufactured a clock mechanism that would run on a battery and — presto! — fastidious decorators were supplied with attractive new wall decorations. They found that the battery-operated wall clocks provided them with accurate time without the dangling, how-can-I-hide-it cord. The clocks also provide a versatile means for filling an empty space on the wall.

The beautifully designed wall clock shown here is guaranteed to be high on your list of conversation pieces, especially when your friends discover that you made it yourself. It's suitable for any room in your home.

The clock can be built in a couple of evenings for a fraction of the cost of comparable commercial models. It's constructed of sugar pine (scrap pieces are all you need) and a few basic hand tools. A 50c coping saw is used to cut the simple curves and the edges are rounded with sandpaper.

The clock features a low cost battery-powered movement which will run a whole year on just one flashlight battery. Adjusting the nut on the pendulum assures accurate timekeeping. This is a project that any amateur can undertake with confidence and success. To build it you need only trace the pattern parts on wood, next saw them out and finally put the parts together. After that, install the works and you'll find clock-watching to be better than ever.

To obtain the full-size wall clock pattern number 488, send $1.00 (add 25c per pattern for airmail delivery) by currency, check or money order to:

GOURMET GUIDE

After dining on eggs Benedict with champagne, writer Jo Brooks once picked up her quill and composed the following tribute to one of her favorite restaurants:

"There are certain things everyone must do at least once in a lifetime — see the Rose Bowl parade live, attend a concert in Hollywood Bowl and enjoy Sunday brunch at the Stuft Shirt in Newport Beach."

The Stuft Shirt, 2241 W. Coast Hwy., deserves such a compliment. It is a perfect setting for a Sunday afternoon repast. Designed like a Venetian palace, the restaurant has tall windows overlooking Newport Harbor. As they dine on imaginative delicacies, the guests gaze at restful blue water, watch an occasional yacht glide by and feel at peace with the world.

Served from noon to 3 p.m., the brunch offers entrees priced from $2.25 to $3.75. Each is served with a glass of champagne, hot blueberry muffins and choice of fresh fruit cup or rich French onion soup. General manager Warren Roberts and executive chef Alton L. Evans offer the following epicurean entrees:

Eggs Benedict on an English muffin, brochette of sugar-cured ham with fresh pineapple, Spanish omelette with hashed brown potatoes, roast beef hash with poached egg, broiled mushrooms on Canadian bacon, Welsh rarebit with a rasher of bacon and broiled tomato, French pancakes stuffed with crabmeat and steak with eggs. The children's brunch, $1.50, offers broiled hamburger sandwich with fruit cup, French fries and beverage.

Closed Mondays, the Stuft Shirt is about a 30-minute drive south of Long Beach. Its clientele includes business tycoons, yachtsmen and Hollywood and TV celebrities who find its atmosphere inspiring as well as relaxing. It serves luncheon and banquets as well as such dinner enchantments as coquille St. Jacques sea food combination, bengal curry of lamb, filet of sole Marguery, crabmeat Mornay, breast of chicken Marechal, teriyaki tenderloin brochette, prime rib au jus and magnificent steaks.

The dinners, $4.75 to $8.75, include soup du jour or tossed salad, vegetable du jour and porato or rice. The Stuft Shirt's Green Goddess salad dressing is an exquisite creation unanimously praised by its knowledgeable guests.

by Tedd Thomey

Sometimes while dining at Francois Manhattan, 1909 E. Fourth St., my wife, small daughter and I sit at a table served by waiter Joe Shaevitz or Roy Ghere.

Our daughter always has milk with her dinner. If Joe or Roy aren't too busy, they enjoy making a vaudeville production out of the simple task of pouring her milk. Joe (or Roy) holds the carton high in the air and the glass low. Then, with unerring aim, he pours the milk in a stream which often has a length of 2½ or 3 feet. Nary a drop is ever spilled.

That tall stream is a perfect example of the kind of professionalism which is on display night and day at the Manhattan, one of Long Beach's most successful and beloved restaurants. It takes sure hands and confidence to handle a glass and carton that way. The Manhattan's waiters do it with ease because they are so well-trained and have so many years of experience.

The skill and thoughtfulness of the waiters and waitresses add immeasurably to the pleasures of dining at the Manhattan. The dinners are large and fairly complicated, but each dish arrives at the table when it's supposed to. This means that the guest enjoys certain flavor contrasts at proper intervals, with the entire dinner achieving the rhythm and precision of a symphonic concert or a Broadway musical.

The manager of the Manhattan is Sad Sadler. For most of two decades he was the restaurant's reigning bartender. I've never seen him pour milk in a three-foot stream, but I'm sure he could if called upon. Sad is one of those industrious, dedicated fellows who can do anything that needs doing. Since he became manager last summer, the Manhattan has become more popular than ever. The quality of its cuisine and service has never been higher and its hospitality has never been more friendly and sincere.

The restaurant, closed Mondays, offers dinners on Sundays starting at 4 p.m. from $3.25 to $6.75. Each entree is a flavor masterpiece created by executive chef Ulysses Yanis and his staff. Offered are flaming duck and chicken, chateaubriand, elegant prime rib au jus and steaks, beef Stroganoff, lobster thermidor, stuffed fresh mushrooms, poultry delights and Italian creations. The big table d'hote dinners include hors d'oeuvres, soup in a tureen, salad, beverage and dessert. Luncheon is served daily. □

New research appears to counter the speculation by some observers that infectious mononucleosis (glandular fever) is an abortive form of acute lymphatic leukemia.

The two disorders have several similarities.

New research, conducted at Childrens Hospital of Los Angeles, indicates that "mono" is unrelated to acute leukemia. Four children under observation developed both diseases concurrently.

Two patients in the study have survived 10 years since the diagnosis of leukemia. "Mono" occurred nearly four years after diagnosis of leukemia in one, and three months prior to diagnosis in another.

Researchers say that it is "tempting to speculate" that the occurrence of "mono" or other viral diseases may have a beneficial effect on the course of acute leukemia. These findings by other investigators have been encouraging. Still, in view of the experience of other patients, data remain insufficient to conclude that mononucleosis may alter the course of leukemia.

The report is in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Birth-control pills under ordinary circumstances do not appear to increase the risk of heart attack, a doctor reports. However, they may increase the risk in women who are otherwise susceptible to coronary heart disease, a new study shows.

Dr. M. F. Oliver of the Royal Infirmary in Edinburgh, Scotland, says that oral contraceptives may be hazardous for women who already are regarded as high coronary risks. For one thing, the pills can raise the levels of certain blood fats and can increase blood stickiness, which could lead to dangerous clotting.

The report is in British Medical Journal.

It's doubtful that animals have a sophisticated language of their own, a researcher says.

The voice is an essentially human possession, according to a report in the Proceeding of the Royal Society of Medicine. Birds cheep, lions roar, dogs bark — but human beings "voice."

Dr. J. W. S. H. Lindahl of London Hospital in England says it is doubtful that the noises emitted by animals have more than the capacity of expressing danger or of issuing simple directions to their fellows. The wide range of overtones possessed by humans is lacking in animals, he says.

The doctor describes the anatomy and physiology of primate sound regions, and then says in summary: The larynx (voice box) is an essential organ of sound production but it is not alone responsible for speech or voice. The resonating cavities of mouth, nose, throat and possibly the paranasal sinuses play a large part in the final quality of sound produced.

A report on this research also appears in Dental Abstracts.

Tip for volunteers who assist with eye exams in schools:

Since some children don't completely cover one eye and others push so hard they have blurred vision after they remove their hands, try this —

Have the child hold and place over one eye a small paper drinking cup.

This assures blackout out of the child's vision in one eye without the need to apply pressure.

"And giving the child something to hold lessens his anxiety," says Dr. George H. Weiss of Norristown, Pa.

The suggestion appears in the medical periodical Consultant.

A new report explains the physiological mechanisms that may cause a person to suffer a stroke after a large meal.

The report, in Archives of Neurology, establishes that heavy eating of carbohydrates may set the stage for a stroke.

In elderly persons especially, significant falls in blood pressure may occur after carbohydrate meals, resulting in a blood deficit to the brain.

Doctors at the University of New Mexico medical school, Albuquerque, say the finding has a practical application for those who already have had a recent stroke.

Their recommendation: small meals devoid of large amounts of carbohydrate and avoidance of sudden changes in posture (which also may result in blood-pressure drop). If these suggestions are followed in the early convalescent period after a stroke, chances of ultimate recovery may be improved.

Antibiotics, sometimes fed to livestock to increase their growth rate, sometimes can have the opposite effect: They may stunt growth in both animals and humans.

The charge is made by Dr. Harris A. Berman, an infectious disease specialist with New Englnad Medical Center Hospitals in Boston.

He says: "These compounds may suppress growth, because they produce toxic metabolic effects or interfere directly with intestinal absorption."

His report was to the American Society for Clinical Nutrition.

Meanwhile, the Food and Drug Administration has appointed a task force to review all aspects of the use of antibiotics in animal feeds. Biggest worry: the possibility that antiboitic resistance may pass from animals to humans. □

Q. They say that Darryl Zanuck and his son Richard fell out because the old man would not give up his latest French babe, Genevieve Gilles. Is that really the basis of their father-son feud?—Helen Rosen, Beverly Hills, Calif.

A. Twentieth Century-Fox has come upon hard times. It lost more than $20 million last year. It owes more than $70 million to the Chase Manhattan Bank, Morgan Guaranty Trust Company, two other banks and a major insurance company.

Darryl Zanuck, one of its founders, has tried over the years to make film stars of such personal protégées as Bella Darvi, Juliette Greco, Irina Demich, and Genevieve Gilles, European women of microscopic acting talent. He has failed dismally in each case at tremendous cost to the studio.

Genevieve Gilles, his latest French discovery, recently bombed in a $5 million travesty, Hello—Goodbye, a particularly apt title as regards her screen career.

Some weeks ago, Richard Zanuck, 36, then president of the company, refused to renew Miss Gilles' option, despite his father's interest in the young lady. He also closed the firm's London and Paris offices, reportedly arousing the ire of his father, still chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the company.

In the old days when 20th Century-Fox was minting money, Darryl Zanuck imperiously ruled the roost. He installed his son as head of the studio, and so long as Richard listened to Papa, he was in good shape. He was awarded a seven-year contract at $350,000 a year, $150,000 of which was annually deferred. But then Richard began to disagree with his 68-year-old father, who preferred to work out of New York and Paris.

Young Zanuck, a classic example of the nepotism long rife in the film business, is considered by many to be a better educated, more prudent, thoughtful, and literate executive than his quixotic father. It was under his stewardship that the studio produced such winners as Patton, *M*A*S*H*, and Butch Cassidy along with such flops as Dr. Dolittle, Staircase, and Hello, Dolly!

But Zanuck, the father, is possessed by the privileges of power and he would brook no opposition from his son. Which is why last month he negotiated the resignation of Richard Zanuck as president of 20th Century-Fox.

It is just a question of time, however, before Wall Street ousts Darryl Zanuck. The sun has set on his type of highly personal and Freudian corporate management. The banks want their money. They are not interested in the rise and fall of Darryl Zanuck's sex life.

Bothered by hot taste?

Q. Richard Wilson, a columnist for The Des Moines Register and Tribune Syndicate, wrote recently: "Nixon should tell this country clear and loud and again and again that he will not end the war except upon a favorable basis to the future of South Vietnam and the future of American policy. This is what he wants, and there is nothing to be gained by hiding his real purposes behind assurances that the war will be over by 1972."

Is this true? Does Richard Wilson know what he is writing about?—Edward J. Cross, Washington, D.C.

A. Richard Wilson is a veteran, knowledgeable journalist of moderate bent. He knows as do many others that President Nixon plans to keep a sizable number of U. S. troops in South Vietnam indefinitely (1) to threaten the reescalation of the bombing in the North (2) to use as leverage in the bargaining for the return of U. S. prisoners of war.

Wilson maintains that the Nixon policy of Vietnamization will not end the war. It is a policy designed to keep low the number of U. S. men killed and wounded in action by limiting the combatant role to Vietnamese soldiers. But such a policy will not necessarily regain for us the Americans held in North Vietnamese prison camps.

Q. *Everybody says that M*A*S*H was one of the best movies of last year. The book was written by Richard Hooker. I never heard of him. Have you? —Samuel Kaufman, N. Miami, Fla.*

A. Richard Hooker is the pseudonym of Dr. H. Richard Hornberger, a surgeon of Bremen, Me., who during the Korean War served with a Mobile Army Surgical Hospital (M*A*S*H). Hornberger, in his late 40's, is married, the father of five children, is writing a second novel, claims that his nom de plume, "Hooker," is based on his golf game. Since the release of M*A*S*H, Dr. Hornberger has become a celebrity of sorts in central Maine.

MAMIE EISENHOWER

Q. Why do Americans vote Mamie Eisenhower as the woman they most admire?—T. Powers, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

A. Mamie Eisenhower is noncontroversial. She represents a lovable, independent grandmother-figure to the nation, a surrogate for her late-departed and equally loved President-husband.

Q. They say that Eldridge Cleaver, Minister of Information for the Black Panthers in Algiers, will not grant interviews unless he is paid $5000 and up. What is the truth?—Claire Myerson, Pasadena, Calif.

A. The truth is that Cleaver demands payment from reporters and interviewers, charges as much as the traffic will bear. Recently, reporters from Time and The Los Angeles Times refused to pay him a cent. But television men from the British Broadcasting Corporation proved easier marks. They paid.

Q. Can you tell our junior-year English class why the popular American poet, Edgar Albert Guest, was not accepted by critics and other poets?—Renee Fowler, Irving, Tex.

A. Guest is considered by many writers to be sickly sweet, cliché-ridden and trite. He was the subject of a famous witticism by Dorothy Parker: "I'd rather flunk my Wassermann test, than read a poem by Edgar A. Guest."

MUSKIE

McGOVERN

Q. Who is brighter—Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine or Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota?—Ronald McClean, Mitchell, S. Dak.

A. McGovern with a Ph.D. from Northwestern is generally considered the more intellectual.

Q. I'm interested in knowing if any of our Supreme Court members has ever served in the Armed Forces. —Clarence Matlovich, Clairton, Pa.

A. Except for Warren E. Burger, rejected for World War II duty because of a spinal ailment, and Thurgood Marshall and Harry Andrew Blackmun, both of whom practiced law during the war, all of our Supreme Court justices have served in the Armed Forces.

In World War I William O. Douglas served as a private in the U.S. Army, and Hugo L. Black rose to the rank of captain. All the rest saw distinguished duty during World War II. Byron White rose to the rank of lieutenant commander in the Navy, received two Bronze Stars and a Presidential Citation. John M. Harlan rose to the rank of colonel in the U.S. Army Air Force, received the Legion of Merit and the French and Belgian Croix de Guerre. Potter Stewart saw three years of Navy duty and earned three Battle Stars. William J. Brennan was a colonel with the General Staff and another recipient of the Legion of Merit.

STEVE McQUEEN AND WIFE

Q. I have been told that actor Steve McQueen's wife gave him a choice—stop automobile racing or a divorce. What's the story?—Antonia Harvey, Hartford, Conn.

A. The McQueen marriage was floundering a few months ago. It has now regained balance. Basically McQueen is a physical man with an acquired cunning born of a fatherless youth and adolescent poverty. His wife and children constitute the stabilizing influence of his life. Without them he is essentially a drifter. He has agreed to forgo automobile racing for his wife's sake but to salve his ego will continue taking part in motorcycle endurance races.

Q. I am a GI stationed here in Vietnam. Recently I received a letter from a pen pal, a German girl who described her measurements as 914—610—914. Can you translate those measurements into American, or is she putting me on?—L. T., Chulai.

A. 914 millimeters is equivalent to 36 inches; 610 mm to 24 inches. Thus the girl's vital measurements are 36—24—36.

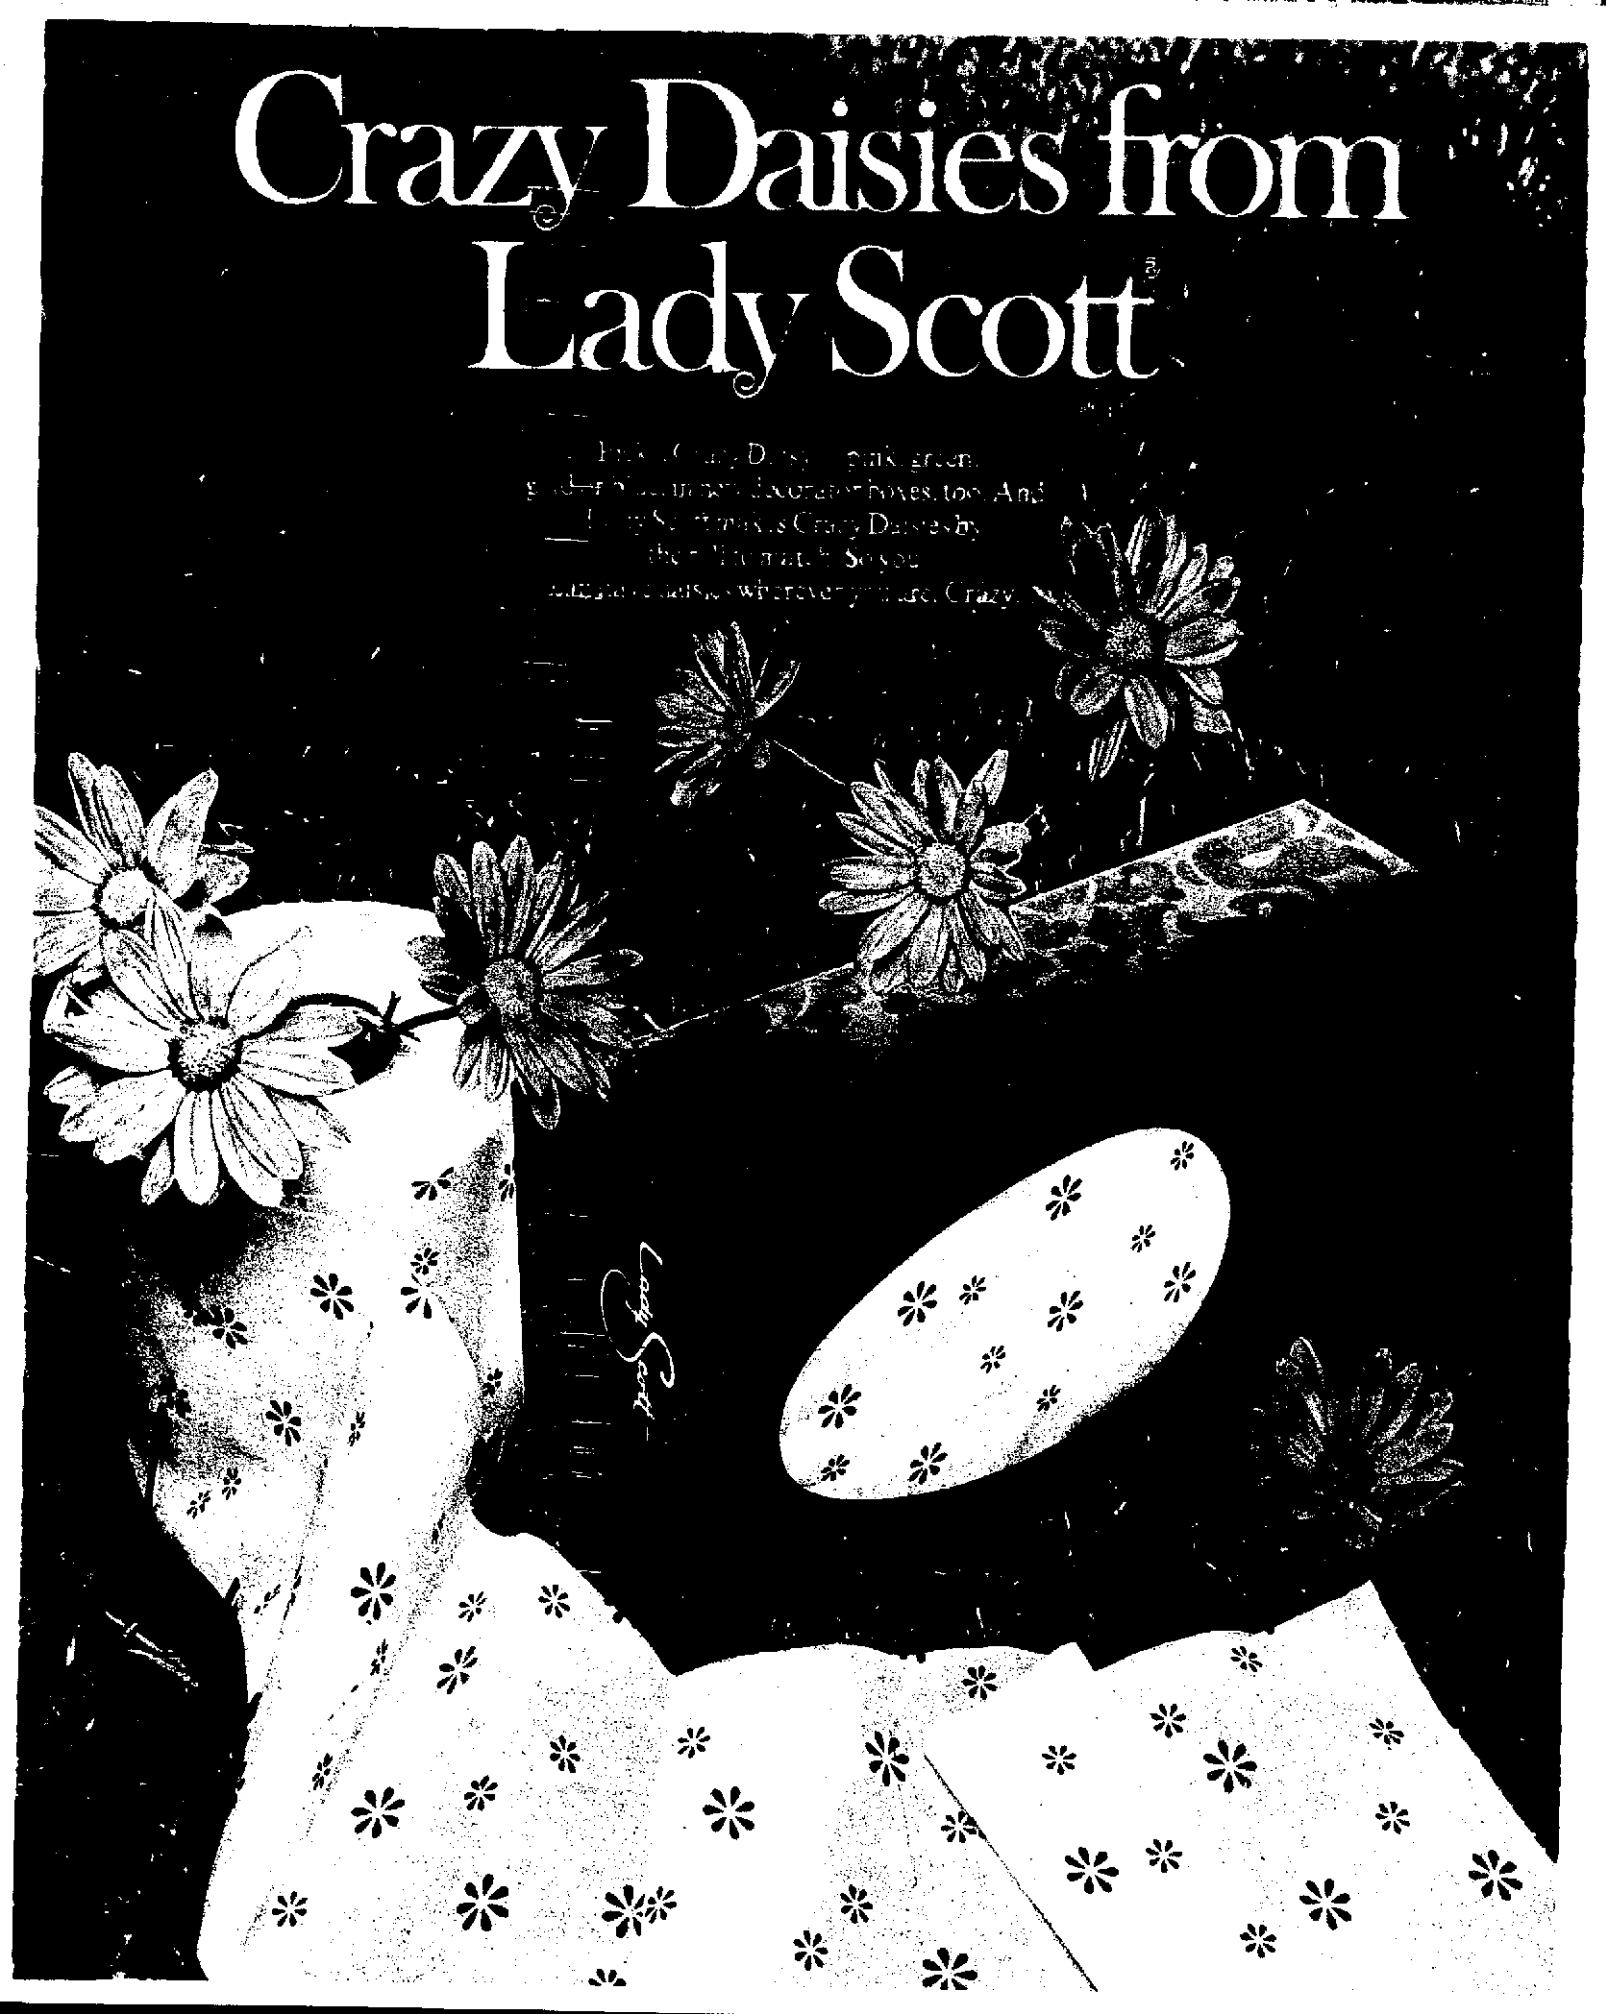

DAN BLOCKER AND WIFE

Q. Dan Blocker of Bonanza TV fame, has he taken up residence in Switzerland to lower his income tax bite?—George Mittler, Tucson, Ariz.

A. Blocker has moved his entire family, his wife and four children, to Montagnola, near Lugano, Switzerland. It is too early to determine his tax status.

Q. Does Cassius Clay plan on becoming a Hollywood film star?—Nocky Nubs, Louisville, Ky.

A. Yes. He would like to follow Jim Brown and others of his race into the film world if, when, and after he beats Joe Frazier for the world title.

Crazy Daisies from Lady Scott

The four men with President Nixon were decorated for gallantry in the American raid on North Vietnam POW camp. They are (l. to r.): Sgt. Leroy Wright, Sgt. Tyrone Adderly, Brig. Gen. Leroy J. Manor (commander of the mission), and Col. Arthur Simons.

America's Air Guerrillas— Will They Stop Future Vietnams?

by Donald Robinson

What is the full story behind the man being congratulated by President Richard Nixon in the picture above?

The man is U.S. Air Force Brig. Gen. Leroy J. Manor. His name appeared in headlines as the commander of the recent daring attempt to rescue American prisoners of war in North Vietnam. As people around the world know, the mission flew about 100 U. S. commandos in a gallant but futile effort to free POW's at the Sontay camp 23 miles from Hanoi.

Few people know, however, that this brand of daredevil military action is the rule, not the exception, for General Manor and the hush-hush outfit of air commandos he commands, the Special Operations Force (SOF).

"If we can get into it early enough, we can probably keep any insurgency situation from expanding into another Vietnam-sized war," says General Manor, whose SOF has been active in 28 countries, such as Laos, Cambodia, Thailand, Peru, Guatemala, Spain and North Korea.

Secretly established by President John F. Kennedy in April, 1961, the SOF has introduced a new dimension to guerrilla warfare. The hard-trained air commandos use a diversity of aircraft and a fantastic assortment of deadly weapons to harass the enemy.

SOF goes into a friendly country with approval of the State Department, often in collaboration with the CIA or Green Berets.

Top secret missions

Here are several missions, some of them untold, which SOF has carried out:

VIETNAM—The air commandos tasted battle in the spring of 1962 when President Kennedy covertly sent them to the aid of the beleaguered South Vietnamese. Wearing civilian clothes and flying planes with the markings of the South Vietnamese Air Force, the commandos attacked Vietcong concentrations in the jungles. It was too late, the Vietcong was already interwoven into the fabric of the nation.

SOF staff officers say without hesitation, "We should have gone into South Vietnam back in 1956 when the insurgency was beginning. Then we could easily have smashed it."

THAILAND — Here it's been different. When Hanoi-paid terrorists began infiltrating northeast Thailand in 1964, the Pentagon secretly dispatched a team of 32 air commandos, which has since grown into an entire wing, numbering many hundreds. They have kept the guerrillas on the run ever since, spilling out flares that turn jungle nights into day, then bombing and strafing the area. They've raced Thai troops from hot spot to hot spot near the Laotian border and given them fire support. They've destroyed guerrilla supply caches and cut escape routes.

They've given guerrillas a dose of their own medicine by forming six-man tracking teams who move as stealthily as American Indians. They can trail a guerrilla band through the jungle for weeks on end, even eavesdrop on their campfire conversations, and at the right moment call in an SOF plane for a surprise attack.

NORTH KOREA — The air commandos have undertaken some astonishing clandestine missions in North Korea. Details on the North Korean actions are top secret, but an SOF officer who served in the South during the mid-1960's remembers drawing up plans for commando missions into the North which would knock out some of the enemy's ability to infiltrate into the South.

TIBET — The United States trained a force of Tibetan peasants to counter the threat of Chinese aggression in the late 1950's, when the SOF was merely an unnamed collection of Air Force units working with the CIA.

Col. Fletcher Prouty, a now retired Air Force officer who helped organize the SOF in 1961, tells the story:

"We knew the Chinese were eventually going to come into Tibet, so we started recruiting a resistance force from among the natives. Up to 42,000 Tibetans were put under arms.

"We flew groups of tribesmen from Tibet to Saipan and from there to the Rocky Mountains in Colorado, where the atmosphere is similar to the Himalayas, for combat training. In six weeks they were back in Tibet, and a fairly good ground force was built up. But then Gary Powers' U-2 was shot down in 1960, and President Eisenhower cut off all such missions."

SAUDI ARABIA—In 1963, a routine SOF training mission uncovered an Egypt-sponsored plan for revolution in Saudi Arabia. An SOF officer was flying with a Saudi Arabian Air Force pilot in an American plane over the desert, teaching him counter-guerrilla tactics, when he spotted some strange-looking bundles on the sands below. They landed and found 130 Egyptian parachutes with Czech rifles and ammunition. Cairo was trying to start an uprising against the pro-Western King Faisal, but the Egyptian pilots had missed the drop zone.

A squadron of USAF fighter-bombers soon arrived along Saudi Arabia's borders for a show of strength and President Nasser lost taste for the uprising.

LATIN AMERICA—SOF training of Latin American air forces has been extensive. An SOF team trained and advised the Bolivian Air Force units that helped to track down the Castroite guerrilla chief Che Guevara.

I watched an SOF team instructing the Guatemalan Air Force in helicopter tactics. The Guatemalans had been employing small helicopters that couldn't fly above 10,500 feet. Any time the Guatemalan airmen pursued guerrillas into the towering mountains, the Communists climbed beyond reach and shot down at the "choppers" with impunity.

The SOF got them three big Bell helicopters from the U.S. that could soar higher than any mountain in Guatemala. Guatemalan pilots were taught how to maneuver the new "choppers" in the violent winds, how to land troops under fire, and how to attack enemy strongpoints.

Guerrillas disbanded

At last report, the guerrillas had been so weakened in many Latin American countries that they'd disbanded their armies. They were capable only of an occasional act of urban terrorism.

As Col. Harry G. Howton, USAF Ret., one of America's greatest experts on counterinsurgency, says, "Bombing a department store or kidnapping a foreign diplomat can make for bad, embarrassing propaganda, but it's never overthrown a government."

According to Maj. Gen. Thomas G. Corbin, a former SOF commander, "The standard line in guerrilla warfare used to be how many good guys did you need to beat how many bad guys, but the SOF has changed that. Through the imaginative use of air power, we can put guerrillas on the defensive with comparatively few men. We can keep them on the run, worried and unsure of themselves, until they're worn out and ready to quit."

The air commandos can land huge, troop-carrying planes in jungle clearings behind enemy lines. They can snatch one of their own agents off the ground in enemy territory, without even landing. They scan the terrain below with remarkable infrared devices which can spot a single guerrilla stealing through the night. They take TV pictures in pitch darkness of enemy positions. They can harass guerrillas day and night with a fantastic assortment of deadly weapons:

- A miniaturized machine gun that can fire 18,000 little bullets per minute.
- An electronic gadget no larger than a king-sized package of cigarettes, which emits a noise inaudible to human ears and can be pinpointed by a listening device in an airplane 50 miles away.
- A large box dropped by parachute, which flushes guerrillas out of hiding by emitting sounds of machine guns, rifles, mortars and shouting voices.
- Eleven different types of aircraft, ranging from giant four-motor attack transports to toy-sized fighters that almost touch the ground as they fly.

Commandos go 'anywhere'

Today the SOF has close to 15,000 crack men, with headquarters at Elgin Air Force Base in Florida, training site for the raid on Sontay. One wing of air commandos is based in Florida, ready for deployment anywhere in the world on a few hours' notice. Two wings are operating in Vietnam and other sections of Southeast Asia, one wing is on the watch in Panama, and a fifth is in West Germany.

Tight secrecy requires that SOF men be carefully screened. An Air Force major entering the air commandos was asked: "Are you willing to fly old aircraft?" "Are you willing to wear civilian clothes in combat?" "Are you willing to let your government disown you?" "Are you willing to die?"

To be accepted, he had to answer "Yes" to all four questions. Men assigned to SOF get intensive training in "U.W." (unconventional warfare) operations. In addition to aerial tactics, they learn karate, pistol-shooting close up, and knifing. They practice how to live in a wilderness without food, water or shelter.

Fulbright skeptical

Some U.S. officials are worried by such secret military action. When told by PARADE of the SOF missions in North Korea, Thailand and both Vietnams, Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman J. William Fulbright said he was "unaware of these activities, and as far as I know there has been no consultation with Congress about them. If what you say is correct, this kind of combat activity is provocative and could lead the United States to serious and dangerous involvements."

"Yes, we have to operate in secrecy," counters an SOF colonel now on duty, "but you can rest assured we do nothing indiscriminately. Any action we undertake has a damn good reason, and is done succinctly, on target, and with a minimum of waste."

The air commandos provide humanitarian services, as well as military. The SOF is flying medical teams to remote Thai villages that have never before seen a doctor. The American doctors live in each village three to five days, administer treatments and distribute free medical supplies.

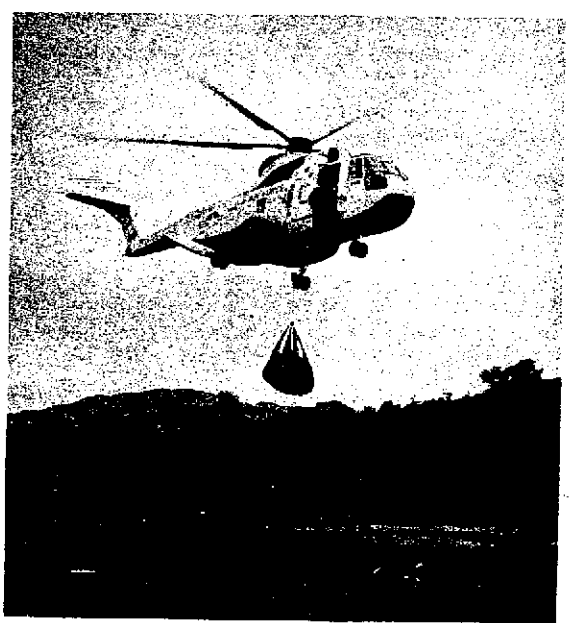

The peasants are very grateful. One medical team flew a sick Thai child to a hospital. A week later, the child's father turned in a Communist guerrilla leader who'd been sought for months.

By parachute

The air commandos flew a six-room health center to a roadless village of Guaymi Indians in Panama. They dropped eight tons of reinforced steel, cement, lumber and other materials by parachute to the Indians along with instructions on how to erect the building. Recently, the SOF answered an emergency call from Saudi Arabia which was being overrun by locusts. Air commandos sprayed a million acres and saved the country from devastation.

This is the constructive side of the air commandos' efforts, but some critics say that the SOF, like the Navy SEAL (Sea-Air-Land), the Army Special Forces and the CIA, often props up foreign dictatorships in the name of defending democracy.

Says retired SOF Col. Leslie Minchew: "Our role is not to judge the government in power. Our role is to keep whatever government is in power out of the hands of the Communists."

Part of the SOF air commandos' inventory is the CH-3E helicopter, a workhorse for quick airlifts of supplies and men.

Is life just a bad joke on all of us?

A young man lies dying on the battlefield. His eyes stare sightlessly up at the clean, blue sky.

The cries of a little girl grow weaker and weaker in the night. By the time the sun rises she will be dead from starvation.

A man with trembling hands raises the barrel of a pistol to his forehead, cold with the sweat of fear.

An elderly woman, her skin frail as paper, is brutally beaten and killed for a few pennies in her worn purse.

Life is just a bowl of cherries, isn't it?

War. Poverty. Hunger. Despair. Murder. Greed.

And emptiness.

Why?

We think we know.

We have some of the answers.

We have reasons for hope.

We want to share them with you.

Give us a chance. No one will call, but you may want to call on us.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES.

DID YOU KNOW? A quarter of a million Americans who have never worked are now receiving social security benefits.

Freeloaders? Malingerers? No. They all suffer from childhood disabilities (65 percent are mentally retarded) which prevent them from working as adults.

Vinson Jenkins, social security district manager in Watts, Calif., reports: "Persons disabled since childhood are eligible to receive social security benefits if a parent who has worked long enough under social security retires, becomes disabled, or dies.

It's not necessary for a person disabled since childhood to have worked under social security since his benefits are paid on the basis of his father's or mother's social security record.

Social security payments to persons mentally or physically disabled before the age of 18 may start at any age and continue indefinitely. Other children, eligible for social security through their parents, are cut off at age 18 if they leave school, or 22 if they remain unmarried students.

LIVING COSTS According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics it costs $10,664 a year for a family of four to reside in a city and maintain an intermediate standard of living. At a lower level, $6960 is needed; at a relatively higher level it requires $15,511.

These figures are related to the cost of living in the United States during the spring of 1970.

Since then, there has been a steady rise in prices about 6 percent per year--owing to the continued inflation.

SHOW BIZ DISASTER AREA Television has become the disaster area of show business. In 1969 the three major networks canceled 41 series. Last year they axed 34 prime-time series, handing pink slips to Vince Edwards, Tom Jones, Debbie Reynolds, Fess Parker, Yvette Mimieux, Jackie Gleason, Jimmy Durante and the Lennon Sisters, Dan Dailey and many others.

The closest approach to a hit series on TV last year was The Flip Wilson Show. All the other new ones bombed.

Exquisite Hand Painted Panels Yours as Large 38" x 12" Full Color Prints For Your Home or Office—All 4 Only $3

Hand painted panels from the Emperor dynasties have always added that final decorator touch, bringing quiet beauty and elegance to every decor. These incredibly beautiful reproductions capture the silvery iridescence and flashing jewel like colors of originals. Hung in your home, office or den, they will bring a dramatic new touch of beauty to every setting.

Unfortunately it is impossible to reproduce the dazzling color and excitement of each panel from the small black and white illustrations here. Only when you see these craftsman masterpieces can you actually appreciate their delicacy and superb workmanship.

OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED THIS SEASON

We urge you to order your Emperor Panels now, while the supply lasts. In order to show some of the craftsmanship and intricate detail in all the panels, we have shown one larger than the rest—actually all four panels are the same size. Each magnificent panel is reproduced in full color with a tapestry finish and is 38" x 12"—MORE THAN THREE TIMES LARGER THAN THIS ENTIRE PAGE! But hurry, order now, this offer will not be repeated this season in Parade.

NEW TEST Gonorrhea, the venereal disease which ranks first among the reportable communicable diseases in the U.S., may soon prove detectable in the female via a blood serum test. So predicts U.S. Public Health Surgeon General Jesse Steinfeld.

During the past year, of 164,000 women screened routinely in clinics, one in ten was found to have the disease.

Gonorrhea has become pandemic in this country. Pandemic signifies an epidemic of unusual severity affecting an exceptionally high proportion of the population.

Dr. James McKenzie-Pollock, medical director of the American Social Health Association, declared recently that only twice before in its 56-year history has the Association declared the prevalence of venereal disease--syphilis and gonorrhea--to be pandemic.

Those two times were at the end of World War I in 1918 and toward the end of World War II in 1945. The third time is now.

According to McKenzie-Pollock, it is possible that one in every ten American women between the ages of 18 and 24 may have gonorrhea without knowing it. More than half the gonorrhea cases occur in the under-24 age group.

"A percentage of these young women," he asserts, "will never become mothers because the disease has the ability of inducing sterility."

Gonorrhea, transmitted by sexual intercourse, is generally treated and cured by penicillin. But a new penicillin-resistant strain of the disease is spreading westward from the Far East, particularly from Vietnam where so many of our GI's have contracted gonorrhea from local prostitutes. At one time the VD rate of American servicemen in Vietnam was 200 cases per 1000 GI's.

In many of these cases the gonococci, the bacterial organisms which cause gonorrhea, are highly resistant to the ordinary penicillin dosage and must be treated with massive doses of penicillin in conjunction with other antibiotics.

"Casual sexual relations among teenagers," says Dr. Robert Catterall, a British venereologist, "are definitely accelerating the rate at which penicillin-resistant strains are developing, although thus far there is absolutely no incurable strain of the disease."

A blood serum test, capable of detecting most female gonorrhea carriers, would help reduce the disease to manageable levels. Gonorrhea is far more difficult to detect in females than in males.

IDLE BRAINS One leading tenet of the American dream holds that education is the ladder to achievement and success. We have reached an uncomfortable point in our history, however, when some of our best brains are lying idle.

Owing to cutbacks in the defense and aerospace industries, and an overproduction of skilled technicians, approximately 45,000 scientists, engineers and technologists in the U.S. are unemployed.

The Government is wracking its bureaucratic brains how best to employ these scientists in the national interest. The Labor Department recently funded an extensive, computerized job registry to match the skills of unemployed technicians with employment opportunities all over the country.

The Nixon Administration is even talking about retraining many scientists and technicians for work on the complicated urban problems besetting our cities.

Unfortunately, city services can absorb only a limited number of the unemployed specialists. In the Boston area, for example, 10,000 specialists are out of work. The nearby community of Lowell, Mass., has openings for perhaps 20 of them. Over the nation, there are only 3000 potential jobs in urban planning --for which there are at least 45,000 applicants.

Furthermore, cutbacks in defense and aerospace generate a domino effect on the economy as a whole. E.G. Mattison, vice president for industrial relations at Lockheed Aircraft Corporation in Burbank, Calif., reports that "eventually 300,000 to 500,000 other Californians will be without jobs as a result of employment reductions in aerospace manufacturing plants.

"The drop in our industry is being felt, similarly," he maintains, "among other lines of business throughout the state--affecting the butcher, the baker, and even the banker."

BONN ENVOY ALLARDT (L) WITH SOVIET FOREIGN MINISTER GROMYKO.

TRICKY-TRICKY Anyone who trusts the Soviet Government has rocks in his head. This hypothesis has long been held by chancelleries throughout the world. Nowhere has it been more frequently proven than in West Germany where beehives of Soviet espionage agents continue to thrive. As a result West German diplomats remain eternally on the alert when dealing with the Soviets.

Some time ago Dr. Helmut Allardt, the West German Ambassador to Moscow, ordered from Bonn a new coding and decoding machine.

The apparatus was flown to Russia, deposited in the air cargo terminal at Moscow Airport for pickup by West German Embassy officials. When the officials arrived to claim the machine, they were told it had been misplaced. While the Germans waited 90 minutes for their cargo to be found, electronic experts of the K.G.B., the Soviet Secret police agency, bugged the coding device. The machine and its seals were then meticulously replaced so that no one might tell that the crate had ever been opened.

Extremely knowledgeable about the Soviets and their sophisticated electronic espionage equipment, veteran diplomat Allardt--he will retire next year--refused to open the crate. He air-shipped it directly back to Bonn, where German security agents examined the coding machine, discovered that the Russians had ingeniously planted within it a miniature microphone and transmitter capable of picking up every coded message sent between Bonn and Moscow.

Neither the West Germans nor the Soviets will discuss the affair. Which, of course, is par for playing the diplomatic course.

Most powerful man in the House: Newly elected Speaker Carl Albert is one of the best-liked men in Washington, but friends predict he will be an aggressive leader.

Speaker Carl Albert: The Little Giant Everybody Loves

by Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON, D.C.

The first time Carl Albert set foot on the House floor — five feet, four inches and 120 pounds of freshman Congressman in a blue serge suit—he was mistaken for a Capitol page. A veteran Republican member handed him a batch of papers and told him to take them to his office, which Albert obediently did.

That was 24 years ago. Certainly few who saw the shy little redhead from the Oklahoma hills, as he was sworn in alongside the likes of Congressmen John F. Kennedy and Richard Nixon, would have suspected he would someday be the most powerful man in the House. But this month Carl Albert, son of a poor coal miner, was made Speaker of the House by his Democratic colleagues.

The key to Albert's success is his extraordinary popularity. It is nearly impossible to find anyone with an unkind word for him. Why is Albert so well liked? "When I first came to Congress," the friendly, still freckled-faced Oklahoman told PARADE, "I made it a point to be on the floor all the time I could. I learned the rules of the House, who the members were, how they voted, what they talked about, their problems. I try to know all the members."

Such is Albert's knowledge of the House and its members that the late President Kennedy once said: "No matter who tells me what will happen to a piece of legislation, if it differs from what Carl Albert says, I believe Carl. I've never known him to be more than six votes off on any bill."

As Majority Leader under John McCormack, Albert went along loyally with the aging Speaker's passive leadership, but those close to Albert are convinced he will be an aggressive leader. They believe he will stand up to the autocratic House committee chairmen who have been defying the will of the majority. Even the sanctified seniority system itself may be in for some revamping. As Rep. Tom Steed, Albert's close friend and fellow Oklahoman, puts it: "If people make the mistake of thinking because Carl's such an innately nice guy, he hasn't got any steel in him, they're in for the surprise of their lives."

An early riser

Carl Albert's day begins about 6:30 a.m. when he rises in the uptown apartment where he and his wife Mary and 16-year-old son David live. Their daughter Mary Frances, 21, attends Rice Institute in Texas.

Albert is usually the first one in his office. He sorts the mail and picks out anything requiring his immediate attention. Most of the morning is consumed handling the affairs of his constituents, responding to correspondence and conferring with members. By noon, he is on the House floor where he remains most of the day. He seldom can get away from the Capitol before 7 p.m. Then he and Mrs. Albert often must attend as many as five receptions in an evening.

Among House members of both parties, Albert is considered impeccably honest, enormously bright, capable, and thoughtful to the point of being a worrywart.

Things to worry about

Recalls Tom Steed: "Many years ago, it was in the spring and Carl had just heard that he'd have no opposition in the next election. I was sitting on the floor with Bill Stigler, who represented another part of Oklahoma. We were saying how nice it was for Carl that he had won elections without opposition. Just then we saw him and I said to Bill that, despite the good news, I'd bet a cup of coffee that Carl would be worrying about something. He took me up on it and we beckoned Carl over and said how wonderful we thought the news was. 'I know it looks that way,' he said. 'But my name won't be on the ballot this time and did you ever think what that might do to me two years from now.' Well, Bill and I went off the floor laughing and Carl followed us into the cloakroom and he got mad when he heard about our bet and wouldn't drink coffee with us."

If Albert's worrying is legendary, his sense of rectitude is another trademark. His scrupulous honesty has sometimes made it necessary for him to borrow money when campaign expenses left him short. He refuses to accept large political donations, even from such respectable sources as organized labor.

Rep. Carl Albert (l) at a Capitol conference with President Nixon and John McCormack, whom he succeeded as Speaker after loyal service as Majority Leader.

Albert's friendship with Tom Steed goes back to the day when he took part in a high school speech contest which Steed covered for the school paper. The place was McAlester, Okla.; the time the early 1920's. "It was during an assembly," Steed recalls. "In those days oratory was called 'declaiming' and Carl was supposed to declaim extemporaneously. There was no loudspeaker on the assembly stage and he came out there, just a damned midget. He started giving this oration and damned near knocked the plaster off the walls."

Albert attended the University of Oklahoma, where he won a number of prizes for his speaking. One award enabled him to travel to England. He saw Oxford University and decided he wanted to go there. His grades were excellent and earned him a Phi Beta Kappa key. But he needed to excel in some sport to win the coveted Rhodes Scholarship to Oxford. Too small for most sports, Albert went out for wrestling, in which he would be matched with a man his size. "He became a pretty darned good wrestler, I understand," says Steed. "I never saw him, but the guys told me that he was just a tiger—a ferocious wrestler."

'This one is mine'

Albert won the scholarship and spent three years at Oxford. He studied law and earned two law degrees, which got him a spot in the Judge Advocate General's office in Washington when he enlisted in the Army shortly after Pearl Harbor. One of the office clerks was a tiny, 20-year-old girl from Columbia, S.C., named Mary Harmon. "So help me," she recalls, "there was not another single man in that department. When Carl walked in I told the other girls, 'Now, you can just stand back and stop drooling because this one is mine. He's just my size.'"

They were married in August, 1942, and a few months later, Captain Albert left for the Pacific. He served 2½ years and was awarded a Bronze Star. After the war, the couple moved to McAlester, and Albert shortly announced for Congress. He won the race by a few hundred votes. Thereafter he won all of his races by as much as 90 percent of the vote. "If it falls below 90 percent," says Steed, "Carl starts worrying."

Whatever changes Carl Albert seeks in the House seem certain to be evolutionary, not revolutionary. For he has deep respect for the House and its traditions. "I think the House is the greatest institution in the country," he says. "But I don't think it's fully understood. I think there are things that could be done to improve the image of the House. Its problems are more intense than they were before. We must keep our mechanisms up to date. The seniority system is as good a method as anyone has come up with, but it must not be able to thwart the will of the House."

The personal touch

Whatever kind of Speaker the 62-year-old Albert turns out to be, it is doubtful he will abandon the political style that has made him so popular. It is an intensely personal style, relying on friendship, mutual respect and persuasion, not political pressure to convince other members to see things his way. "Carl assumes that if you get elected to the Congress, you're bound to have some sense," says Steed. "So he's always nice to a member when the member has to go against him. The next time the member will think, 'Well, here's a vote I can help old Carl out on.'" The guessing in Washington is that Carl Albert will never lack members to help him out in the legislative pinches.

Molasses Chiffon Cake

by Beth Merriman

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

This beautiful fluffy cake rises to such heights that it's best to use a tube pan with legs so that not a crumb is disturbed when you invert cake to cool. Serve with a sauce of molasses-flavored whipped cream topped with sliced peaches; they enhance the subtle flavor of this fine-grained cake.

Molasses Custard Chiffon Cake

7 eggs, separated
½ cup molasses
½ cup milk, scalded
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup vegetable oil
2 teaspoons vanilla
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
Confectioners sugar

Beat egg yolks until very thick and light in color. Beat in molasses. Pour in hot milk, slowly, beating constantly; cool. Mix and sift flour, sugar, baking powder, baking soda, salt and nutmeg. Make a well in dry ingredients and add, in order, oil, vanilla and cooled egg-yolk mixture. Beat until smooth. Add cream of tartar to egg whites. Beat in large bowl until stiff enough to form sharp points. Fold molasses batter into egg whites. Turn into ungreased 10-inch tube pan. Bake at 325° for 50 minutes. Increase oven temperature to 350°; bake an additional 10 minutes. Invert cake to cool. When completely cooled, remove from pan. Dust lightly with sifted confectioners sugar. Serve with Peaches and Cream*

*Peaches and Cream

2 tablespoons molasses
2 cups whipping cream
1 can (1 lb.) sliced cling peaches, drained

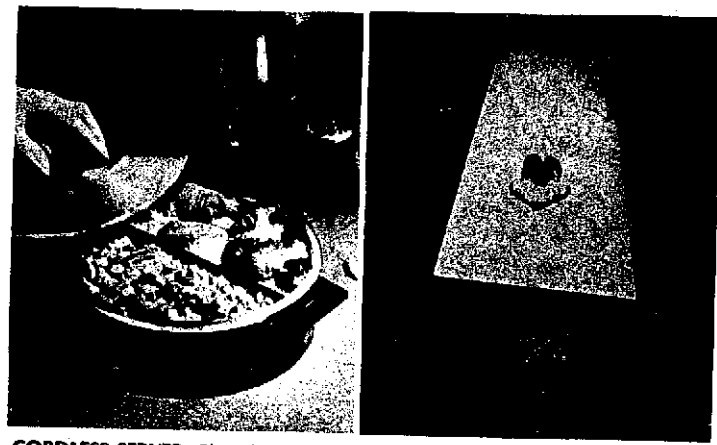

Add molasses to cream; beat until soft peaks form. Spoon over cake slices; top with sliced peaches.

From 12 to 24, the before/after girl above had "rebel" acne. Helena M. tried everything to clear her complexion. (Beauty skin specialists, no-fat diets, vitamins, X-ray treatments, drying formulas, cover-ups . . . the list was endless . . . and so was the cost.) Still, her family and friends would assure her that beauty was only skin deep. (What they meant was: "Even though your skin is ugly, you're really beautiful underneath!" True enough. Helena's dream was to become a model. She met all the requirements: shapely, charming, graceful, eager. But, acne stopped her... persistent acne that affects thousands of girls and guys of all ages.

Like Steve S., above. Steve's case was even worse! At 15, his acne became cystic. (Big bumps and infection so bad, the pimples had to be lanced! For 10 years, Steve tried to clear his skin with all kinds of treatment: antibiotics, quartz lamp, sulfur and dry ice, abrasive soaps, medicated cosmetics, drying agents and several specialists along the way. Like Helena, Steve thought he had tried everything under the sun...and nothing, but nothing, worked!

Then, their luck changed. They both heard about a revolutionary acne home program... Christine Valmy's. (Steve heard about the Valmy method through a family friend; Helena learned about Christine Valmy through top fashion photographer Philip E. Pegler of New York.) The photographer recommended skin care treatment at Christine Valmy's if Helena wanted to fulfill her dream of becoming a model. (Miss Valmy, he said, can clear 95% of all her acne cases in two to four months.) In fact, Town & Country calls Christine Valmy "... an extremely progressive cosmetologist. Always in search of advances in both method and products, she is a leader of considerable note. Her approach is particularly scientific." Luckily for Steve and Helena, they tried again...this time with Christine Valmy.

Miss Valmy's reaction to both cases was the same: "No problem!" She explained: "You've actually been cleansing your skin improperly all these years, overstimulating the oil glands to clog pores and encourage acne. You will not have to follow a special diet. To help clear acne, we restore the skin's proper function (mainly by proper cleansing) so the skin can isolate and eliminate acne infection naturally."

Steve and Helena took Christine Valmy's advice, received salon treatment and then faithfully continued treatment at home with the Valmy acne products kit: special cleanser, astringent, mask, cream and protective lotions plus detailed instructions for daily cleansing and weekly acne face treatments. The result: Helena cleared her acne in less than 3 months; Steve's case took longer but is now clear and stays clear with help from the Valmy skin care home maintenance program.

Happiest news of all: Helena fulfilled her dream and became a commercial model, working out of her hometown of El Paso, Texas. Steve stopped throwing money away on disappointing remedies ("about $2000. in all"). Both give Christine Valmy full credit for helping them make a clean break with acne.

NOTE: These actual case histories are typical of the thousands of acne sufferers who have been helped with Christine Valmy scientific skin care. Women and men—teen-agers, adults. Some with severe acne; some with occasional blemishes. All followed the simple Valmy treatment: the skin is softened, acne comes to the surface and, gradually, infection is lifted away. The result: clear, glowing, blemish-free skin (even in the most stubborn of cases).

READ THESE EXCERPTS FROM ACTUAL LETTERS ON FILE in the New York offices of the Valmy Skin Care Salon:

". . . I am a 33-year-old mother of three teenagers, who has had severe acne since age 12. During the ensuing 21 years, thousands of dollars were spent with various dermatologists in search of a cure. They had me on special diets, vitamin A, antibiotics and injections of serum. I have had ultra-violet ray treatments, dry ice treatments, maximum X-ray treatments and finally full face dermabrasion—all to no avail. . . . It is difficult to express in writing how overjoyed I was at the results of my Valmy treatments. In just six facials, plus three special five-minute special treatments — and of course FAITHFUL following of the recommended home care—my skin, for the first time in 21 years, was CLEAR! I then continued the home care, including the home facials, from early December until now and my skin has remained clear . . . I feel like a kid on Christmas Eve . . ."

Mrs. H. S., New York, N.Y.

". . . Almost immediately I noticed a remarkable improvement in my skin . . . wonderful results."

Mrs. D. K., Madison, Wisc.

"One month after starting your treatment I noticed marked improvement in my skin. The color lost its yellowish cast and my blemishes became smaller and fewer. Now my skin is definitely under control. I waited 10 years for results like this, after trying everything . . . even hospital treatment! My results with your method have been fantastic."

S. S., Brooklyn, N.Y.

". . . we saw such improvement in our son's face we could hardly believe it . . . 100% improvement over any other treatment . . ."

Mrs. V. O., Bitburg, Germany

". . . I am completely amazed with your treatment. My complexion is completely cleared and I just love it . . ."

Mrs. B. G., Endicott, N.Y.

". . . Well, it's like a miracle . . . Your products are the best I've ever used. The results are great, and God Bless You for it."

Keeping Up...With Youth

by Pamela Swift

Confrontation

American college and university administrators, who have proved tense, unimaginative and inflexible in confrontations with student radicals, may learn a lesson from the Warden (Dean) of Wadham College, Oxford. When presented with a list of "non-negotiable demands," the unflappable administrator replied:

"We note your threat to take what you call 'direct action' unless your demands are immediately met. We feel that it is only sporting to let you know that our governing body includes three experts in chemical warfare, two ex-commandos skilled with dynamite and torturing prisoners, four qualified marksmen in both small arms and rifles, two ex-artillerymen, one holder of the Victoria Cross, four karate experts, and a chaplain. The governing body has authorized me to tell you that we look forward with confidence to what you call a 'confrontation,' and I may say even with anticipation."

More school years

The U. S. population today is considerably more educated than it was in 1960. New census figures reveal significant gains in the quantity of education for all sectors of the population: young, old, white, black, women and men.

According to U. S. Census Bureau figures, 41 percent of adults 25 and over in 1960 had completed high school. Today 55 percent of those over 25 claim that distinction. In this same goup 11 percent have completed four years of college, up from 8 percent in 1960.

In the 20-24 year old age group 80 percent are high school graduates today, compared to 64 percent in 1960.

Learn Now, Pay Later

You can buy anything from a television set to a house on the installment plan—why not a college education?

Yale University may soon offer a deferred tuition payment plan. Students choosing this method to finance their education would pay off the amount of deferred tuition over a 30-year period from their postgraduate earnings. Yale is currently negotiating with private foundations to underwrite some form of long-term financing.

Harvard is considering a similar plan. "It wipes out paternalism," says Chase N. Paterson, dean of admissions and financial aid, about the advantages of deferred tuition. "The person who gets the education is the one who pays for it, not mommy and daddy." But Harvard prefers to give its students outright scholarships, instead of loans, as long as it can afford to.

Volunteer Army

The idea of a volunteer army appeals especially to those who shun military service. What about those who volunteer for an extended period of service, later change their minds?

To ensure that their volunteer army is really voluntary, The British are now offering voluntary demobilization.

Britain's boy soldiers, who may sign on at the age of 15½ for anywhere from 12 to 15 years, frequently find themselves prisoners of their adolescent enthusiasm. Defense Secretary Lord Carrington described the dilemma of the boy soldier in a report to the House of Lords: "If later he falls out of love with his profession, or perhaps into love with a girl who wants to have him with her, he finds he cannot adjust to the new situation by giving reasonable notice, but is stuck with the result of his 16-year-old enthusiasm."

To remedy this situation, the British Army will now offer its boy soldiers a chance to reconsider at the age of 18, with an option to leave the service at the age of 21 or after they have finished their training.

THE YOUNG GET INTO THE CAMPAIGNING ACT

18-Year-Old Vote

Now that the U.S. Supreme Court has authorized the Federal vote for some 11 million young persons, ages 18 to 21, it will be interesting to note what effect American youth will have upon future elections.

Some veteran political scientists predict the basic character of the electorate will change from moderate to liberal. Others point out that there was no marked effect when U.S. women were given the vote in 1920 and there will be no change other than a numerical one in 1972.

A recent poll in California, our most populous state, reveals, however, that the great majority of young people there, 18 to 21, classify themselves as Democrats or independents, that they consider such conservative personalities as Ronald Reagan and Spiro Agnew anathema to their interests, and that they will vote against them.

When 18-year-olds were enfranchised in Great Britain last year, it was expected that most of those who voted would vote Labor rather than Conservative. Yet the youngsters amazed the pundits by helping to vote Harold Wilson and his Labor Party out of office.

In short, predicting the future voting habits of young Americans is likely to be a losing proposition. What can be offered with some degree of accuracy, however, is that in choosing future political candidates, the kingmakers in this country will not only have to give thought to such factors as a candidate's record and charisma, but also to his youth appeal.

Right now the public figure in the U.S. with the most youth appeal is probably Ralph Nader.

People took me for forty, before I lost 68 pounds.

By Yvonne Kitchel—as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

Here I am in the kitchen, after another party where the food brought me closer to 202 pounds.

This was taken on a fun trip to New York City. It was great, being only 134 pounds —slim enough to wear a fashionable pantsuit.

FUNNY how you go for years seeing your face in a mirror and shutting your eyes to the rest of you. But the day you walk along a street and someone takes you for your mother's sister instead of her daughter, you suddenly realize being fat has made you "forty" long before your time. It was then I knew I'd better come down off my 202 pound peak, if I wanted to lose those ten unwanted years.

I'm sure people who never have a weight problem must wonder how others of us can let ourselves get so out of shape. Well, in my case, I can only blame my appetite and happy, contented life. You see, I've been married ten years, have three beautiful children, a husband whom I adore and all the reasons in the world to enjoy frequent get togethers with my parents and in-laws. And in Friendswood, Texas, that means a big feed. How we women cook! Particularly around the holidays. Of course, I used to sample everything, not thinking then what I was doing to my figure. But I know now. Because all a woman has to do is gain about ten pounds a year for ten years and she can nearly double her size.

From time to time I'd try to reduce, of course. But my doctor refused to give me diet pills because of my high blood pressure. He'd just keep saying: "You've got to lose. Because once you get past 30, it gets harder and harder."

So, I'd try again, but there'd always be another party. Then somebody would say: "You have such a pretty face, Yvonne," and I'd smile and take a second helping. Strangely enough, the heavier I got, the more that compliment hurt. Because in my heart I knew they were really thinking: "But why don't you reduce!"

Finally, the day came when I outweighed my six-foot husband. I'll tell you, I felt a desperation I'd never known before. Particularly when I thought I'd have to spend the rest of my life shopping for clothes in Houston's fat-lady's store.

Really, if it hadn't been for my neighbor, I wonder what I'd have done. She suggested Ayds® (they'd worked for her), so I bought a box at the drugstore. The vanilla caramel kind. It was just before Thanksgiving, too. But I knew if I didn't get control of my appetite then, I never would. For holidays were always my downfall.

Well, I got through Thanksgiving with the help of Ayds and enough willpower to resist all the goading from others to eat and be happy. And by Christmas, I had the best present of all. I'd lost 15 pounds.

What exactly had I done? I'd taken Ayds as the directions say. One or two before meals with a hot drink really helped curb my appetite. I also took Ayds between meals — around four o'clock in the afternoon, when I'd get that empty feeling — or in the evening watching television. They have only about 26 calories apiece, and with four flavors to choose from, I was much better off eating a couple of Ayds than munching on salty crackers or potato chips all night.

Actually, reducing on the Ayds Plan helped me change my whole way of cooking. Instead of frying shrimp and chicken in deep fat, I began to broil my meats and eat lots of vegetables. I even had light desserts. And the scales began to show encouraging results. My doctor was just delighted and, of course, so was I.

Right now, I'm down 68 pounds, thanks to the Ayds Plan. And I'm determined to stick to it and go even lower. Because I never again want to look ten to fifteen years older than my husband. Which so many fat women do.

Oh yes. I must tell you of one other really exciting thing that has happened to me since reducing with the help of Ayds. I have a new career. I've got my realtor's license and have no inhibitions about facing the public. Why, now that I look 32 again, I feel like I could sell the whole world.

Is Your Home

When a child plays near a window, tragedy is always a possibility. New book tells parents how to prevent household accidents, what to do when they occur.

To Order Your Copy of The Mother's Guide to Child Safety:

Send $1 in cash, check or money order to: PARADE, P.O. Box 4, Kensington Station, New York, N.Y. 11218. Print name, address and zip code. Allow three weeks for delivery.

Safe for Children?

Of all the environmental dangers faced by American children today, probably the most hazardous are right in their own homes. Between early infancy and maturity, more youngsters are killed and crippled by home accidents than by disease. Yet parents who keep a careful watch over their children's health, diet and exercise often are supremely indifferent to the everyday perils that lie around them—and are totally ignorant of what to do when accidents do occur.

Says one safety authority: "With its electricity and heavy appliances, its scalding water and wonder drugs, its cleaning products and other chemicals, the average American home is, from the standpoint of accidents, more unsafe for children than the African jungle."

The list of potential accidents ranges from electrical shock to poisoning, insect bites to asphyxiation. Even a "minor" cut can assume major proportions if a parent is ignorant of how to stanch the flow of blood, or when to call for medical help. Many accidents can be prevented by taking simple precautions, and their consequences be made less serious by applying basic remedies.

Now a book has been published which in clear, 1-2-3 language tells parents what they can do to sharply reduce accidents to their children, and what life-saving measures to apply when disaster strikes.

Called The Mother's Guide to Child Safety, it sells for only $1 and gives precise, specific, easy-to-follow procedures to use when your child gashes himself . . . swallows a poisonous substance . . . receives an electrical shock . . . suffers a nosebleed . . . is bitten by a snake or other animal . . . breaks a bone. It tells you when to move and when not to move an injured child, how to apply mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, how to go about summoning medical or other emergency help

Practical advice

It also gives complete and comprehensive advice on making your home safer so that accidents don't happen in the first place—tips that are so practical and simple you'll be surprised you didn't think of them yourself.

The information contained in The Mother's Guide to Child Safety has saved countless lives in the past, and can save others in the future. Among them could be your own children's. Order your copy today—it will be a dollar well spent.

Favorite Golf Jokes

EDITOR'S NOTE: The 12th annual Bob Hope-Chrysler Desert Classic takes place Feb. 10 through 14, with the automotive firm sponsoring the finals over NBC-TV on Saturday, Feb. 13, 6 to 7 p.m., and Sunday, Feb. 14, from 4:30 to 6 p.m., both EST. These will be held at Dunes Country Club, Palm Desert, Calif. As in the past, it will be an all-star affair in which the pro golf "greats" and show business luminaries will actively participate.

The Bob Hope-Chrysler Desert Classic distributes 70 percent of the net proceeds to the Eisenhower Medical Center, and 30 percent to their local charities.

Here are some favorite golf jokes:

Before one of the Desert Golf Classics, Hope was helping Arnold Palmer, professional golf great, limber up by accompanying him on a quick tour of the course. In so doing, Bob hooked a ball into the rough.

"I must say, Bob," said Palmer, chuckling, "golfing with you is like playing roulette in Las Vegas. You never know where the heck the ball's going to wind up."

"On television, that's what is known as building suspense," Hope countered.

Groucho Marx was once interviewed by a golf magazine. "If you were rewriting the golf rule book," he was asked, "what changes would you make?"

Marx replied, unhesitantly: "I'd insist on girl caddies in miniskirts."

Standup comic Buddy Hackett has his own criterion for success on a golf course. "For me," he says, "it's a good day if I don't fall out of the golf car."

The rules committee of an Australian golf club, after a bitter argument as to whether a woman should be permitted to wear trousers on the links, put up the following notice on its bulletin board:

"Trousers may be worn by women golfers on the course, but must be taken off on entering the clubhouse."

Comedian Flip Wilson was once asked to give his handicap. "My driver, my irons and my putter," he replied.

Bob Hope openly vows that never again will he play ball with his old buddy, Bing Crosby.

His reasoning? "Would you play golf with a guy who cheats? A guy who picks up the ball when nobody's looking and throws it toward the hole? Of course you wouldn't. And neither will Bing Crosby!"

Hope has a particular fondness for Jackie Gleason. The two made a movie together two years ago, with as much time spent on the links as before the camera.

In discussing Jackie's game, Hope said: "He drives beautifully. His approach shot is deadly accurate and he putts like a champ.

"In fact," added Hope with a grin, "Jackie can do everything on a golf course but bend over and tee-up his ball."

Hope has his own explanation as to why some golfers use carts instead of caddies: "Carts can't count."

As might be expected, Bob Hope's friends include a goodly number of golf addicts, not the least of whom is Phil Silvers.

On one occasion, the two got together for a game and, while drifting over to the next hole, Hope said to Silvers, "You know, Phil, I often get the urge to quit show business and just play pro golf."

Silvers couldn't let an opportunity for a suitable jibe pass by, so he said to Hope with a grin, "What's the matter, Bob? Aren't you getting enough laughs lately?"

When golfer Jack Nicklaus cracked an off-the-cuff joke at the taping of a Hope-Chrysler TV Special, Hope remarked: "Please, Jack, I do the comedy."

"I know," replied Nicklaus, "I've seen you play."

Astronaut Wally Schirra was a spectator at last year's Desert Classic. He was invited to play, but declined. "If I started swinging a club," he confided, "those greens would wind up with more craters than the moon's surface!"

Bob Hope says that when Jack Benny plays, he starts out by asking the caddy if he's good at finding lost balls. If the answer is "yes," Jack says haughtily, "Well, then, find me a couple and let's go."

288 pages,
9½" x 11⅛" page size
331 pictures—many in color
Hardbound in patterned cloth;
gold-stamped spine

So Time-Life Books has done it in a volume with 331 pictures as expressive as the one above. Make us prove it by sending it to you for 10 days free

In the 1920's there was no picture magazine called Life to capture and preserve the fads, fashions and fun of the time. But many of the photos, cartoons, ads and souvenirs that would have gone into such a magazine still exist—stored away in photo archives, library files, newspaper morgues and private collections.

To re-create this all-but-lost era, the editors of Time-Life Books have spent thousands of hours searching through hundreds of sources and carefully selecting the most eloquent mementos of that wonderful, wacky time.

The picture above offers just a single glimpse of the fascinating volume which has resulted. But one picture simply can't do justice to this captivating book. So we'd like to send you the whole book. (It's one of eight planned volumes which will permit Americans to relive, decade by decade, This Fabulous Century.)

In this captivating album, you'll see a whole gallery of photos and other mementos of the Roaring Twenties —331 marvelously expressive illustrations in all. You'll see college "sheiks" and "shebas"... sports heroes and literary giants... floppy pants and mini skirts... flagpole sitters and daredevil stunt fliers... early chain stores and ornate movie palaces.

And in the crisp captions and sparkling text, you'll read about the great Crash of 1929... Prohibition... the racketeers... the automobile revolution... early radio... the Jazz Age... the dance marathon... the Mah-Jongg craze... and much more.

Enjoy this volume free for 10 days. Then return it if you wish. Or keep it for $7.95, plus shipping and handling, and every other month thereafter we'll let you examine without obligation another volume in the eight-volume series. But you don't have to buy all eight volumes—just those you want or none at all. To get the 1920's volume for free examination, mail the coupon.

TIME LIFE BOOKS

Time-Life Books

Please send me, as my introduction to This Fabulous Century, the volume 1920-1930. I may examine this volume free for 10 days and then may return it, if I wish, without owing anything. Otherwise, I may keep it for only $7.95 (plus shipping and handling). If I do keep the book I will also be given the chance to examine the other volumes in the series, at the rate of one every other month. I may return any volume within 10 days or keep it for the same price of $7.95. I have no obligation to buy any specific number of books and I may cancel my subscription at any time.

YEAH! THEY ARE BORED WITH COOLING IT. NO FUN BEING AN ACTIVIST IF YOU DON'T ACT!

DID YOU CONTACT THE WEATHERMEN, MAXUS?

RIGHT ON. THEY KNOW ALL THE MOVES. BY THE TIME THIS CAMPUS SETTLES DOWN AGAIN AND IT'S NOTICED WE'VE SPLIT, WE'RE IN CUBA...

THIS IS ONE BUST THAT TOWN PIG WON'T EVER MAKE!

PARLOR-PINK FORGE OUGHT TO BE HAPPY, TOO. NOW SHE WON'T HAVE TO FINK ON US. MIDDLE CLASS MORALITY! TOO BAD THAT SOLDIER BOY WASN'T KILLED WHEN HE TRIGGERED OUR BOMB!

THEN...

...WE ALL KNOW WHY THE PENTAGON BOMBED HARRIDGE'S MUSEUM. ARE WE GOING TO SUBMIT TO THIS REPRESSION?

OR DO WE SHOW THE ESTABLISHMENT THAT THEY DISCREDIT US WITH THE PUBLIC AT THEIR PERIL? WE ARE UNDER ATTACK. WE HAVE THE RIGHT TO FIGHT BACK!

RUN THEIR AGENT OUT OF TOWN!

WHILE...

DOCTOR FORGE! I'VE BEEN CALLING YOU FOR AN HOUR.

SORRY, DEAN ROGERS. HAD SOMETHING IMPORTANT TO THINK OUT. AFRAID I LEFT MY PHONE OFF THE HOOK.

THERE'S A DEMONSTRATION ON AND I'M AFRAID IT'S TURNING UGLY. IF IT ISN'T TOO LATE, AND IF YOU HAVE ANY INFLUENCE...

1/31

HERE! WHAT'S THIS ALL ABOUT?

LEE HAS GOT TO GO!

TRASH OL' HARRIDGE TOO FOR HARBORING HIM!

WIPE OUT THE NEST OF PROVOCATEURS! GO! GO! GO!

OH, NO! MOB HYSTERIA! MAXUS AND PELF! WHAT ARE THEY UP TO? THAT POLICEMAN WAS TOO RIGHT! RUTHLESS!

THEN...

DOCTOR FORGE, EH?... ANYTHING TO TELL ME YET?

YES! THERE IS A LYNCH MOB HEADED FOR HARRIDGE'S HOME. YOU'LL NEED ALL THE HELP YOU CAN GET!

YOU FIGGER WE GOT ANY CLOSER T' THAT DEVIL'S PITCHFORK SEEIN' THAT WE'VE BEEN TRAMPIN' FOR A ZILLION HOURS, PUNJAB?

IN JUNGLE GROWTH LIKE THIS, PRINCESS, PROGRESS WILL BE VERY SLOW!

ANNIE, PUNJAB AND CAP'N AHAB HAVE BEEN GONE FOR ONE DAY ON THEIR MARCH TO THE "DEVIL'S TRIDENT," CHECKPOINT ON THE MAP FOR EL DORADO...

ANY SIGN OF 'EM?

NARY A WHISPER! BUT IT STRIKES ME THAT AS BLACK-HEARTED A SCOUNDREL AS CAP'N AHAB IS...

...THE ONLY TRAIL HE'D LEAVE IS ONE O' BLOOD AN' CARNAGE!

THERE IT GOES, PUNJAB!! LIKE A GIANT BIRD WEARIN' A GOLDEN CROWN!

I AM NOT UNAWARE OF ITS PRESENCE, ANNIE!

YOU SEE IT?

ONLY GLIMPSES THROUGH THE DENSE TROPICAL LEAVES!

CAP'N AHAB... ME AN' PUNJAB KEEPS SPOTTIN' SOMETHIN' THAT'S FLITTIN' OVER OUR HEADS AN' SEEMS T' BE FOLLOWIN' US!

AYE...

...GOLDSWINGER IT IS... AN' I'M SWORN T' SLIT ITS GIZZARD AFORE THIS VOYAGE IS ENDED!!

LEAVE 'IM FOR ...CAWK! CAWK!... WORM BAIT, SKIPPER!!

IT DO YOU SOME HARM, CAP'N??

THAT HE DID, LASS... AN' CAP'N AHAB'S GOT A LONG MEMORY FOR THEM THAT'S TRIED T' PLAY HIM DIRTY!

TWO EYES GLITTERING WITH HATRED FOLLOW EVERY MOVE MADE BY THE TINY BAND OF TREASURE HUNTERS....

CAP'N... LOOK OUT!! SOMETHIN'S HEADIN' YOUR WAY!!

AYE... IT'S HIM AGAIN, NO DOUBT ABOUT IT!! I'LL HAVE THE CRITTER HANGIN' FROM THE YARDARM AFORE THIS THING IS DONE....

YE' HEAR THAT, GOLDSWINGER!!? BUT HANGIN'S TOO GOOD FOR THE LIKES O' YE!! WHEN AHAB FINISHES WITH YER, YE'LL BE PRAYIN' FOR THE NOOSE!!
